(i) Suitable Sikh recruits can be obtained, but there is considerable difficulty in securing Hindus of the required standard.

(j) Out of the total number of 59 constables enlisted by the present Superintendent of Police 13 are posted to police stations.

(k) Ludhiana City, Ludhiana Sadar, Khanna, Jagraon and Raikot.

(l) Thirteen commendation certificates and cash rewards amounting to Rs. 32.

(m) The certificates and cash rewards were granted in the ordinary way, in conformity with departmental rules. If the honourable member presses the matter I will have a list prepared giving particulars of each case but it scarcely seems worthwhile spending the time of the House on such administrative details.

Sardar Sahib Sardar Santokh Singh : Are there any rules which require an officer in the matter of such recruitment to confine his choice to men of the district for which recruitment is made or is it that the best men available have to be selected ?

Premier : The practice varies. In certain districts suitable recruits are not available and therefore they have to go outside the district.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : If suitable candidates are to be found in the district, are they given preference or not ?

Premier : Yes, they are.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Will he please state whether at the time of recruitment due regard is kept for the communal and family ties of a candidate ?

Premier : Does not arise out of the question.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : What are the instructions which the Superintendents take into consideration at the time of recruitment ?

Premier : If the honourable member gives me notice, I shall be glad to obtain the information for him.

REMISSION GRANTED TO BEIT ILAQA.

397. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the remission granted to the Beit ilaqa is much too small and quite inadequate in proportion to the damage done by the hailstorm ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that in the Beit ilaqa there being no roads the Collector did not at all visit the hailstorm stricken villages in the Beit ;
- (c) the names of the hailstorm stricken villages which were visited by the tahsildar only ;
- (d) whether the Honourable Minister has issued instructions that the Silver Jubilee funds may be utilised in affording relief to the poor, particularly the rural population who have suffered from hailstorms, etc. ;
- (e) the amount of Silver Jubilee funds ;
- (f) the name of person in charge of the funds, if it is a committee, the names of its members ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) No, the area damaged in the Beit ilaqa of the Ludhiana district was only 627 acres and a remission of Rs. 1,018 was granted.

(b) The Collector could not visit the Beit villages because he was pre-occupied with more important work, and not for any other reason.

(c) A statement is placed on the table.

(d) No.

(e) and (f) Do not arise.

HALF FEE CONCESSIONS FOR CHILDREN OF DEPRESSED CLASSES.

398. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the Government decided in 1929, that from April, 1930 onwards all children of the depressed classes at the middle stage in vernacular and anglo-vernacular schools in all districts shall receive the half fee concessions ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that by virtue of letter No. 14442, dated 2nd July, 1936, the above-mentioned concession was withdrawn ; if so, reasons for the same, and whether the Government proposes to restore the concession ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Yes.

(b) No. The letter quoted by the honourable member seems to have no bearing on the subject. Presumably he has in mind Punjab Government (Ministry of Education) letter No. 14445-G., dated the 2nd July, 1936, according to which fee concessions to the children of the depressed classes may be withdrawn in individual cases for serious misconduct, idleness or irregularity in attendance by the special orders of the divisional inspectors or circle inspectresses in the case of schools and of the principals of intermediate colleges in the case of the high classes attached to them. This ruling is equally applicable to other special fee concessions granted on the score of poverty or educational backwardness, e.g., concessions to the children of agriculturists, criminal tribes, etc., and Government is not prepared to withdraw it as it is considered essential to have some safeguard against the misuse of the concessions.

HINDUS AND MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, MANDI BAHU-UD-DIN.

399. Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether the Hindus are in majority in the town of Mandi Baha-ud-Din ;
- (b) whether any representation was made by them against the establishment of a Municipal Committee at Mandi Baha-ud-Din ;
- (c) whether any representation was made by any other community objecting to the Government's decision ; if so, the reasons given in that representation ;
- (d) whether the previous decision of the Government was objected to on the ground that the establishment of a municipal committee would make the Punjab Alienation of Land Act inapplicable to the town of Mandi Baha-ud-Din ;
- (e) whether the establishment of a municipal committee in any town has ever been withheld or cancelled for the reason that such establishment will make the Punjab Alienation of Land Act inapplicable to the town concerned ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The late Government had passed no final orders. The proposal to make a municipal committee had been published for objections. The muslim zamindars objected to the proposal on the ground that they would be deprived of the protection of the Land Alienation Act.

(d) As stated above, the proposal was objected to on the ground that the establishment of a municipal committee would make the Punjab Alienation of Land Act inapplicable to the town. The Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner in commenting on the objections to the proposal also gave their opinion that as the town was a colony town and was still in the process of development, it would be preferable to retain the notified area committee for some years. It was also pointed out that Government had direct interest in the town as there were still 160 acres of Government land available for sale. As an alternative, they preferred the establishment of a small town committee to that of a municipal committee.

(e) No. The records do not show that this objection has ever been made by the persons concerned.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Who made the objections ?

Minister : Zamindars of the area.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Was it by means of a petition ?

Minister : Representations through local officers.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What was the number of zamindars who made that representation ?

Minister : I cannot give the number off-hand.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Has the Honourable Minister satisfied himself that only a small group of vested interests were opposed to the introduction of a municipal committee ?

Minister : Certainly not. All the agriculturists concerned made that representation.

Diwan Chaman Lall : How can the Honourable Minister say all the agriculturists concerned made that representation, when only a few zamindars objected according to his own statement ?

Minister : The representation was signed by all concerned.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that the Honourable Minister said that he does not know how many people signed this report ?

Minister : I cannot quote the number. This is all I said.

Diwan Chaman Lall : How then can the Honourable Minister inform this House that all the agriculturists opposed ?

Minister : Because a majority of them signed the representation.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Has not a notification been issued that Mandi Baha-ud-Din should be made a municipal committee ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Will he consider the question of notifying it as a municipal committee ?

Minister : No, the proposal has been turned down and a notification has been issued constituting it as a small town committee.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister prepared to look into the matter again and satisfy himself?

Minister : It does not arise.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I request the Speaker to let the House know whether it is the duty of the Honourable Minister opposite to raise this objection that the question does not arise or whether it is the duty of the Chair?

Minister : I have only suggested it to the Chair.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister prepared to look into this matter and satisfy himself and this House regarding the statements made by him?

Minister : I was satisfied when I came to that decision.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the honourable member whether he is so easily satisfied without the facts and figures before him?

Minister : Only after careful consideration.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Has the Deputy Commissioner made any wards?

Minister : Only a notification under section 4 had been issued, the final notification under section 6 of the Municipal Act had not been issued. Objections were received and the proposals were turned down.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister satisfied that there is no question of jobbery in this?

Minister : Perfectly satisfied.

Diwan Chaman Lall : How is he perfectly satisfied? On what grounds is he satisfied?

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Has the Deputy Commissioner sent proposals for the wards?

Minister : It does not arise.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : It does arise. Is it not a fact that the Deputy Commissioner had already submitted his proposals for constituting wards? The answer should be yes or no. The answer given is most misleading and against facts.

Premier : I do not think the honourable member can say the answer is most misleading. If it does not suit him, it is a different matter.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : The Honourable Minister does not reply to my question.

Minister : Put a clear question and I will try to reply.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : The question is as clear as the day, whether the Deputy Commissioner sent his proposals constituting wards in the proposed Municipal Committee or not. That is the question and a simple yes or no should be the answer.

Minister : My honourable friend tried to expedite the formation of the wards but before—

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I am not referring to the honourable friend. I am referring to the Deputy Commissioner and asking whether the Deputy Commissioner sent his proposals. Why cannot the Honourable Minister answer it by yes, or no ?

Maulvi Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din : May I have your ruling Sir, whether a member is entitled to comment upon the answer given by the Minister ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : There is no comment.

Maulvi Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din : Is a member entitled to say that the answer is most misleading or is it for the Honourable Speaker to say that the answer is satisfactory or otherwise ? May I then, ask the Honourable Minister whether he is satisfied that the answer is not misleading.

Minister : Not at all. Similar answers have been given by my predecessor in hundreds of cases (laughter).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : That question still remains to be answered, whether the Deputy Commissioner had sent his proposals or not. This is the question. The answer from which it arises was that objections were raised to the proposals and they were turned down.

Minister : Honourable Member may be referring to something that happened in his time. I am not aware of it.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Not at all. Is the Honourable Minister aware or not that the Deputy Commissioner forwarded his proposals for constituting the wards.

Minister : The notification was issued under section 4 and the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner objected to the formation of the municipal committee.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Did he send proposals for constituting wards or not, after his objections and the objections of the Commissioner had been rejected by Government ?

Minister : Not in my time. I am not aware of what happened in the honourable member's time.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is there any rule that the Minister is bound to answer only questions which related to administration during his time ?

Minister : I know the general fact, the details of this case may be known better to my honourable friend.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does the Honourable Member know or not that the proposals for wards had been sent ? I want a simple yes or no.

Minister : Search your memory.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Why is the Honourable Minister trying to prevaricate ? Why does he not say yes or no ?

Sayed Afzaal Ali Hasnie : Will the Honourable Minister kindly state if the Honourable ex-Minister wants to elicit information about a matter which happened when he was in office ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : That does not matter. My question still remains unanswered.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member has put and repeated his question more than once, but no answer is given, so, silence may be taken to be the answer.

Premier : I think my colleague had answered the question, but it was not considered satisfactory by my honourable friend.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : The Honourable Premier is entirely wrong.

Minister : I replied that question, but the honourable member tried to get some detailed information and I said that the details may be better known to him. He visited the place on a rainy day and started the proposals, but I am not aware of its details.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I was only referring to the Honourable Minister's personal knowledge. Does he know or not that after the objections had been rejected, the Deputy Commissioner sent proposals for constituting wards? If he does not know he should say no.

Minister : The honourable member went there on a rainy day and started the proposals. He should know them.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : What has the rainy day to do with this?

Minister : How am I aware of what the honourable member told the Deputy Commissioner?

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : When the last Ministry had rejected the proposals of the Deputy Commissioner and the Commissioner, why was the matter re-opened?

Minister : I think they were not rejected as only a notification under section 4 had appeared.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister prepared to give reasons as to why they were wrongly rejected?

Minister : Reasons were obvious. There were 184 acres of agricultural and 160 acres of Government land in the town (hear, hear).

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is that the policy of the Government?

Minister : Yes. As far as I am concerned I must safeguard agricultural and Government interests (hear, hear).

Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Were these objections rejected by the Minister himself or by the Cabinet?

Minister : That is a confidential matter and you cannot ask.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that if Mandi Baha-ud-Din is declared a municipal committee, the price of land in the locality will be doubled and therefore the agriculturists will benefit and will not lose?

Minister for Development : They will lose their valuable lands to the money-lenders.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Will he please state how the constitution of a particular place into a municipality compels the lands of agriculturists to go out of their hands.

Minister for Public Works : It removes the protection of the Land Alienation Act.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does it create any compulsion ?

Minister : It opens the door (laughter).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Are Phulwal and Phularwan municipalities ?

Minister : Yes.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : And are they colony towns ?

Minister : Old colony towns, with no agricultural lands.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : And is their population less than the population of Mandi Baha-ud-Din ?

Minister : May be, you are better aware of it.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : You live near to that place.

Nawab Sir Malik Muhammad Hayat Khan Noon : Is Bhalwal headquarters of the tahsil ?

Minister : Yes.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is Mandi Baha-ud-Din the headquarters of a sub-judge ?

Minister : You should know.

NOTIFIED AREA COMMITTEE OF BAHA-UD-DIN.

400. Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the main ground for cancelling the decision to convert the Notified Area Committee of Baha-ud-Din into a municipal committee was that it was objected to by some Muslim statutory agriculturists owning land within the notified area ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : The attention of the honourable member is drawn to the reply given to question No. *399 (above).

INTERVIEWS WITH POLITICAL PRISONERS.

401. Sardar Hari Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Punjab Jails Department maintains a list of persons who are not allowed to interview political prisoners or under-trials in the jails ;

- (b) whether it is a fact that the said list includes the names of certain honourable members of this House;
- (c) whether it is a fact that Master Kabul Singh, M.L.A., was recently refused permission to interview certain under-trials in Hoshiarpur sub-jail on the ground that his name was included in the black list?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : This question is identical with No. 377¹ to which an answer was given on the 12th July, 1987.

SOHAWA SINGH, LACHHMAN SINGH OF VILLAGE DHARDEO, DISTRICT AMRITSAR.

402. Dr. Sant Ram Seth : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Sardar Sohawa Singh, Lachhman Singh and 207 other inhabitants of village Dhardeo, submitted an application on the 5th November, 1985, in which they made serious allegations against the police force which was quartered at the above village on 7th October, 1985, and which remained there for a period of two months;
- (b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, whether he will lay on the table their original application and state whether any inquiry was made by the Government; if so, who conducted the inquiry; how many of the complainants were served with notices to appear before the investigating officer and how many of them did appear before him to get their evidence recorded; and what was the result of the inquiry?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) It is regretted that the petition was lost in the office of the Superintendent of Police, Amritsar, to whom it was forwarded for enquiry, and in consequence no enquiry was made. Disciplinary proceedings are being taken in connection with the loss of the document.

Dr. Sant Ram Seth (Urdu) : What were those serious allegations against the police?

Premier : I have not seen the petition.

Dr. Sant Ram Seth (Urdu) : If the Honourable Premier receives another application from those people, will he be prepared to make an enquiry?

Premier : Certainly.

CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY IN SEDITION CASES.

403. Dr. Sant Ram Seth : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to lay on the table a statement showing :—

- (a) the names of the convicts in the province with their full addresses whose properties were confiscated after their convictions by the criminal courts or the special tribunals for sedition and waging war against the King-Emperor between 1914 and 1930 ;
- (b) full description and value of the property confiscated, of each convict ;
- (c) the number and names of convicts mentioned in (a) who applied to the Government after their release for the return of their property ; with decision arrived at on their applications ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : The provisions of the Indian Penal Code enabling forfeiture of property to be ordered as one of the penalties for sedition and waging war against the King were repealed in 1921. It would not be possible at this stage to compile a complete list of cases in which this penalty was imposed between 1914 and 1921.

FACILITIES FOR VISITORS TO KASUR JAIL.

404. Dr. Sant Ram Seth : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether on the 1st June, 1937, Sardar Naranjan Singh, Municipal Commissioner of Notified Area, Sursingh, tahsil Kasur, and Sardar Sajjan Singh Margindpuri and other persons of tahsils Chunian and Kasur, district Lahore, submitted an application to him in which they complained against the orders issued by Kasur sub-jail authorities prohibiting the persons who go to interview their relatives in Kasur jail, from sitting under the shades of the trees on the road which leads from Kasur courts to the jail ;
- (b) whether the applicants mentioned in (a) above also requested the Government to construct a shed or verandah for the convenience of persons who go to interview their relatives confined in the said jail ;
- (c) if the answer to (a) and (b) be in the affirmative, whether any inquiry was made by the Government ; if so, with what result ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : The honourable member is asked to see the reply given to question No. *368.¹

CONSTRUCTION OF A TANK AT LUDHIANA.

405. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of members of the Ludhiana District Board who were present at the time when the resolution relating to the construction of a tank was passed ;

- (b) the name of the person presiding over the meeting of the District Board in which the resolution was passed ;
- (c) whether the resolution contravenes the conditions on which the rakh was made open to the District Board, Ludhiana ;
- (d) whether the resolution has been suspended ; if not, why not ;
- (e) the cost of the tank ;
- (f) the name of the person who will supervise the construction of the tank ;
- (g) whether the District Engineer can accept tenders and take up the work of construction without previous sanction of the Board ;
- (h) the time the District Engineer has already devoted to initial stages of the construction of this tank ;
- (i) whether the foundations of the tank were dug out before the receipt of the sanction of the Government ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Thirty-five.

(b) The Chairman, District Board, Ludhiana.

(c) The orders under which the rakh was handed over to the Board have not yet been traced, but in my case the sanction of Government is being asked for.

(d) No. No necessity for suspending it has been shown.

(e) Approximately Rs. 5,000.

(f) The District Engineer.

(g) As the District Board is not spending any money on this tank its previous sanction for accepting tenders was not necessary.

(h) The District Engineer is giving his help and advice in his private capacity, outside office hours.

(i) Yes, but the construction was stopped some time ago pending receipt of Government sanction.

MORTGAGED LAND IN ATTOCK DISTRICT.

406. Pir Mohy-ud-Din Lal Badshah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state the area of land in the Attock district mortgaged with possession in favour of non-agriculturists in lieu of interest on capital advanced by them (non-agriculturists) before the Alienation of Land Act came into force ; and also the period for which such lands have been in possession of the mortgagees ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The preparation of these statistics would require an amount of time and labour out of all proportion to the results obtainable. It is regretted that Government does not feel justified in calling for them.

Pir Mohy-ud-Din Lal Badshah (Urdu) : Is the Honourable Minister aware that in some cases the interest payable through the mortgaged lands has reached a figure which is almost fifty to hundred times the principal sum ?

Minister : My honourable friend cannot expect me to keep all these things in my mind. If he puts a question I will make enquiries.

Pir Mohy-ud-Din Lal Badshah (Urdu) : I sent a detailed question, but it has been considerably cut short.

Minister : I have only to reply to the question as it has been put.

TEMPORARY LEASES OF LAND IN ATTOCK DISTRICT.

407. Pir Mohy-ud-Din Lal Badshah : (i) Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) the number of debtors in the Attock district whose lands have been temporarily leased out to the money-lenders after the Relief of Indebtedness Act, 1934, and the Punjab Debtors Protection Act, 1936, came into force ;

(b) whether at the time of leasing out such lands the question of the maintenance of the debtors and their families was taken into consideration ;

(ii) whether he will lay on the table of the House a statement showing the area of land belonging to each of such debtors and the extent of area left out for them for their maintenance ;

(iii) whether it is a fact that in the case of some of these debtors no land has been left out for their maintenance and for the maintenance of their families ; if so, the reasons for the same, and the action Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (i) (a) 65 and 84 respectively.

(i) (b) and (ii) Copies of documents which would give the required information in any particular case are obtainable on payment of the usual fees. Government consider it against the public interest to supply such information in reply to questions in the Assembly.

(iii) The district authorities duly consider such points and take action but if the person affected is not satisfied with the order he has the right of appeal to higher authorities.

POSTING OF OFFICERS TO DIFFERENT PLACES.

408. Pir Mohy-ud-Din Lal Badshah : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that generally gazetted officers are not posted to one place for more than three years and it is considered necessary to transfer them from there, after the expiry of that period ;
- (b) if the answer to the above be in the affirmative, whether it is a fact that this principle is not observed in the case of subordinate staff ; if so, why ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) The practice varies and there are no set rules on the subject. Transfers among gazetted Government servants are made entirely in the exigencies of the public service and not simply because an officer happens to have completed three years or more in a particular district ;

(b) Does not arise. Practice varies in different departments. Speaking generally I may say that periodical transfers of subordinates especially of clerical establishment are less necessary than those of gazetted officers.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : A statement is laid on the table.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.

*410. Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state what steps, if any, Government have taken to eradicate bribery and corruption in the police and other departments?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : Government have issued various circulars on the subject of corruption subsequent to the issue of the 1921 Resolution and annually prepares and lays on the table of the House a statement showing action taken against corrupt officials. The statement for the period ending 31st March, 1937, is now under preparation and it is hoped that a copy will be available for presentation to the House before the current session of the Assembly terminates. The honourable member may be interested to know that Government have decided that the only appropriate punishment for proved cases of corruption is dismissal and this policy will be rigidly enforced.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that complaints of corruption against Government servants, particularly against police officers are very rarely false, and invariably they are true?

Premier : No.

Lala Duni Chand : Should I understand that they are invariably false?

Premier : No, Sir.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that most of the complaints enquired into result in no action being taken?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot make any sweeping statement. If the honourable member gives a particular instance I will make an enquiry.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it the general tendency of superior officers and the Ministers to say that an enquiry has been made into the allegations of corruption and that they have been found to be false?

Premier : No, Sir.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : How many cases against corruption have been instituted since the present Ministry took office?

Premier : In which particular district the honourable member wants to know? In his own district or in any other district?

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : In the whole of the Punjab.

Premier : The honourable member probably thinks that I am an encyclopædia in regard to corruption cases in all the districts of the Punjab.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Since the present Ministry is very keen on the eradication of corruption, I thought a good many convictions would have been made by now. I want to know their number.

Mr. Speaker : Arguments are out of order.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : What new steps has the present Government taken as compared with the last Government to put an end to corruption?

Premier : We have issued circulars and invited attention of all departments.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Were no circulars issued before ?

Premier : Yes. But in spite of obstacles put in our way, I think we will be able to deal with corruption more rigidly.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Which department is the worst offender in the matter of corruption ?

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that corruption cases reach Government every day in large numbers ?

Premier : I am not aware of that.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Does the Honourable Premier mean that obstacles are put by the departments against whose members enquiries have to be held or they are put by the members of the public ?

Premier : By people, who make false reports and try to mislead the officials of Government.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

411. Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state what measures, if any, Government have adopted to remove unemployment ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : The attention of the honourable member is invited to the reply given to question No. *102¹ in the current session.

ROADS IN VILLAGES.

412. Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state what steps Government propose to take to improve the condition of roads and passages in the villages ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

UPLIFT OF RURAL AREAS.

413. Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state the amount, if any, the Government has sanctioned or intends to sanction for the uplift of rural areas ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : Rupees 4,75,924, but this is in addition to the very large expenditure on the beneficent departments, most of whose activities are directed to improving rural conditions.

PROTECTION OF INDUSTRIES.

414. Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state what steps, if any, Government has taken or intends to take to protect Punjab industries, especially sugar and cotton ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : It is not understood what the honourable member means. If he will kindly give a fresh notice of the question making his meaning clear an answer will be given.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is it a fact that the Industries Department had recommended the inclusion in the schedule of new expenditure a sum of 5 lakhs for the current year for the encouragement of industries and that sum has been cut down in the budget to two lakhs ?

Minister : Does it arise out of my answer ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does it not, Sir ?

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, RUPAR AND ELECTORAL ROLLS.

415. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Municipal Committee, Rupar, passed a resolution No. 366, dated the 5th December, 1936, drawing the attention of Deputy Commissioner, Ambala, to the general complaint of the public that the electoral rolls as prepared were defective and incomplete ; if so, what steps have been taken to remove this general complaint of the public ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : Yes, but the Committee failed to send the resolution to the Deputy Commissioner as it should have been done. It, however, came to his notice in the proceedings of the Committee as all such proceedings have to be submitted to him. As the aggrieved persons could file claims and objections the Deputy Commissioner did not take any action in the matter. Government intend to take no further action.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that hundreds of names of voters entered in the previous list of 1933 were omitted in the new list of 1936 ?

Minister : I have not got the list ; so I cannot give the numbers.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister act on the information that I am going to give him, namely that names of hundreds of voters that were entered in the list of 1933 were omitted in the fresh list of 1936 and make enquiries ? I give this information and I request the Honourable Minister to make enquiries .

Minister : The remedy for that is to file claims under the rules.

Lala Duni Chand : Will it not be a proper thing for the head of the department to see to this when hundreds of names that should have been in the fresh list have been omitted by those who framed those lists ?

Premier : Deliberately ?

Lala Duni Chand : Yes.

Minister : How does the honourable member assume the omission ?

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that from the electoral roll of 1933 the names of 980 voters were not brought on the electoral roll of 1936 ?

Minister : The honourable member knows better about it.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that the name of Pandit Ganga Ram, municipal commissioner, was also omitted from the electoral list ?

Minister : I do not know ; there are hundreds and thousands of voters on the list.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that after the preparation of the electoral rolls the tahsildar revised them ?

No answer.

Lala Duni Chand : When the Minister discovers glaring omissions like this, is it not his duty to take to task those people who are responsible for such omissions ?

Minister : I have not admitted the glaring omissions.

Lala Duni Chand : I have given the information to the Honourable Minister that as many as 980 names were omitted.

Minister : It may be put in writing.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that Government has received complaints from the public of Rupar in this connection ?

BURIA MUNICIPALITY.

*416. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state :—

- (a) the annual income of the Buria Municipality, Ambala district, the amount of fund now at its disposal and the population of the town ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that practically nothing is being spent by the Committee on the municipal requirements of the towns such as hospitals, light, scavenging and education, and that the whole octroi income is being spent on the establishment of the municipality ; if so, the reasons for the same ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that there is a feeling of great resentment over the collection of octroi duty by which the town is not benefited in any way ; if so, what action is proposed to be taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana :

| | Rs. |
|-------------------------------|---------------|
| (a) Income during 1936-37 | .. 3,937 |
| Balance on 30th June, 1937 .. | .. 2,528-13-7 |
| Population | .. 3,494. |

(b) The committee spent Rs. 528 per annum for scavenging and Rs. 840 per annum on watch and ward. In the last 3 years Rs. 1,965 were spent on repairs of streets and roads. Nothing is being spent on hospitals, light and education. The Committee does not maintain any superfluous establishment though the expenses on it are out of proportion to its income.

(c) No.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that the bulk of the income has been spent on the establishment of the municipal committee ?

Minister : When there is a small income that happens.

Lala Duni Chand : Has the Honourable Minister taken notice of the fact that out of the income of Rs. 3,000 only about Rs. 800 are spent on the requirements of the people ? Where is the balance gone ?

Minister : I have given all the details. For the balance the auditor must be consulted.

Lala Duni Chand : The Honourable Minister has stated that the income during the year is Rs. 3,000 and the expenditure incurred in connection with scavenging, etc., is only Rs. 800. I want to know where the balance has gone.

Minister : I have stated Rs. 528 on scavenging, Rs. 840 on watch and ward and something on repairs. If he totals up these figures he will know.

Lala Duni Chand : May I inform the Honourable Minister that I know that place very well ?

Minister : I do not doubt the honourable member's information. He must have visited the place as he seems to be very keen on the matter.

EMBEZZLEMENT IN THE TOWN COMMITTEE, SILLANWALI, IN SHAHPUR DISTRICT.

417. Sardar Sahib Sardar Ujjal Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state :—

(a) whether it is a fact that in the Town Committee, Sillanwali, district Shahpur, during the years 1933 to 1936, embezzlement to the extent of nearly Rs. 8,000 was discovered and that the Secretary of the Town Committee was awarded imprisonment for 4 years and a fine of Rs. 1,500 ;

(b) whether any action was taken in this connection against the president and the members of the committee, during whose term this embezzlement took place ; if not, reasons for the same ;

- (c) whether the Government intends to take any action against the then president and the members of the committee ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes.

(b) No. There is no provision in the Punjab Small Towns Act, 1921 corresponding to section 50 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911, by which a member of a town committee can be surcharged with the value of the loss occasioned by his negligence to the funds of the committee.

(c) In view of (b) above, Government does not intend to take any action.

GOVERNMENT SERVANTS AS DIRECTORS OF CENTRAL CO-OPERATIVE BANKS.

419. Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state whether it is necessary for Government servants to obtain the permission of Government for being taken on the Board of Directors of a Central Co-operative Bank ; if so, how is the discretion of Government to grant or withhold permission exercised ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : Yes. Each case is considered on its merits.

REDUCTION OF LAND REVENUE RATES IN SHEIKHUPURA DISTRICT.

420. Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state :—

- (a) the extent of the canal irrigated area in each assessment circle in the Sheikhpura district which has been turned barren during the last 5 years, on account of exudation of kalar (salt-petre) ;
- (b) the extent to which the yield per acre of crops has decreased in the canal irrigated area of district Sheikhpura ;
- (c) the measures which have been adopted by Government to reclaim the area mentioned in (a) with the result thereof ;
- (d) whether Government is prepared to revise the rates of land revenue in respect of this area in view of the decrease in the yield.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) 7,886 acres in the district as a whole. The figures for each assessment circle are not readily available.

(b) No change is reported in the yield per acre of the crops in the canal irrigated area.

(c) A large number of seepage drains have been built or are under construction, but the result is not yet definitely known.

(d) Does not arise.

Mr. Speaker : May I invite the honourable member's attention to the rules governing the admissibility of supplementary questions. The privilege of putting such questions is a very important one and I shall be the last to curtail it ; but it is my duty to point out that they are allowed with the sole purpose of further elucidating any matter of fact regarding which an answer has been given. Besides, they should not infringe the Rules and Standing Orders relating to questions, nor should a question and its answer be discussed.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : On a point of order. Is it permissible to the Ministers to make an attempt to evade answering awkward questions ? That alone leads to supplementary questions .

Mr. Speaker : I do not think that the Chair can control that aspect of answers to questions.

DEMANDS FOR GRANTS.

AGRICULTURE.

Working of the Agriculture Department.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Southern Towns, General, Urban) (Urdu): Sir, in order to discuss the question that no useful purpose has been served by the Agriculture Department, I move—

That the demand be reduced by Rs. 100.

We, the occupants of the Opposition benches are placed in an awkward position. If we criticise the government departments we are dubbed irresponsible, or an objection is raised by the Government that our proposals are fatuous and impracticable. If we make constructive suggestions to Government, these are characterised as utopian (Laughter). If we try to look into the administration of the Government to see as to how the departments are run, then in the words of a certain gentleman "the Government will not tolerate it." The Government perhaps think that the Opposition is attempting to set up a parallel Government. In fact the Government cannot allow anybody to look into the affairs of its various departments including the police. It was only expedient that we remained silent yesterday. But the Honourable Minister for Development remarked tauntingly that the Government would be deprived of constructive criticism if the Opposition took no interest in his department. It is very funny to find that on the one hand the Development Minister is anxious to hear the criticism offered by the Opposition and on the other he is no less anxious to level charges of irresponsibility against them. (Hear, hear and applause). Under these circumstances, Sir, the position of the Opposition is really very amusing. If we tell the zamindars that in this province the Government has miserably failed to help them, the efforts of the Government to ameliorate their condition take the form of a reply that we received a few days back, i.e., the congressmen should be kicked out. Sir, despite these worries I wish to bring to your notice the reason why the Congress party took little interest in the discussions. It is because the motions moved yesterday were more or less of a personal nature. The small zamindars cannot afford to take up to fruit culture as big zamindars and capitalists alone possess the means to lay out gardens and to plant fruit trees. In view of this it was in the fitness of things that we should not take part in the discussions. To-day is our day because the general agricultural policy of the Government is going to be discussed thread-bare. The discussions of yesterday were a sort of domestic quarrel, that takes place between a man and his wife. (Loud cheers and laughter). For instance an honourable member got up and entreated the Government that nurseries be established in Muzaffargarh district. The Honourable Minister assured the gentleman that his wishes would be carried out. This is what happened yesterday.

Syed Amjad Ali Shah : May I interrupt the honourable member ?

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : Wait a bit, please.

We are presenting our demands to-day. If the Government shows an accommodating spirit we will be satisfied. We know that the Government is in the habit of promising certain things to members of their party, but these promises are never fulfilled. We have no faith in the promises of Government. In the words of Ghalib :—

رگڑیں مہیں دوتڑے ہر لے لے ہم نہی فائل

If the Government gives a satisfactory reply to our demands, we shall know that the Government is sympathetic. It is quite a different thing, if a man wants to establish a nursery and you say that you will do the needful in the matter. These are domestic affairs. My submission is that the total income of the province is about 11 crores and the greater portion of it is taken from the pockets of poor cultivators. During the election campaign and even now the members of the Unionists Party are indulging in tall talk regarding their sympathy for the zamindars. But now the time has come to give a practical shape to their tall talk. I should like to ask the Government as to what they are doing for the welfare of the people who are mainly responsible for contributing the largest share to the revenues of the province. I am surprised to find that only 36 lakhs of rupees have been earmarked for the improvement of agriculture in the province. The expenditure of this sum results in an income of rupees 16 lakhs, so that in a budget of 11 crores only 20 lakhs have been reserved for a beneficent department like agriculture. I would not dilate upon this undeniable fact but I should like to ask the Government whether in the face of this narrow-mindedness on their part and grave injustice to zamindars the present Government can claim to be a zamindar Government. Only 1/51 part of the total income of the province has been earmarked for the benefit of the zamindars which in other words means that the Government is trying to satisfy an extremely thirsty man with a drop of dew. And in spite of this narrow-mindedness on the part of Government, its supporters are extolling the Government to the skies for its large-heartedness. I do not propose to indulge in fault finding simply for the sake of it. On the other hand I want to bring this fact to the notice of the House that ours is an agricultural country, and unless steps are taken to improve Agriculture, no progress worth the name is possible. As compared with other provinces the number of agriculturists living in this province is decidedly larger. I am surprised that on the one hand the villagers come to blows on the ground that a mandi which ought to have been located within the boundaries of a certain ilaqa, has been located outside it, and, on the other hand they keep silent when out of a budget of 11 crores the Government earmarks only Rs. 20 lakhs for the improvement of agriculture.

would be a babble of voices, characterising my remarks as irrelevant while others would say that we do not even know the difference between maize and millets.

Just give a moment's thought to Government farms. Some of the lands of these farms were cultivated by farm-hands while the rest were made over to tenants on the batai system and the result of this was that the lands cultivated by the department suffered heavy losses. Whatever the Government gained by giving the lands on batai system was lost by the self-cultivating farm hands. The Government therefore gave up the cultivation of lands in 1932 and they had to give it up because the income from lands given on the batai system was being eaten up by the losses sustained by the department in self-cultivation. When the department of agriculture cannot make both ends meet by cultivating the lands themselves, you can very well imagine the plight of the poor zamindars. If the Government department has any confidence in the so-called improved methods of agriculture they should select certain areas in various parts of the province and by cultivating them demonstrate to the zamindars that the methods adopted by the department are really superior and productive of larger income. If the department succeeds in their demonstration the zamindars would voluntarily follow them. The poor zamindar works from morning till evening. How can you expect him to learn scientific methods of agriculture in his spare time? However, if he finds that the agricultural farm in his neighbourhood has worked wonders in doubling or trebling the produce of the land, he will naturally turn his attention to improved methods of agriculture. But the case is just the other way. The farms are unable to balance their budgets, because their expenditure exceeds their income. He who has himself lost the way cannot be expected to guide others. I do not know much about the condition prevailing in other free countries of the world but I can say that the methods adopted by other countries can with advantage be adopted here. It would do the country good if some people are deputed to foreign countries to observe for themselves the conditions prevailing there so that on their return they may be able to instruct the zamindars of this province in improved methods of agriculture.

But our Government has set up a separate department and the only work they have done so far is that in 1932 a fiat was issued to the effect that the department should not do any work of cultivation, because it is not paying. The demonstration work which ought to have been undertaken by these farms has now been handed over to poor peasants. But my submission is that big landholders and capitalists also used to do the same thing. What has this department done? What monumental work has been performed by this department? Is it that they have given over farm lands to peasants on batai system to recover their share from them.

In the first place a good deal of money ought to have been spent on this department but since this has not been done, the whole of the money spent on this department is being wasted. Next, mention was made of the Boring Department. I should like to know the nature of the work done by this department and the places where boring operations have been carried out.

Mr. Speaker : This matter has been discussed already.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : I wanted to say only this much about the Boring Department that it has not done any useful work. It has completely failed to demonstrate the utility of boring operations because wherever these operations have been tried water has failed to come out. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture will bear me out that in his home district too the boring operations have completely failed.

Mr. Speaker : I can not allow the matter to be discussed further.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma: Now I will take up the question of research work which is being carried on in the Agricultural College. The nature of research work should be such as would prove beneficial to zamindars in general. We cannot afford to make use of costly methods of work. I would also suggest that instead of maintaining expensive colleges it would be well to establish agricultural schools in various parts of the province. If instruction in agriculture is made compulsory in all primary and middle schools in rural areas it would redound to the benefit of the people concerned. But the fact is that the poor peasant cannot and should not expect any good at the hands of the capitalists. It would be like falling from the frying pan into the fire. A capitalist who owns a number of bungalows in Karachi is no better than a capitalist living in Montgomery who owns a number of bungalows. From the poor peasant's point of view both of them are equally bad. Our present Government is a Government of capitalist zamindars. If an ordinary zamindar like the present Minister for Agriculture rises to the position of a minister, he becomes a capitalist and a big zamindar by the time he reaches his high position. A poor man alone can help the poor. I am not prepared to believe for one moment that a rich man living in the lap of luxury can even think of his poor neighbour, far from sympathising or doing anything substantial for him.

What we have to see is what kind of help is needed by the country i.e., what kind of research can prove useful to the zamindars. The zamindars are poor. They have got neither the capital nor the land to carry into effect the costly methods of agriculture followed in Europe and suggested by the Agricultural College. We should adopt measures as are likely to help the poor zamindars. But as long as our present capitalist Government is in power and there is no change in their mentality, it would be futile to expect any good at their hands. The peasants in general can never progress under the present regime. The Department of Agriculture has not proved as useful as we wanted it to be. The poor can benefit at the hands of the poor alone and that is the only way of benefiting the poor.

Chaudhri Faqir Husain Khan : On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member justified in discussing the merits and demerits of various classes of the population e.g., capitalists and non-capitalists?

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : Sir, it was a very important thing and so I had to lay stress on it. Anyway I will not take any more time, I will finish my speech with the remark that before any member goes to record his vote for this demand he should feel his heart and find out whether he is doing the right thing to his constituents who sent him to this Assembly. He should also try to realise whether this department is doing any useful work at all or whether there is any hope of its doing any useful work in the future. As I have already stated, it is old wine in new bottles that we are made to drink. Every member should try to realise the fact whether this department is proving really useful to his ilaqa. If any one of them votes for the Government simply to please it, he would be doing the gravest injustice to his constituents. I would again request the honourable members that before voting they should remember the plight of these poor people who voted for them.

Syed Amjad Ali Shah : I wanted to interrupt my honourable friend for a minute but I am sorry to say that he did not extend to me the ordinary courtesy to let me speak for a minute even. He was saying that my honourable friend from Muzaffargarh went on pressing his claim which was met sympathetically by the Honourable Minister and in that connection he quoted a verse :—

دکھو میں ڈوڑھے پھرنے کے ہم نہیں قائل
جو آکھہ ہی سے اہ ٹپکا نہ، نہ لہو کوا ہے

In that connection I would like to quote another verse of the same great poet which is as follows :—

لکلا چاہتا ہے کام کیا طعنی سے تو غالب

(Voices. Order, order.)

Mr. Speaker : Does the honourable member wish to give a personal explanation or raise a point of order ?

Syed Amjad Ali Shah : Should I not complete that verse of mine Sir ?

Mr. Speaker : No. Demand under consideration, motion moved—

That the demand be reduced by Rs. 100.

Chaudhri Ali Akbar (Gurdaspur East, Muhammadan, Rural) (Urdu) : Sir, the Department of Agriculture was started some 20 or 25 years ago. In the beginning the department proved very useful to the zamindars. For example, the department imported good seeds which were supplied to the zamindars. The result of this was that with the help of improved variety of seed the out-turn of sugarcane was doubled and in some cases trebled. Wheat seed supplied by the department also resulted in doubling and in some cases trebling the produce. In the year 1921 I made a speech in the course of which I submitted that though the Department of Agriculture was using superior quality of bullocks to those used by zamindars it was not showing good results. To this the Government replied that the superior quality of bullocks are being used as an experiment. An experiment may well extend over a period of 6 months or a year or two or even 10 years, but I fail to understand the utility of experiments extending over a period of 25 years. It is time this experimentation was stopped. It is no use further extending the department. However, if you can borrow some useful discovery from some foreign country, it may prove beneficial to the zamindars. The zamindars have been following the profession of agriculture for centuries past. You have only to give them a hint and they will act upon it. It is no use carrying on prolonged experiments. The Opposition is duty bound to oppose the zamindars but may I respectfully point out that the burden of zamindars is increasing day by day and it is time the [Ch. Ali Akbar].

Department of Agriculture took steps to ameliorate their condition. In the year 1921-22 I requested the Department of Agriculture, as also the Minister for Agriculture, to devise means for the destruction of "parar," a kind of insect which completely ruins the rice crop. I got hold of a number of insects and put them in a bottle and sent it on to Mr. Conway, the settlement officer of the district. Mr. Conway sent this bottle on to the laboratory at the Agricultural College, Lyallpur. I do not yet know what happened to that bottle and the zamindars are still completely in the dark as to what action they should take for the destruction of the insect in question, (Cheers from Opposition benches).

Sir, I also wish to bring this fact to the notice of the House that the kharbuza crop, which used to be a very paying crop, has ceased to be one. For some years past some kind of insect has been playing havoc with the crop. Some ten years ago the kharbuza crop was a very paying crop in the Gurdaspur district but now-a-days the zamindars hardly get Rs. 2 from a wara. May I request the Department of Agriculture to advise us as to what we should do in the matter. Can they suggest any remedy?

A zamindar's crops are subject to many diseases. We do what we can to remedy these diseases, because such remedies are handed down from father to son. But if we are face to face with a plant disease, which we cannot remedy, we are obliged to address the Department of Agriculture, on the subject. And if the department concerned keeps silent over our queries, there is no use in maintaining such a department.

The Department of Agriculture should undertake experiments and the results of the same should be communicated to the zamindars. The Department should devise means for increasing the productivity of the soil. I am constrained to remark that the Government has started this department with a view to provide billets for its proteges (laughter).

The department should issue instructions to its officials to show greater consideration and sympathy to the zamindars. What does a gentleman accustomed to western habits know about agriculture? I have no doubt that the Department of Agriculture is doing useful work, but I would ask them to suggest remedies for the three plant diseases mentioned above, within the next ten months.

As regards the plantation of fruit-trees, good many experiments have been carried on in the Gurdaspur district. A resident of Jamalpur, near Pathankot, named Chaudhri Niazi Ali, retired Sub-Divisional Officer, has spent enormous sums of money on fruit culture.

Mr. Speaker : Gardens were discussed yesterday.

Chaudhri Ali Akbar : If the Department of Agriculture sends for new variety of seeds from abroad and if they are distributed amongst the zamindars in accordance with the previous practice, and if the expenses of the department are further reduced, I am sure that this department would prove more useful. With these words I oppose this cut motion.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban): Mr. Speaker, we discussed an item or two out of this demand yesterday and the Honourable Minister in charge of the department was pleased to remark that he was sorry that the Opposition did not give consideration to his department. I said in reply yesterday that we were prepared to discuss the policy of Government as far as agriculture is concerned, but because the items which were discussed yesterday were side-tracking the whole issue, therefore, we did not think it worth while to express any opinion on fruit industry or other items. We feel, as has been expressed by my predecessor here who has just spoken, that the policy underlying the Agricultural Department has proved useless, has not benefited the peasants and the agriculturists as a better run department would have done. My friend has already told you that this department was started twenty-five years ago and within these twenty-five years they have not been able to set up a laboratory to carry on experiments to find out remedies for the insects which infect the different harvests. This is an example to show that the department should not now be run on the lines on which it was being run by the previous Government.

Before I offer any suggestions I think I must tell you that according to the statistics supplied to us by the Board of Economic Inquiry, Punjab, in their publication No. 52, 73.6 per cent. of the cultivated land is under food crops, 26 per cent. is under non-food crops, i.e., under fodder, fibres and oil-seeds, and 4 per cent. is under drugs and narcotics and dyes. I invite your attention to this percentage of cultivation to show that the policy underlying this department is that food crops are to be grown and 26 per cent. is under fodder and oil-seeds and .4 per cent. is under other crops. I think the policy of the Agriculture Department is to improve the condition of peasants by suggesting to them the crops which would bring them money and thus increase their income and alleviate their depressed condition. I feel that a laboratory for research is absolutely necessary if any country or any province wants to improve the condition of crops or suggest methods or suggest crops which should be sown to improve the condition of the peasants. But what do we find here? If we study the working of the Agricultural College at Lyallpur and the Research Department we find that demonstration of cultivation through tractors is shown but no steps are taken to show that small holdings which are uneconomical can be cultivated by means of these tractors. The other day I had an occasion to talk to a very responsible officer and he related to me that officers of one of the States demonstrated the working of a tractor. They put ten bullocks to run it and after an hour's working they found that the bullocks were exhausted and they could not run it. This demonstration was given by the State authorities for running a tractor for their own land and along with it the agriculturists were required to cultivate their land according to their own method. The ordinary agriculturist's ten to twelve hours' work was done within 1½ hours by the tractor and the State authorities were laughing at the agriculturists when they were carrying on the cultivation work according to their old method. But when the crops grew the State authorities could show very poor result but the agriculturists got the normal crops. Therefore they gave up the method of cultivation by tractors.

Government spends or intends to spend now Rs. 11,50,000 over the improved seeds. It is thought that whatever crops will result by the sowing of these seeds those crops will bring more money than other crops have done in the past. That is the method which I think underlies the policy of the Agriculture Department in this province, and they want to carry it out as it has been carried out in the past. My submission is that this is not the method on which research should be carried out or the lines on which the condition of an ordinary agriculturist in this province can be improved.

What we want is that such methods of agriculture and methods of cultivation as would suit a peasant whose holding is uneconomical and small should be devised and developed, because a majority of the agriculturists' holdings are uneconomical. Even if we supply them seeds which are likely to bring more money to them, we should arrange for marketing and we should see that minimum prices of these products are fixed by Government. Unless the prices are so fixed, my submission is that it cannot help the agriculturist at all to have better crops grown with better seeds. I have read books including Government publications that show why the ordinary agriculturist does not like to use improved seeds. The reason is that when he grows them and takes his product to a market, he does not get more money for those improved crops. The middle man in the market does not give him the price for the improved quality which it was expected to yield.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : That is not my experience. I have never suffered by the acts of the middle man and I get full price.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I was just telling that it was one of the reasons why an ordinary peasant proprietor with small uneconomic holding does not take to the use of the improved seed. He spends more but he gets the same price.

Sardar Sahib Sardar Gurbachan Singh : Question.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : The honourable member may question, but I have read it in the books published by the Government.

Minister for Development : Will the honourable member kindly refer me to the particular passage where this fact is mentioned?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I did not think that the Honourable Minister will even doubt that statement of mine, otherwise I would have brought the book and I promise that I shall send him the book. I thought that because while in the Opposition he was criticising agricultural policy of the Government, he must have known that this was the reason why the people did not take to improved seeds. I just want to read to you from a book "Labour's way of Using the Land" to show you what the members of the English Labour Party want the land in their country to be. After reading it, I shall try to apply their various ideas to my own country and my own province. They say—

"We recommend the public ownership of land, with fair, but not excessive, compensations because we believe it to be in the best interests of the industry that there should be an effective landlord, and we believe that the best use of all land can only be guaranteed when the State accepts responsibility for management. The scheme would provide security of tenure for every farmer who farms his land in accordance with the rules of good husbandry, and representatives of the industry would help to interpret the meaning of good husbandry.

We believe that improved marketing organization for primary and processed products unified with an Import Board and such price-fixing bodies as are necessary would ensure an expanding market for home-grown food, would eliminate waste and extravagance, and give the producer a greater share of the ultimate price than he has ever had.

We believe that these national bodies could secure a reduction of freight rates on agricultural produce, as well as provide improved road transport facilities.

With the State responsible for its own estate, and agriculture regarded as of outstanding importance, educational facilities in rural areas would be improved; more attention would be paid to primary, secondary and higher education, and more funds would be made available for research.

Where credit facilities fall short of requirements they would be amplified and extended. Where services such as water and electricity can be brought to the village no time would be lost. Drainage schemes would be undertaken, providing additional security for the tenant.

There must be ample time for leisure, recreation and amusement. Village life must be made brighter, and to complete the freedom of the agricultural worker, the 'tied cottage' must go.

We want to see the farmer secure, prosperous and rendering a real national service. We want to see the labourer equally secure and prosperous and instead of both constantly humming: 'Art thou weary, art thou languid?' we would prefer to hear them sing, 'Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag.'

That, then, is the atmosphere we wish to create, for in the words of Carlyle—

"We must some day, at last and for ever, cross the line between nonsense and common-sense. And on that day we shall pass from class paternalism, originally derived from fetish fiction in times of universal ignorance to Human Brotherhood in accordance with the nature of things and our growing knowledge of it; from political government to industrial administration; from competition in individualism to individuality in co-operation; from war and despotism in any form to peace and liberty."

I shall now try to apply their opinion to my province. We also want to see the farmers secure. We feel that whatever method the Government may adopt, it must be designed to help the small farmer, because he forms the majority of our province. His condition cannot improve unless he is given more land to cultivate not as a tenant but as a proprietor and unless other methods are devised to improve his condition for marketing as well as for increasing the output of his crops. It is only then that you improve the condition of this province. As I have told you experiments have been carried out in the implements which can be used for cultivation and the implements which they have devised do not suit them. As far as our livestock is concerned, because that forms a part of agriculture, nothing has been done to improve the condition of the livestock.

Minister for Development : Livestock does not fall under this grant.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : My submission is that though livestock is not a part of the Agriculture Department, yet the Agriculture Department should see that the fodder which is really necessary for the livestock is improved as livestock is a necessary part of the implements of agriculture. Therefore I think I am justified in saying that the Government should take measures and the Minister in charge of Agriculture should approach his colleague to see that something is done for the improvement of livestock in this province. Yesterday I heard the Honourable Minister saying that he will speak to his colleagues about water rate, irrigation, etc. Therefore, I think, I am justified in saying that the conditions of the livestock should be improved and the Honourable Minister in charge should ask his colleague to pay attention to improvement in this line. I was submitting that we want improvement in live-stock from two points of view. One is that if we improve the condition of our bullocks in our province, we improve the condition of cows. When we improve the condition of cows we get better diet for our agriculturists to keep them healthy.

[Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava.]

The other thing is that some supplementary industry is absolutely necessary for agriculturists, specially for those who have got very small portions of land. If we look to other countries like Denmark, we find that they are keeping dairies and poultry farms which are necessary industries for agriculturists there. Sir, I think, it is the duty of the Department of Agriculture to see that such fodder and such crops are grown which would be conducive to the improvement of live-stock as well as poultry.

Sir, I was just telling you that implements are absolutely necessary and we must improve them. But such implements should be improved which would suit the ordinary peasant proprietor who has got small holdings. Then, Sir, we must try to inculcate the spirit of co-operation. How can it be done? I think the Co-operative Department also does not fall under Agriculture and, therefore, without dilating on this point, I submit that if the Government cannot nationalise land at present, it should work on co-operative lines and we should have co-operative farms. Farming falls under the Department of Agriculture and, therefore, I would submit that Government should take steps, so that co-operative farming on a very large scale is carried on in the villages.

Then, Sir, I have to submit that we have to see what crop is better than the other and why. Well, Sir, it is not only money crop which an agriculturist should grow, but he should grow food crops as well. I tried to find out from the Lyallpur Agricultural College people whether they could give me the composition, from the dietetic point of view and from the nutritive point of view, of the seeds which should be sown by us, but they failed to satisfy me. There is only one nutrition research laboratory in the whole of India and that is at Coonoor. If anybody wants to find out the nutritive value of any food article, whether it is fit for human consumption or for animal consumption, there is no laboratory in our province to help him. I think we are ignoring an important factor when we select seeds. That important factor is that we must look to the health of the farmer. Unless we look to the health of the farmer he cannot become a fit person and whatever more money is spent on improved seeds, he loses it on his illness and on medicines.

Agriculture is not only the concern of the farmer or the peasant or the landlord, but it should be the concern of the whole nation. India depends on the crops which are grown by peasants in their villages. By working on the policy of Agriculture Department, the peasants will produce such articles as would undermine the health of the nation. I think it becomes the duty of the Government to see that such seeds or such crops are not grown. Therefore, it is absolutely necessary for us to find out what seed is good for the health of the farmer as well as of the people of the province. Whenever any fodder is grown we have to see that fodder is suitable and at the same time cheap for live-stock. In the Punjab we grow mostly wheat and when the poor man does not get wheat, he has to fall back on other cereals. In that part of the province, which is represented by the Honourable Minister in charge, the poorer people do not get wheat for all the 12 months in the year and they have to live on bajra or on barley, or on wheat and gram combined. If we look to the diet of our farmer, we see that he does not get vegetables to eat because he does not grow them. It is said that we on this side, when we say that the farmer should grow those articles which are suitable as food for him, do not look to the larger amount of money which he would get otherwise. If that article of food, which is grown and which is necessary for the health of the people of the province, does not bring as much money as other articles, then it is the fault of marketing and not of the produce. If we tell the farmer that such and such variety of wheat (8-A) or any other variety, is the best so far as food value is concerned, I think it will bring higher price than any other variety of wheat. In the same way, if we tell people of this province that such and such article is absolutely necessary and is better for our health, then there is no reason why we should not be able to sell that article at a higher price. Therefore, I think even if the Department of Agriculture has to curtail any other chair in the Agricultural Department or in the research department, it is the duty of the Government to carry on experiments on food value of food crops as well as of fodder crops.

We should try to grow as much as would be necessary to satisfy our own needs and the needs of our country and then whatever is left behind we should export. If we find that, while exporting to other countries, any other variety of food crops brings more money, I have not the least objection if the agriculturist or the peasant would grow that variety for export only. We find that some medicines and proprietary drugs which are imported into our country are labelled 'for India only' and they cannot be used and sold in England or any other part of the British Empire. Similarly we find that certain goods are labelled 'for colonies only' and they cannot be sold in England or in other countries except in the colonies. Therefore I do not find any reason why we cannot take steps to ensure the consumption in our own province of those foods which are of high nutritive value and export those which would bring more money because of the ignorance of outside people. Then I had said that prices should be fixed and the Honourable Minister in charge probably did not like my suggestion. Perhaps he thought it would not be possible to fix them. My point is that we should fix the minimum price of the grain, so that when there is depression in prices the poor peasant is not affected. Let the Government buy his product at the minimum fixed price and then put it in the market competing with other countries and if other countries can sell cheaper let the Government pay that difference. There is an article in the 'Listener' dated 2nd June, 1937, which gives the results of regulating the diet of people and thus regulating the growth of crops: "During the present century the general death rate has fallen by 88 per cent., infant mortality by 62 per cent. and tuberculosis death rate by 64 per cent., and the expectation of life has increased by ten years. The weight and size of the children and adults has improved." This is the result of improving the nutrition of the nation in England. If we want to improve the nutrition of the nation we should grow such crops as are absolutely necessary or have high nutritive value. Therefore the establishment of a nutrition research laboratory is absolutely necessary. Then, further on, it is said: "It cannot be denied that poverty is the root cause of many public health evils; but unfortunately it is not the only cause. Improved means and nutrition will reduce or eliminate maternal mortality." This might be taken by some as irrelevant. But my submission is that it is not irrelevant. We ought to run the Agricultural Department on the lines which will be beneficial for the nation, for the Punjab as a whole as well as for the peasants. I want that the monetary condition of the peasants should improve. Therefore we should improve the marketing methods, so that that food crop which has got high nutritive value brings more money than the other crop.

Then we find that very little of the land is under fruit cultivation and under vegetables. I have to use the word 'fruits' because it is given under one head. Out of 73·6 per cent. of land which is under food crops, only 8 per cent. is under fruits and vegetables. I have got nothing to say so far as the fruits are concerned. But I submit that more land should be brought under vegetable cultivation. In our villages what do we find? The only vegetable which a peasant can use is onion and sometimes sarasum is the only thing which he gets in winter. Otherwise ordinarily these people do not get anything by way of vegetables. They grow a lot and send it to the towns for the use of the towns-people, probably because they get more money. But my submission is that every peasant should be required to grow at least such quantity of vegetables as is necessary for the use of his family or for the use of the village. If there is any surplus left, then let him send it to the town. It may be asked if a man grows food, wheat and vegetables, how is he to pay land revenue. If a peasant has not got enough land to produce as much as would bring him money to pay off the land revenue or the debt decreed by the debt conciliation board, if he has not got enough land to produce that much, I would submit that the Government should make that uneconomic holding free of land revenue and the debt which the poor peasant has to pay should be paid by the Government when the conciliation board decides the amount. (Revenue Minister : Wherefrom?) The Honourable Revenue Minister wants me to tell him wherefrom to pay that money. My reply would be, let him seek the help of the Finance Minister and if the present Cabinet cannot find it and if they want to consult us we are prepared to advise them. (Hear, hear). And if they feel that they cannot carry out these suggestions, let them vacate and we shall do the job and show how it can be done. (Hear, hear). If you are really out to improve the condition of the farmer, then this should be the policy of the Agriculture Department; they should devise methods which will improve the condition of the peasant. We must bring them to a high standard. As I have already said we should see the agriculturist from the nationalist point of view and not from the peasant point of view only. It was said that whatever suggestions we make here are only to please the smaller fry or they are only meant to keep the poor man at the level he is. I would submit that the suggestions which we make are not to keep the man at the level at which he is. We want to improve him and bring him to that standard, to that condition which a big landlord enjoys to-day. (Hear, hear).

We do not want that the big land lord should eat the smaller fry like the bigger fish eating the smaller fish. We want the poorer peasant to stand on his own legs and not be at the mercy of the landlord. It was said that to protect the price of food products we should approach the Government of India for protection or should give subsidies and concessions here and there. Well, Sir, I am one of those who would like such a legislation to be enacted which would ensure the welfare of the peasant. But I would also like that such protection and such subsidies and concessions be not given as woul unfairly tax the consumer. The consumer and the producer should go together because one helps the other. Therefore this question of protection Sir, to my mind should not be tackled by us at the present moment unless we feel that the outsider is able to import such articles in our province or country which would crush the agriculture or industry of our province.

As far as marketing is concerned, we have to tackle an important question and that is that we must approach the Central Government to regulate the railway freight on commodities. The laying of roads is a provincial subject and we should improve the roads ; but at the same time we should approach the Central Government to decrease the railway freight so that we may be able to sell our commodities in the province or outside at favourable rates. (Hear, hear). Sir, you will be astonished to find—I do not know what is the exact freight now—that it was said that Australian wheat costs one rupee per maund as freight to reach Calcutta and that to carry wheat from Lyallpore to Calcutta costs Re. 1-8-0 per maund. A thing is brought from thousands of miles and here if it is taken from Layllpore to Calcutta harbour, it costs much more to carry one maund of wheat than the ship freight would cost for bringing it from Australia. Therefore, Sir, I think that the Agriculture Department of the Punjab Government should approach and bring as much pressure as they can upon the Central Government to decrease the railway freight. If they cannot get a decrease then I think by other methods, i.e., by encouraging other conveyances they should try to decrease the freight per maund.

Then, Sir, I think that out of a total of Rs. 34,17,500 as much as Rs. 11,50,000 is for the operations with improved seeds, Rs. 1,79,300 is for agricultural stations and Rs. 1,65,700 for boring operations. To begin with, Sir, as my friend Pandit Sri Ram told you, out of an expenditure of 34 lakhs according to his calculations only 16 lakh is income on account of sale of seeds. I do not know how far it is correct. He said it is only 20 lakhs which was spent on the Agriculture Department. In a big budget like ours this is a very insignificant amount. Then, Sir, we find that the Agriculture Department is carrying on boring operations. My idea is that the boring operations should be carried on to supply water where the land is not irrigated by canals or where water is scarce. But, Sir, I am told that in districts where there is no water these boring operations are scarcely carried out and the Government has not yet been able to do much——

Mr. Speaker : The question of boring cannot be discussed.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Sir, my submission is that the Agriculture Department should change its policy and should try to improve the condition of the peasant farmer by improving the implements and devising other methods of helping the peasant by improving marketing conditions and by trying to reduce the railway freight and establish nutrition research laboratories. We should reorient the criterion of improved seeds.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan (Pind Dadan Khan, Muhammadan, Rural) : Sir, before commencing my speech I would like to say that so far as the question of big fishes eating the small fishes is concerned, as was remarked by the honourable the Leader of the Opposition, we on this side of the House are entirely in agreement with him (hear, hear) But I hope, he will realise that the big fishes are not to be found only amongst the land lords ; there are big fishes in other trades too. I am sure when the expert committee, which is trying to help the small fishes at the expense of big fishes, submits its report, the Opposition will whole-heartedly support those proposals. I would confine my remarks just to one particular grievance which I have made an attempt to get removed by giving notice of a cut motion. As the honourable members will observe my object was to draw the attention of the Government to the fact that although Dr. Lander, Agricultural Chemist, was deputed thrice to report what action should be taken to reclaim the lands damaged by Khewra Salt Range, yet neither his report has been published nor any action taken thereon.

[Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan].

At this stage the Assembly adjourned for lunch.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2 P. M. of the clock. Mr. Speaker in the chair.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I was submitting before lunch that the object of my speech was to attack the Agriculture Department for its failure to take steps to reclaim the area of land which has turned absolutely saltish and for the unnecessary delay and waste of time in deputing an officer to hold enquiries without either publishing his report or taking action thereon.

A brief history of the case would at once reveal to honourable members how slow the machinery of Government has been working. I raised this question in the Council of State and Mr. Raiseman of the Central Board of Revenue said—

“ About 25 years or more ago the effect of this on the soil became more marked, but nobody has yet discovered why or how it works or what exactly is the cause.”

You can very well imagine the plight of a country extending over 50 miles in length and 5 miles in breadth all occupied by small proprietors. The Government in spite of knowing that the area was becoming saline since the last forty years has not even tried to find out the cause of this process. I would submit that when I first raised this question in the Central Legislative Assembly in 1926 the Government of India promised to appoint an enquiry committee. A sort of a committee was appointed, but no report of that committee was either submitted or published. Later on, I again raised this question in 1930 and the Government of India replied that this was the concern of the local Government and not of the Central Government and that this question should therefore be raised in the local Government. When I raised this question again in the Council of State in 1935 the Government replied that they had asked the Punjab Government to depute a special officer to hold an enquiry as to how the area could be reclaimed. I would submit for the information of the House that in 1920 the Agriculture Department of the Punjab Government appointed one of its professors of the Lyallpur College, Dr. Lander, to tour in this area, to take samples of the soil and the saltish water and to report what action Government should take to reclaim the soil. But to my greatest shock and surprise 15 years after, that is in 1935, when I raised this question, the reply I received was that the Punjab Government were thinking of appointing a special officer to make enquiries as to what ought to be done. When I brought to the notice of the Government that a special officer had already reported on the matter I was told that the report of that officer was not traceable. Probably the Government was not even aware whether an officer had been appointed or not and whether he had submitted a report or not. They appointed Dr. Lander again in 1935 to make an enquiry and to report. Dr. Lander submitted his report in December 1935. After he had submitted his report in answer to a question asked by me in the Council of State the reply I received was that the Punjab Government were still considering the report and that they had not yet formulated their views. This is what Mr. Raiseman said—

“The officer has submitted his report to the Punjab Government and it is now being examined by that Government. A copy has in the meantime been furnished to the Government of India which are awaiting the results of the Punjab Government's examination. I am not yet in a position to say whether the report will be published or not and what action will be taken on it.”

This was on the 30th March, 1936.

I would submit that after the Government appointed a special officer to go and examine the particular area and submit a report as to what action should be taken to reclaim that area, is it fair that the Government should sit over such a report for such a number of years? The first time an officer was appointed for the purpose was in 1920 and it is now July 1937. Seventeen years have elapsed and yet no action has been taken on the report.

I do not want to take up the time of the House in narrating the most deplorable plight of the zamindars of that area. They cannot get drinking water. They have to travel five or six miles to get sweet drinking water. Government has been sitting still over this matter and has taken no action to afford relief to the people concerned. I notice a provision in the budget for a new item, that is for making research as to how to reclaim saltish area in Government farms. I am in a very lucky position that the Honourable Minister for Development very kindly paid a visit to that area, not for the set purpose of visiting that area, but because he happened to pass that area and he saw for himself the condition of the people there. I expected that he would do something in the matter. I think the damage to the lands of that area is due to some extent to the Khewra Salt Mines for which the Government should be held directly responsible, if not legally at least morally. When the Government of India is making an income of 40 lakhs from the Khewra Salt Mines it is due to them to make a substantial contribution towards the relief of the people there by way of providing an inundation canal for that area or some other means of irrigation. I acknowledge that the Government of India has sanctioned a sum of Rs. 50,000 to the Punjab Government to be spent over that area. But you can imagine what relief such a small sum can give to a country which is fifty miles long and five miles broad. Anyhow I would request the Punjab Government not only to take up this matter with the Government of India with a view to press upon it that it should make a more substantial contribution towards any schemes which the Punjab Government may decide to undertake, but also to depute some special officer of the Irrigation Department to examine various schemes which can be undertaken to reclaim that land. The Honourable Minister for Agriculture, if he will look up the files will find that the proposal for digging an inundation canal from the Jhelum from a point near Dharapur was under contemplation since 1901-02. Several estimates were prepared, but no scheme was put into action, probably because Government thought that as any such scheme would be a capital charge, the returns would not be equal to the interest which the Government would have to pay on the capital spent.

[Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan.]

Now the conditions have entirely changed. The last estimate was prepared in the year 1929 or, if I am not wrong, some time in 1926 or 1927 when the rates of labour and material were very high and when the rate of interest was also very high. If the Government will appoint some officer to examine the scheme, I am sure they will find that it is not a losing concern to give an inundation canal to the people of that area. The other scheme which the Government might undertake is this. There are hill torrents which bring saltish water down to the soil and spoil the lands. The origin of all these hill torrents is from springs which contain absolutely sweet water, but the water of these springs, in the course of flowing down the hills but before reaching the soil, passes over an area of the hills which is saltish and thus the water becomes saltish. If the Government can bring down the water over that little area without its touching the saltish soil, I think this water which is now responsible for spoiling the land will be of great use to the agriculturists for irrigation of the lands. No crops will grow on saltish soil and unless the Government treats such matters very seriously — I personally see no reason why it should not — no good will come out of it. I do not expect the Honourable Minister at this stage to discuss any schemes in detail or to tell me what he is going to do straight-away, but if he is prepared to give an undertaking that within a few months some officer or engineer or a committee will be appointed who will examine various schemes and the Government will lay on the table of this House a report of such officer, I am sure the Government will be putting into practice what they profess and genuinely feel — I mean the well-being of the province.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Lyallpur-cum-Jhang, General, Rural) (Urdu): Sir, the voice of a poor clarinet is drowned in the midst of the deafening noise made by the beating of drums in a drum-house. I am surrounded on one side, by the members of the zamindar party beside whom sit persons who can express their opinion very well but dare not vote against their party, and on the other side, I am surrounded by those who claim to be the stoutest champions of the cause of the peasantry of the Punjab. What can a person say amidst such hostile forces? Besides, it is difficult to say anything against or even to criticise an expenditure under the head of Agriculture simply because it bears the hall mark of agriculture, irrespective of the fact whether it is justified or unjustified, useful or useless, adequate or inadequate. Just imagine that in the year 1935-36 the amount spent on the Agricultural College and its Research Department was only Rs. 6,36,890 and in 1936-37 it was Rs. 6,30,000. But this year it has risen to Rs. 8,57,900. I am at a loss to understand, what has led to this sudden and tremendous increase. There is no need for spending more on research work now. The zamindar members themselves realize that whereas the research department has been doing useful work for the last 16 years, it has now reached a stage when expenditure on it appears to be out of all proportion to the advantages derived from it.

Boys after passing their B. A. or M. A. examination are not willing to work in the fields and that is why new appointments are created in the department of agricultural research. Every new Principal or new Director wants to create some new posts under him. Last year there was an increase of Rs. 2 lakhs in the expenditure but the grant paid by the Government of India has been stopped, which goes to prove that there is now no need for such further researches. Now we know that the Government of India is maintaining a Cotton Committee with a provincial branch in the Punjab. If the Government of India makes use of our money, where is the necessity for keeping a provincial branch and doing research work separately. Again the remedies suggested by the Department of Agriculture for coping with plant diseases are more expensive than the value of the crop. I have got a mango grove in Lyallpur. It is subjected to some kind of plant disease every year. I requested the Department of Agriculture to suggest some remedy. I was told that all the mango trees will have to be sprinkled with some drug, which will cost more than the value of the whole crop.

Besides this if the department can suggest some means for increasing the prices of agricultural produce it will be all to the good. Different qualities of cotton, e. g., 289 or L. S. S. or new seeds, which are the result of research, have not proved useful. The varieties of cotton produced here are not considered to be of standard quality; in Karachi or Bombay and they do not fetch the right prices there. What we need, therefore, is to produce cotton of the standard quality, unless this is done, no progress is possible. Every year there are new qualities and new standards of cotton. The L. S. S. variety of cotton was discovered at Lyallpur but in Karachi nobody cares a penny for it. As long as you do not produce cotton of a standard variety, no progress is possible.

There is only one way of raising the prices and it is this. Start new industries in the province. If the agriculturists are not willing to give lands to non-agriculturists, the latter should start industries at any cost. I am sure that the establishment of new industries will benefit all and sundry.

Mr. Speaker : In what language is the honourable member speaking ?

Seth Ram Narain Virmani : In Hindustani.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : It is the language which is spoken in our homes and in which we import words of English, Persian and I should say of some other languages as well.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani : I was submitting that in order to raise the prices of agricultural produce it is essential to start new industries in the province. I am surprised to find foreigners getting electrical energy at cheap rates, while we pay heavier rates for the same. On the other hand no steps are being taken to combat unemployment. How true is the saying that the word of the family physician is treated lightly, while that of an outsider is given undue weight. If you are not prepared to provide necessary facilities to the Punjabi non-agriculturists, the time has come for the Industries Department of the Government to take the work in hand and start industries of their own.

[SETH RAM NARAIN VIRMANI.]

The second point which I want to mention in this connection is that our zamindars do not put in sufficient amount of labour. I think that the story of the big landlord is not unknown to you, who while on his death-bed advised his son to dig his land deep and he will discover a hidden treasure. The son did so in the hope of discovering a treasure and at long last he understood the moral of his deceased father's word of advice.

Colonel Bruce and Mr. Brenford were granted land for starting a seed farm in Lyallpur. The tenants working on these estates are pretty well off. They are earning enough to pay land revenue and pass their days in comfort. I would request the Government to repeal the Land Alienation Act. If the Government acts upon my advice I am sure that people would be forthcoming to till the land and they would also be willing to pay the land revenue. Moreover, prices of land would be doubled. My next submission is this. The Honourable the Premier was pleased to remark the other day that communal questions should not be discussed here. In reply to this I would say "you are flourishing on the fat of the land, why do you not let others do the same?"

Minister for Revenue : May I draw your attention to the fact that the honourable member can speak very good English? Why does he not speak in English?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I would like him to make a statement that he cannot speak English.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Sir, I am only a matriculate. This morning Raja Sahib put a question to enquire whether the students of the Lyallpur College were being given any scholarships and if so, the principle on which such scholarships were awarded. No reply has been vouchsafed to that question. Let me tell you the amendment that has been made in the rules re the grant of scholarships from 1st April, 1937. It is that candidates must be sons of cultivators or land-owners cultivating or owning land within the civil division. May I inquire whether this amendment in the rules has taken place recently or whether it is an old one? Is it a fact that only bona fide agriculturists pay land revenue and other landholders do not? When you are admitting to the college the sons of zamindars, irrespective of the fact whether they are statutory agriculturists or not, why do you give scholarships to the former and not to the latter? Why are scholarships not being given on merit? Why should a student who has stood first in the examination be deprived of a scholarship and the same should be given to somebody else on the sole ground that the former is not a bona fide agriculturist? What can you expect from a department which is torn by internal dissensions and where such questions as Hindu versus Muslim and agriculturist versus non-agriculturist are cropping up at every stage?

Minister for Revenue (The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia) : I am intervening at this stage to give a reply to my friend Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan who has raised the question about the Khewra Salt Mines and the damage done by the mines to the lands of poor people.

While I have my fullest sympathy with the poor people who are suffering on account of the damage done to the crops—(A voice : Lip sympathy). May be lip sympathy in your view but according to my view real one. That is not for you to say.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Sir, the Honourable Member is not addressing the Chair. Is there anything more than lip sympathy ?

Minister for Revenue : I am not going to attend to the interruptions of my friends.

Mr. Speaker : I would request honourable members not to interrupt the Minister.

Minister for Revenue : I may point out to my friend that the damage done to this land is not due to the existence of these salt mines. That is proved by the statement which appears in the report of Dr. Lander, and I shall only read a portion of that, with your permission.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is that document public property ?

Minister for Revenue : It is for my use.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I have your ruling, Sir ?

Mr. Speaker : Is the Honourable Member prepared to place it on the table of the House ?

Minister for Revenue : I am only substantiating my point that the damage is not due exactly to the salt mines. It is immaterial whether I read it or not. I will simply say that in that report something of that nature has been said.

Mr. Speaker : Does the Honourable Minister propose to read it ?

Minister for Revenue : This is what is said in that report :

“ The trouble in my opinion will still exist even if the Salt Mines have not been worked.”

My friend has said that there was a previous report made by a certain officer. I understand that Dr. Lander has been engaged in investigating this problem for a long time. He started work in 1922 and his final report was received in 1936.

That report is going to be dealt with by the Department of Agriculture, and also by the Department of Irrigation which is under my charge. My friend has said that neither has this report been published nor has this report been looked into properly. The matter has been under the consideration of Government for a very long time and every endeavour is being made to solve this very difficult problem.

My honourable friend is aware of so many kassis which are running in the tracts and which are the cause of all this damage to the lands. There are 7 kassis which are running in this tract. As soon as the water comes to the lower ranges it gets mixed up with the salt that exists in the soil. Now salt is a commodity which is being used in the whole of India and it is such a useful commodity for the health of the people of the province and the whole of the country that one cannot say that this salt range should not have existed there. If this salt range had not been there, probably this land would not have been spoiled, but the question is how to remedy the matters. The only remedy that we can think of for removing this defect is that the water of these kassis should be stopped higher up and an outlet should be built up in such a way that the water should not get contaminated with the salt that exists there. Several schemes have been considered. My honourable friend has himself mentioned the canal which was going to be dug there. Probably he referred to the Jalalpur Canal. At first it was estimated that it would cost 45 lakhs but the second estimate was of more than 70 lakhs. I am indebted to my friend for these figures, because I have so little time that I could not have been able to look up these figures from the heavy files. In order to remove the complaint we must have fresh water. There are two ways of getting fresh water to drain this area. One is to train these kassis, build reservoirs and collect the water for the purpose of inundation and the second is to build up the canal. It is not therefore an easy matter to be solved at a moment's notice. I know that a good deal of time has been spent, but problems of this nature require long consideration and serious thought before Government can launch upon such undertakings. I can, however, assure my honourable friend that every endeavour would be made to take advantage of the facts that have been placed at the disposal of the Government by Dr. Lander. I am told that some officer of the Survey of India was also deputed for this work and he has made certain recommendations on the subject. There are three reports by that officer and probably there are three reports by Dr. Lander. I was referring to the latest report by Dr. Lander and this is going to be considered by the Government. I can assure my friend that this subject has my sympathy and we will do our best to meet the suggestion. Some say the area damaged is 80,000 acres and others say that it is only 16,000. There was a proposal also before the Government that land in Nili Bar or other colony projects to be built should be made available for these people who have suffered owing to the damage caused to their lands by the presence of salt. Probably as this land has been deforested and there are no trees, therefore, the land has become exposed to the action of water. When the water flows, the salt in the soil gets mixed up and the land suffers. All these kassis excepting one do not go down to the river but get absorbed in the land. I can assure my honourable friend that the matter would be looked into very carefully and we will take steps to appoint an officer to study the question and look into the reports that have been made to Government and make practicable suggestions. I think with this assurance he will withdraw his motion. (Hear, hear).

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Hoshiarpur West, General, Rural) (Urdu): Sir, before I proceed with my speech I would like to recite a verse, because I feel that whenever any suggestion is made by the Opposition, the members of the Unionist Party generally come forward and say that they have been in office only for two or three months. The verse fully applies to their case—

کہسنی اس شوخ کی کونسل کی طفلی ہو گئی
منتظر بہائینکے ہم جب تک شباب آنا نہیں

(Cheers).

Khan Bahadur Nawab Muzaffar Khan: The verse though good is not appropriate.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Consult some poet. I submit that students have been admitted in the Lyallpur College every year on the basis of communal representation. The same continues even now. It was said some-time back that with the inauguration of provincial autonomy communalism would be done away with. But we find that at present admissions to the Lyallpur College are being made on communal basis. In the first place the students were classified as agriculturists. Now a further differentiation has been made and that is, that so many Muhammadans, so many Sikhs and so many Hindus be admitted. Sometimes if the required number of qualified Muhammadan students is not forthcoming, students of the same community obtaining smaller number of marks are admitted. In this way reserved seats for them are filled. On the other hand the Hindu students who pass their examination in the first division are rejected on the ground that there is no room for them. In my opinion this is not fair. I would request Rao Bahadur Chaudhri Chhotu Ram to follow the example set by the Honourable Minister for Education, who has announced his policy to abolish communalism from the educational institutions of the province and I find ways and means for changing the present system of admission to the Lyallpur College.

I remember well that in the year 1934 a student stood first in the final examination of that College. It is generally the rule that the student who tops the list of successful candidates is either sent to a European University or to any prominent Indian University for higher education. But the poor fellow happened to be a non-agriculturist, and consequently he was not sent up for higher education, and was employed in that very college on Rs. 60 a month.

I am of the opinion that with the inauguration of provincial autonomy this division within division should not be tolerated. In the first place the distinction of agriculturist and non-agriculturist should be abolished, secondly, the reservation of seats for various communities should cease. In fact the students should not be admitted on communal basis. Again, when a student tops the list of successful candidates, no matter to which community he belongs, he should be treated as he deserves. I hope the Honourable Minister would carefully consider this suggestion and abolish communalism from the province.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang :—

[Ch. Kartar Singh.]

Hoshiarpur once ranked among the first class districts of the province on account of its fruit gardens. But now on account of the scarcity of water, they all have withered away. The level of sub-soil water has gone down and consequently the gardens do not receive an adequate supply of water. I would request the Honourable Minister to take some steps and depute some officers of the Department of Agriculture to inspect the spot and devise some means for raising the level of sub-soil water and thus saving the gardens from destruction and ruin. The zamindars of that ilaqa are poor people. Most of them live on the income they derive from their gardens. In view of this I would request the Honourable Minister to consider sympathetically the case of these hard pressed people.

In the end I request the Honourable Minister to adopt the suggestion that I have made merely for the sake of public welfare and not that he may be able to draw his salary from the provincial exchequer. He should try to know the real condition of the zamindars. Unless this proposed change is effected, no progress can be made. I would suggest that the expenditure of 34 or 35 lakhs of rupees should not be wasted in this way, but some useful purpose should be served by it.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani (Muzaffargarh North, Muhammadan, Rural) (Urdu). Mr. Speaker, yesterday when I was speaking on a cut motion on the grant under consideration, I had said that the silence of the Opposition was due to their lack of interest in the subject. I am sorry to have prompted my honourable friends to take part in the debate to-day by making those remarks as their speeches show that their silence was not only due to their lack of interest but also due to their ignorance of the subject. I was sorry to find that the honourable members sitting on the Opposition benches knew little about things that mattered and deeply concerned the majority of the population of this province. I was surprised at the remarks made by the honourable the Leader of the Opposition that the Agriculture Department has done nothing during the 25 years of its existence, and that they are doing no research work. I shall quote some facts and figures which will show how useful work this Department has done in the past for the province. First of all let me inform him that there exists a laboratory at Lyallpur since 1918 for research work under the charge of an Entomologist with a staff of about 14 assistants. The department has made researches on various varieties of crops, such as wheat, cotton, sugarcane, barley, gram, rice and oilseeds. As a result of their research and experiments we find many new varieties of improved seeds which suit different types of soils and climates and which give more yield per acre than the indigenous varieties. The selection of 8-A Wheat and production of cross 9-D and 591 Wheat have already proved their worth in the Punjab as they give at an average 2 to 5 maunds per acre more yield than the indigenous varieties. It is calculated that no less than 3 million acres are grown under improved wheats every year. If we calculate the increased yield of improved wheat over desi wheat at even 1 maund per acre, it means that the Punjab zamindars get every year an additional yield of 3 million maunds worth an additional 90 lakhs of rupees. This is the minimum estimate. In fact the average increased yield per acre is not less than 2 maunds per acre. The Agriculture Department is responsible for introducing American cotton in the Punjab. About 14 lakhs of acres are sown under American cotton every year in the Punjab. If we calculate the average yield even at a minimum of 6 maunds per acre it gives us a total annual yield of 84 lakhs of maunds. I have again taken the minimum yield as the average yield, for, American cotton varies between 8 to 10 maunds per acre. The American cotton gives at least about 2 maunds per acre more yield than the desi cotton but if we do not take this increase into account and only take into account a premium of 1 rupee per maund on the price of American cotton over that of the desi, it gives the zamindars of the province an additional income of Rs. 84 lakhs. The Agriculture Department has also introduced new varieties of desi and American cotton. 49 N. T. American cotton which has lately been introduced by the Department and which is proving very successful both with respect to yield and quality, will, I am sure, find a great demand in foreign markets and will favourably compare even with Egyptian cotton. The introduction of the Coimbatore sugarcane in the Punjab also goes to the credit of our Agriculture Department. We have at present about 2½ lakhs of acres under these improved varieties of cane. These improved varieties give an increased yield of at least 8 maunds of "gur" per acre over the indigenous sugarcane varieties. This gives us an additional yield of about 20 of lakhs maunds of gur worth about Rs. 50 lakhs. This will show that by the introduction of improved seeds of wheat, cotton and sugarcane alone the province has benefited to the extent of about two crores and a quarter of rupees the credit for which goes entirely to the Agriculture Department. The Department has, however, introduced after research, and experiments new varieties of barley, gram, oilseeds and green fodder which give a considerable more yield than the indigenous varieties. One of my honourable friends remarked that the Department has not been able to find remedy for the rice borer which destroys the rice crop. Let me tell him for his information, that the department has a rice farm at Kalashakkaku in Sheikhpura District where experiments have been made by the department to find a remedy for this disease and to find better seed varieties of rice which are less amenable to this pest. The result of this research has been very encouraging. The department has introduced certain early maturing varieties of rice which have less chance of being attacked by the rice borer. I have personally tried two of these varieties and have found them very satisfactory. The remedy suggested by the department to eradicate the rice borer pest has also been tried in my estate. If the field is ploughed after the cutting of the rice crop and the roots are collected and burnt, the next year's crop gets immunity from this pest. The department has made successful researches for sugarcane, fruit trees, wheat and other crop pests and has introduced effective remedies for the same. The Agriculture Department and its research section can only suggest remedies and it is up to the zamindars to take advantage of these useful experiments. If they do not take advantage of these suggestions, it is no fault of the Agriculture Department. Sir, I would not take the uncharitable view which has been taken by the Opposition about the Agriculture Department. I am sorry to say that we have not heard any constructive suggestion from the Opposition and as a Persian saying goes—

سخن ہمیں عالم بالا سے ماوم نشد

Their speeches have shown their complete ignorance about this department. But at the same time I must say that there is still much to be done and that there is a great scope for extending the work of Agriculture Department. The department should try to study the needs of the zamindars more closely and try to extend its activities and usefulness. Now, I would point out one serious defect with regard to the organization. We are told that the department has provided improved wheat seed last year, to the extent of about 2 lakhs and 20 thousand maunds. The distribution of seed is made in a haphazard manner and there is no organised scheme for this purpose. The result is that full advantage is not being achieved. If the seed is distributed in a systematic way, we can get much better results. I would put forward a concrete suggestion in this connection. Sir, I would suggest that a certain area should be selected in each district according to the share of seed available for that district. The owner or owners of the land should be given the seed on the condition that the seed advanced will be returned at the next harvest to the department and that the whole produce for that year will also be surrendered to the department at the market rate. The department should distribute the available seed to other owners on the same condition. If this is done we can have nothing but improved variety of wheat throughout the province within 5 years. In Muzaffargarh district 47 per cent. of the total cultivated area is sown under wheat, that is, 3,213,088 acres of land is sown under wheat each year. If 3,000 maunds of improved wheat seed is allotted to Muzaffargarh district it will suffice for 3,000 acres of land. If the average yield is calculated at 8 maunds per acre, 24,000 maunds of wheat seed will be available for the district next year. In the second year 4,000 maunds should be given to 2 or three zamindars to be returned in kind at the next harvest and the balance of 20,000 maunds should be available for other cultivators in exchange of their desi wheat on the same condition. This will give us 160,000 maunds of wheat in the 3rd year. After paying 20,000 maunds for the seed requirements of those who got the seed for the 2nd year we will have a surplus of 140,000 for distribution to other cultivators in exchange of their own wheat; and in the 4th year, we will have more than sufficient wheat for the total seed requirement of the district. In this manner, within five years, we would have discarded all the old wheat and replaced it by pure improved wheat. After 5 years the Government should provide that no remission (Kharaba) should be given on wheat crop if the land is not sown with improved variety of wheat seed and this will ensure a pure crop. In this case we can improve the income of the zamindars. Even if we do not count the increased yield which will result by the improved varieties of seed and take into account only the premium on price at the rate of 4 annas per maund, the zamindars in Muzaffargarh district alone will get about Rs. 6,42,676 per annum, which is almost equal to their total land revenue demand. The same principle may apply to the distribution of sugarcane and other seeds. If we work in an organized manner we can improve the quality of our produce within a reasonable time and thus ensure a considerable more income to the zamindars. Sir, I have a few more important suggestions to make to the Honourable Minister for Development with regard to the marketing of the agricultural produce and wish to draw his attention to certain evil practices and defective mandi usages which exist in the Punjab; but the time at my disposal is very short. I have received indications from you to wind up my speech; I shall therefore discuss these things with the Honourable Minister in private. But before I resume my seat I would like to answer my friend Chaudhri Kartar Singh who recited a verse and tried to apply it to my party. I would answer him in a verse, and it is this—

خود تجھ کو مٹا دے گا آئے ہر شباب انکا

(Cheers).

I would ask my friends on the Opposition to wait and see as to what our party does for the masses of the Punjab and when our programme is translated into practice, which I am sure, will not be very long, the people will be able to judge for themselves that it is the best programme for the country and for the uplift of the masses. (Loud Cheers).

[Ch. Krishna Gopal Dutt.]

Agriculture Commission. He said, " We have our depressed classes in India ; we too have our depressed industries and agriculture is unfortunately one of them." I would appeal to the Honourable Minister for Development to study the world factors which control agriculture. I would say that it is not in his hands, it is in the hands of the Unionist party, to develop agriculture in this province under the circumstances, and I do not want to condemn them for the things that they cannot do. It is regrettable that every time we speak on any motion, honourable members sitting opposite get up and say that we have not put before the House any constructive suggestions. Even today my honourable friend, Khan Bahadur Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani said the same thing even when the Leader of the Opposition gave so many constructive proposals and suggestions to the Honourable Minister. (Hear, hear and applause). But what is the use of putting constructive proposals before the House? When we approach the Honourable Minister and put certain concrete proposals before him, do you know what we are told? We are told that the Government have got no money. Will the Minister for Agriculture please attend to what I am saying? When we approach the Honourable Minister for Agriculture with certain concrete proposals he tells us that the Government are handicapped, that the Government have no money, that he has got no control over certain factors. What a shame it is in our province, what a shame it is in our country, that whereas they have got money to maintain a huge army so that the whole nation may be kept in bondage, whereas they can spend one lakh a day to further their forward policy across the North-Western Frontier, they have no money for agricultural purposes! (Hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member will please speak to the motion and wind up.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : I am speaking to the motion. It is the duty of the Honourable Minister for Agriculture to inform the Government of India of all these handicaps. As I said, even under the provincial autonomy, we are handicapped and he should try his best to remove those obstacles ; it is his primary duty to shatter those shackles to pieces. One of the most important points to which I want to draw the attention of the House is this. It is the considered opinion of the Opposition as well as of every nationalist in India that agriculture in this country and even in this province cannot be developed so long as the currency and the exchange policy is what it is today. On the very first day we drew the attention of the Government to this question, not only we but my honourable friend Sardar Ujjal Singh and certain other honourable members on the other side also drew the attention of the House and that of the Honourable Finance Minister to this question. It is a very important question and I have got this opportunity today again to invite the attention of this House to this matter. It is not a small matter ; it is not a minor matter ; it is a very important matter and I repeat that there can be no development of agriculture in this province and in India unless and until there is a radical change in the currency and exchange policy of the Government of India. We as well as Sardar Ujjal Singh requested the Honourable the Finance Minister on the floor of the House to protest against this policy and inform the Government of India accordingly.

But the Honourable the Finance Minister said that he was not prepared to do that because he believed that that would not help. I want to inform the House to-day that we were very much disappointed to hear that. We know the Finance Minister—I am sorry he is not here—is academically an able man, but how can he feed the hungry people and the poor peasants with dictionaries, with cross word puzzles and with high flown language? Sir, it may be recalled that even men like Sir Zafrullah Khan and other members of the Unionist Party brought this question before the Punjab Legislative Council. Sir, only the other day Sardar Ujjal Singh in the course of his speech on budget discussion urged upon the Government to bring it to the notice of the Government of India. But the Finance Minister refused to move in the matter and he did not agree with the nationalist view of the question. If those are his views then I make bold to say that the finances of this province are not in safe hands. I fear this opinion of mine may not reverberate outside this House. I think it will not be put on the wires and so may not be published; but I would take the earliest opportunity when I go to the Punjab, to tell the people that their industry cannot be advanced, that their agriculture cannot be advanced, because our Finance Minister holds anti-national views on the subject. Sir, the two most important agricultural countries in the world are Australia and New Zealand. Their Governments saved their poor peasants from economic catastrophe by making a 25 per cent. devaluation in their currency. Until and unless we do resort to that sort of devaluation in our currency we cannot make any industrial or agricultural progress. Our currency is pegged to a foreign currency over which we have got no control. The policy which is being followed with respect to our currency is essentially British policy; it is not the Indian policy. It is not in the interest of India. I am glad that Sir Chhotu Ram to a certain extent shares my views. The other day he stated that he would secure as much protection as possible for the industries of the Punjab.

Mr. Speaker : But let him have an opportunity to give a reply.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Sir, these are yet only the general remarks which I have made. The Honourable Minister will have ample time to reply.

Mr. Speaker : No. There is not enough time.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : I have given so much time and attention to the study of this subject and I have collected mass of figures and details in order to show to the Government that agriculture in this province is not progressing. I will now hurry up and will give only a few instances. The honourable member referred to Indian sugar. But he does not realise that the population in this province has increased by leaps and bounds and—

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : Sir, I rise on a point of order. If the Chair finds that the Honourable Minister will not have enough time to give a reply to the various speakers, is he not entitled to accept a closure?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is the honourable member the guardian of the Minister?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : Is it not open to the Chair?

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : The honourable member is only wasting the time of the House. I have collected facts and figures with respect to rice, wheat, gram, maize, barley, etc., etc., but I have now no time to place these facts before the House. I was saying that in our province population is increasing by leaps and bounds and the supply of foodstuffs is not in proportion to that increase. This is a very serious problem before the province. So far as the export of wheat is concerned it is practically finished. So far as the export of cotton is concerned, it is face to face with a new danger from Japan. I dwelt on this point during the budget discussion.

Let us take the figures for rice. You will find, Sir, that in 1935-36 in thousand tons the total out-turn in the Punjab was 464·9 as against 526·9 in 1933-34 and in 1916-17 it was 591·3. Is that a symptom of development of agriculture in the province? The total out-turn of wheat in 1935-36 was 3,052·3. (Voices : Question be now put). Honourable members perhaps do not want to listen to the criticism directed against the Agriculture Department. I was giving those figures. I will omit about gram, barley, etc. I wanted to show that the cultivated area has decreased and the total out-turn has also decreased and that it is out of proportion to the increase of population in this province. In 1935-36 the total out-turn of wheat in thousand tons was 3,052·3, as against 3,781·2 in 1929-30. In 1923-24 it was 3,535·0 and in 1921-22 it was 3,644·1.

I would give only one instance and then resume my seat. The honourable member who is very fond of whispering, hissing and interrupting, should compare our province with Japan, and before we compare we must realise that the total cultivated area in the Punjab is 47 per cent. while in Japan only 15½ per cent. is cultivated. Japan has a slightly larger area than that of the Punjab, while Japan maintains a population 2½ times as large as that of the Punjab. To mention only one commodity, production of rice, in little more than 30 years, has increased by 63 per cent. The Honourable Minister and the House will realise that there is 15½ per cent. of the cultivated area in Japan while it is 47 per cent. cultivated area in our Province. There they have got bigger population while we have got less population : it is 2½ times more than our population. Out of 63 per cent. increase only 17 per cent. is due to expansion of cultivation. There is not much scope for expansion of cultivated area in our province. I would bring it to the notice of the Honourable Minister that what is required in our province is not expansion but intensification of cultivation. I do not believe that the Punjab peasant is inherently dwarfed in knowledge and enterprise. I believe that given efficient organisation, modern tools as well as modern instruction in farming, the Punjab peasant can rise to the same level as his brethren in foreign lands. It is not the fault of the peasant. It is the fault of the Government. I would appeal to the Government to take steps for the intensification of crop and for the intensification of food stuffs because we are face to face with a terrible danger of increased population and possible shortage of food. With these words, Sir, I resume my seat.

Minister for Development (The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : Sir, I am very glad that the honourable members who gave notice of certain cut motions agreed yesterday not to move their motions. This agreement has given the House an opportunity to speak at length on an important cut motion under which a comprehensive review of the department as a whole was possible. The members of the Opposition have complained that they have not had their fair share of time to give expression to their views. As a matter of fact it is the ministerial party and particularly the Minister in charge of the department who has much greater reason to complain about the unfair working of the rules than the honourable members opposite.

I am sure that more than half the time has been taken up by the members of the Opposition and considerably less than half by the ministerial benches. (An honourable member : What about yesterday ?) Even yesterday I kept waiting in the hope that the Opposition would come out with their views. I do not like to stifle their views. As a matter of fact I would like the most severe criticism, even ruthless criticism rather than absence of criticism. I am a full believer, as I remarked yesterday, in wakeful and vigilant Opposition. (Hear, hear.) If the Opposition is vigilant the ministerial party has also to be vigilant. That is a proposition in which I have firm faith. Unfortunately, I have not got enough time, and so I shall have simply to run through my facts and figures, but before I quote figures bearing on this motion I will just make one or two observations with regard to certain statements that have been made by the members of the Opposition. If any of the other statements made by any of the members of the Opposition on the floor of the House remain unanswered, let it not be supposed that I agree or that I disagree with the Opposition in those particular points. There may be some statements with which I am in full sympathy, and there may be others, the accuracy or soundness of which I will refuse to acknowledge. But there are one or two mis-statements which I wish to clear up. One statement was made by Mr. Virmani that cotton L.S.S. was being neglected in Karachi, that nobody would look at it, and that it was not fetching any price. My information is that this particular variety of cotton was fetching a premium of Rs. 2 per maund of kapas over desi and Re. 1 per maund over 3F (An honourable member : At present.) during the cotton season.

Now, I will draw the attention of the House to certain figures which will be a sufficient answer to the various charges that have been brought forward by various members of the Opposition. I will begin from the improvement that has been made in the yield of milk. In 1914-15 a dairy farm was started at the Lyallpur Agricultural College. At that time the daily average of milk per cow was only 5.5 lbs. In 1936 the average yield rose to 17.14 lbs. This means more than three times the average with which we had to be content in 1914-15. Coming to cotton, the total area under it is 2,802,747. Out of this, 1,800,457 acres are under the Punjab American, and 1,497,290 acres under desi cotton. I may also tell the House that more than half the area under desi cotton is under improved desi variety. The premium fetched per maund of kapas by the Punjab American cotton ranged during the year 1935-36 between Rs. 1-6-0 and Rs. 2-6-0. The additional income on account of the premium fetched by improved varieties of cotton and on account of the enhanced produce of the province in a single year is 260 lakhs. I think I can fairly claim that if these improved varieties had not appealed to the people or had not fetched a premium the peasantry would not have taken to the use of the improved seed of cotton so easily as it seems obviously to have done.

[Minister for Development.]

I shall now come to wheat. The total area under wheat in 1935-36 was 9,300,139 acres. More than one-third of this area was again under improved varieties, and the additional income to the zamindars of the province on account of enhanced produce was no less than 213 lakhs. As regards sugarcane, the total area under cultivation was 474,200 acres. (An honourable member : All this is mere repetition. These figures were quoted by Mr. Virmani.) No, his figures weren either precise nor complete. The total area under sugarcane was 474,200 acres and that under Coimbatore varieties was 226,300 acres. The additional income in consequence of an enhanced produce of gur was no less than 91·5 lakhs. Thus under these three main money crops the additional income will be between five and six crores. Again, improvement has also been made in respect of maize. This improvement is simply surprising. The seed that has been developed by the department has given a maximum yield of 44·5 maunds per acre as against a produce of 25·75 maunds of the old variety (Interruption). If my friend would care to look at the report of the Agricultural Department for 1935-36 he will find all these figures.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : In 1935-36 the total out-turn was 382·5 as against 411·6 in 1934-35. These are the figures taken from the Agricultural Statistics of the Punjab.

Minister for Development : But my figures relate to maximum yields per acre. Even fodder has not been neglected. The Department of Agriculture has been able to introduce new varieties of fodder which give very high yields, providing green fodder for cattle practically throughout the year.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : On a point of order. The Honourable Minister is supplying false information to the House—

Minister for Development : I protest against that remark.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is entitled to correct a speaking member's facts and figures, if the latter gives way. Otherwise he should wait till the former finishes his speech.

Minister for Development : Now, in respect of rice, the department has been able to develop three very good new varieties. These varieties give very high yields of rice of very good quality. Oilseeds, such as rapeseed, toria, mustard, linseed, have all been materially improved. I may also draw the attention of the House to the introduction of an entirely new crop in the Punjab, namely groundnut. In the sandy soil of parts of Ludhiana and Jullundur a very poor yield of moth alone could be raised. Now the moth crop has been replaced by groundnut, and the House will be pleasantly surprised to learn that while in 1930 the cultivation of groundnut was entirely unknown, the area under that crop has risen during the course of five years to 13,252 acres.

Potatoes have not been neglected either. We used to import our seed from Bihar, but fortunately the Department of Agriculture has been able to develop a seed in the Kangra Valley which we can use on the plains and which we can supply to various places in the Punjab at practically half the cost. The yield of seed is distinctly higher than the yield given by the Bihar seed.

We have been able to develop two varieties of tobacco—one is the hugga tobacco and the other is the cigarette tobacco. Both the yield and quality of these two varieties are better than we used to get before.

Fruit has not been neglected, and if my friend were to pay a visit to special farms which are being maintained by private gentlemen he would find that during the last ten years there has been a remarkable progress. The Honourable Leader of the Opposition made a reference to the neglect on the part of the Department of Agriculture in respect of poultry. I think that he is not sufficiently well informed on the point. There is a poultry expert working under the Department of Agriculture who has shown encouraging results.

Even bee-keeping has been attended to. Apiaries have been established in Nagrota in the district of Kangra and when I paid a visit recently to that district I learnt that the zamindars in the neighbourhood were taking keen interest in it and they were taking to this industry in larger numbers than they ever did before.

With regard to the supply of seed, I may inform the House that no less than 101,200 maunds of pure seed of wheat were supplied by the department in the year 1935-36, and as much as 50,900 maunds of cotton seed of a pure kind were supplied by the department to the zamindars, in the same year.

A complaint was also made with respect to lack of research work being done in the Lyallpur Agricultural College. My friends who raised the complaint on the score of research being neglected, would perhaps be glad to hear that a very important research has been made and the result is of a very far reaching character, i.e., a process has been discovered for the reclamation of kallar salts. The House will be astonished to know when I tell them that the land which yielded only two maunds of rice per acre in the year 1930, yielded as much as 20 maunds per acre during the year 1935.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : These resources are not available to all.

Minister for Development : The process is very simple indeed. My friend Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath does not know that the only process which need be resorted to is to have a rotation of rice and berseem as a rotation crop. Berseem crop should be raised as a rotation crop and used as a green manure.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : I am trying that. I thought the Honourable Minister was referring to something else.

Minister for Development : The result of the experiment made by the Department of Agriculture is that instead of two maunds you can get twenty maunds of rice per acre.

Another complaint was made that nothing was being done in those areas where sweet water was scarce. I would cite one instance to show that so far as the department is concerned, it has been fully alive to its duties in this respect. In the district of Mianwali sweet water has been discovered at a depth of 630 feet. I may also tell Pandit Shri Ram Sharma, who had a cut motion in his name regarding well-boring operations, that a bore was sunk to a depth of over 600 feet in the Rohtak district as well, in fact in the District Farm (hear, hear). Another bore was sunk in village Moondsa in Jhajjar tahsil.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : What was the result ? Have you been able to find sweet water there ?

Minister for Development : Not in Rohtak.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : There is not much of sweetness there.

Minister for Development : There is another severe disease of gram which used to work havoc in the Campbellpur district. A few years ago it totally destroyed the gram crop in some places and destroyed the crop to the extent of 80 per cent. in others. During the last three or four years active steps were taken to combat the disease and the result was that the loss was brought down to 5 per cent. Unfortunately that disease has reappeared again this year and has spread from the Campbellpur district to the Gurdaspur district in the East and Jhang district in the West.

Sardar Sampuran Singh : What is that disease ?

Minister for Development : It is Gram Blight. In the end I would request the members of the Opposition to peruse the last Report of the Department of Agriculture, i.e., the report for the year 1935-36. (Voices : It has not been supplied to us.) If they had read it a little more carefully, they would not have made the wild statements they have regarding neglect on the part of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the demand be reduced by Rs. 100.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That a sum not exceeding Rs. 34,17,500 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Agriculture.

The motion was carried.

- (a) whether the Government is aware of the fact that after realizing the necessity of water supply to the villages Matore, Mara, Nalla Brahmanan, Bhamnial and Latori Syadan in the Kahuta tahsil of the Rawalpindi district, it took an initiative of sinking a well at Matore and did actually start the work ;

(a) the estimate according to Government of the damage done to crops by hailstorm at the last rabi crop in the Jullundur district, particularly in tahsil Nawanshahr ;

(b) the nature of relief given to the sufferers of that area ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The damage caused by the hailstorm was inappreciable except in some four villages of the Nakodar tahsil.

(b) A remission of land revenue amounting to Rs. 599-15-3 was granted.

DISTRICT BOARD, LUDHIANA AND REPAIRS OF ROADS.

441. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) if he is aware that Nanak Singh road in the Ludhiana Rakh is to be repaired at a cost of Rs. 5,000 ;
- (b) whether the road in question is five furlongs in length ;
- (c) whether the rural population will derive any benefit from the repairs of this road ;
- (d) whether it is a fact that Machiwala Samral, Samrala-Khanna, Jugrdan-Rakh and Dakha-Raikot roads require immediate repairs ;
- (e) whether it is a fact that the Rakh gardens are being maintained at a considerable expense by the District Board ;
- (f) whether any travelling allowance has been paid to the Chairman, Ludhiana District Board, for the inspection of the roads recently made in the district ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes, but at a cost of Rs. 4,200.

(b) Yes. The District Board receives a grant of Rs. 800 per annum for the maintenance of the Rakh roads. As the average expenditure on these roads for some years past has been Rs. 300 per annum the District Board has saved about Rs. 4,500 out of the grant for the last 9 years. This road was in an extremely bad condition, hence the board decided to renew it after more than 7 years.

(c) Yes.

(d) 16½ miles on the Ludhiana-Samrala, Ludhiana-Malerkotla, Dakha-Raikot, and Jagraon-Raikot roads are being renewed this year, while about half a mile only of Rakh road is being renewed.

(e) No.

(f) No.

Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : How does the rural population benefit by the maintenance of this road ?

Minister : The question does not arise. I have already explained that the road is being repaired out of the special grant for that road.

Sardar Kapoor Singh : Will he transfer the road to the municipal committee, when the rest of the area round-about the Rakh is under the municipal committee ?

Mr. Speaker : That is a request for action and not a supplementary question.

Minister : Neither does it arise out of the answer.

DISTRICT BOARD, LUDHIANA AND REPAIRS OF RAKH ROADS.

NANAK SINGH ROAD IN LUDHIANA RAKH.

442. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that tenders were called on the day the resolution about the repairs of the Nanak Singh road was passed ;
- (b) under whose orders the tenders were called ;
- (c) whether the Chairman was present in the meeting when the resolution to name the road as Nanak Singh was passed ;
- (d) whether the Government proposes to take any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) No.

(b) Tenders are called as a matter of course by the District Engineer when the estimate is sanctioned, vide rule 44 (1) of the District Board Account Code.

(c) No.

(d) No action is called for on the part of Government.

COMPLAINTS OF CORRUPTION AGAINST POLICE IN LUDHIANA.

443. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state the names of the police officers against whom complaints of corruption were made during the time of the present Superintendent of Police, Ludhiana, and the number of officers out of them who were punished by the Superintendent of Police ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : The phrase "complaints of corruption" is a wide and indefinite one. If it can be given any meaning at all, it must presumably be taken as including every kind of petition, written or verbal, containing allegations of dishonesty. The honourable member will realise that it would be impracticable to prepare anything like a complete list of such complaints made to the Superintendent of Police, Ludhiana, during the last two and a half years, or for that matter to any other officer in a similar position. I am, however, placing on the table a list of the more important complaints of actual bribery made to the present Superintendent of Police since he has been in that appointment, showing the action taken. It is not the usual practice to give names in replying to questions of this kind, but the rank of the various officials concerned is indicated in the statement :—

REMISSION IN ZIRA TASHIL.

444. Syed Amjad Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue please state the amount of remission given to the villagers of tahsils Zira and Moga on account of damage done to crops by hailstorms ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The honourable member's question is not clear inasmuch as he does not specify the period to which he refers nor whether he wishes to know about remissions of land revenue or abiana or both. Rupees 3,502 were remitted for land revenue and abiana on account of damage caused by the hailstorms of April last.

RECRUITMENTS SINCE MARCH, 1937.

445. Syed Amjad Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to lay on the table a list of posts in all the departments of Government filled since 31st March, 1937, and the number of persons community-wise appointed to these posts ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret the answer to this question is not yet ready.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do I understand the Honourable Premier to say that communal questions would not be answered on the floor of this House ?

Premier : As a matter of fact, this information is published in a consolidated statement every year. It will be unwise giving that information earlier.

NEW ENTRANTS TO GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

446. Syed Amjad Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to lay on the table a list of new entrants communitywise recruited from 1st January, 1937, to 31st March, 1937, to fill the previously existing posts in different Government departments excluding the inferior staff ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret the answer to this question is not yet ready.

AREA OF AGRICULTURAL LAND AND ITS PRICE.

447. Syed Amjad Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue please lay on the table a list showing :—

(a) the area in acres of agricultural land belonging to Government in each district ;

(b) the approximate price of the above-mentioned land calculating it at the present market rate ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The collection of this information would require an amount of time and labour out of all proportion to the results obtainable and I regret Government do not feel justified in calling for it.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether it is not possible for the Government to collect statistics regarding their own particular position and the amount and price of the land they possess ?

Minister : I cannot add anything to what I have already said.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister whether the Government have considered the possibility of floating a loan on the basis of their net assets ?

Mr. Speaker : A supplementary question can be asked only when an answer has been given and facts stated in the answer require further elucidation. When no answer is given a supplementary question cannot arise.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of order, Sir. What I was attempting to ask is this. The answer given is that this information would require too much labour and involve too much cost to collect statistics. I am suggesting out of this very question that it is desirable.

Mr. Speaker : If the honourable member takes it as an answer then certainly he can put supplementary questions.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it not desirable for the Government to let us know what their assets are ?

(No answer).

Lala Duni Chand : Silence also requires sometimes elucidation.

Minister : The list of all nazul lands is already there and there is no need to collect further statistics.

DAMAGE BY HAILSTORM IN AMRITSAR DISTRICT.

448. Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether the Government is aware that hailstorm has completely damaged the crops of the villages Pandori Ransih, Pandori Sidhwan, Pandori Takhtmal, Pandori Kahamana and Pandori Hasan in the Amritsar district ?
- (b) whether the people of those villages applied to the authorities concerned for enquiry and remission of land revenue ;
- (c) whether certain officers went to report on the damaged crops ;
- (d) whether they recommended any remission to the Government ; if so, what ;
- (e) what action the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Government's information is that some damage to crops was so caused in all these villages except village Pandori Hasan. Nowhere were the crops completely damaged.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) It is against constitutional practice to divulge such reports.

(e) Government have already issued general instructions for the grant of relief on uniform lines in all affected areas all over the province and these instructions are being carried out. I may mention that in the Amritsar district as a whole a special remission of Rs. 4,283 of land revenue and Rs. 10,022 in abiana, was granted on account of damage caused by hailstorm and gram-blight. Separate figures for individual villages are not yet available but have been called for.

 SUSPENSION OF LAND REVENUE.

449. Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that in some parts of the province the realization of land revenue had to be suspended during the last few years ;
- (b) if so, the total amount so suspended and the reasons which led to the suspension of this amount of land revenue ;
- (c) the amount of the suspended land revenue recovered and the period after which it was recovered ;
- (d) whether any interest was charged on the amount suspended and afterwards realized ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) A statement is laid on the table. Suspensions were granted to afford relief from seasonal calamities, and recoveries were made after different periods with due regard to the paying capacity of the crops.

(d) No.

[Minister for Revenue.]

INTRODUCTION OF REVISED SCALE OF PAY AND ESTIMATE OF SAVING.

450. Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan: Will the Honourable Minister for Finance be pleased to state—

- (a) the total saving effected hitherto by the introduction of the revised scale of pay for the subordinate services ;
- (b) the total saving that will be effected when all the employees entitled to old rates of pay retire ;
- (c) the approximate time it would take the employees entitled to old rates of pay to retire ?

The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal: (a) The revised scales of pay for subordinate services came into effect from the 1st April, 1937. Information in regard to the saving, which has accrued cannot be collected without an amount of labour which will be incommensurate with the value of the result to be achieved.

(b) The old scales of pay having been reduced by a percentage varying from 15 to 25 considerable savings are bound ultimately to result. An exact figure cannot be given, as it is not possible to say what the total pay bill will be at a future date when all employees entitled to the old rates of pay have retired.

(c) Generally speaking, the old rates of pay apply to those who were appointed to a Government post in a permanent substantive capacity before the 1st January, 1931. As a Government servant does not ordinarily retire until he has attained the age of 55 years, it is likely that even 25 years hence there will be some employees entitled to the old rates of pay.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state the minimum pay which has not been affected by this cut in salaries ?

Minister : I think I placed certain papers on the table the other day which contain full information. If the honourable member wishes to have any further information, formal notice may be given.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID IN LAHORE.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state whether he is aware of the fact that there is a serious epidemic of typhoid fever in the city of Lahore ; if so, the measures that have been taken so far to check it and whether he proposes to appoint a special Public Health Officer and an Advisory Committee of medical practitioners to combat it ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : Yes. In addition to routine measures adopted at the time of such an epidemic the Municipal Medical Officer of Health, Lahore, has taken steps to disinfect effectively water supply where considered necessary, to abate fly nuisance, to control the sale of articles of food and drink and to offer free inoculation to the public. 1,674 T. A. B. inoculations have been performed by a special officer detailed for the purpose by the Lahore municipal administration. Day to day progress of the infection is being watched most carefully and the situation is well under control. There appears to be no necessity of appointing an Advisory Committee of medical practitioners to combat the epidemic. The best help that the medical practitioners can offer is by displaying greater vigilance than in the past in reporting promptly cases of the disease with which they become cognizant and see that the instructions issued by the Public Health Department are widely circulated and are carried out properly under their practice.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether the municipal committee has taken any steps to disinfect milk supply of Lahore ?

Minister : No, Sir.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister whether he can give us figures of typhoid cases day to day during the last week ?

Minister : I have asked for this information. I understand that the information is on its way. It has not yet reached me.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister how he has come to the conclusion that the situation is well under control, inspite of the fact that he does not know the actual figures ?

Minister : This is the report that we have received from the Medical Officer of Health.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister please give the number of cases that have proved fatal ?

Minister : I have already submitted that this information has been asked for and has not yet reached me.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Is it a fact that typhoid is spreading in the province, even outside Lahore ?

Minister : I am not aware of that.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister aware that an equally serious epidemic is prevalent in Rawalpindi ?

Minister : I have no information.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether it is not the duty of the Government, when serious epidemics of this nature start in the Punjab or in Lahore, to take necessary steps and make enquiries as to whether the situation is serious or not ?

Minister : The Medical Officers and their staff are there to combat with it. As regards Rawalpindi, I will make enquiries.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it a fact that cholera has broken out in different parts of the Punjab ?

Minister : This does not arise from this question.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Is it a fact that typhoid cases have occurred in Lyallpur as usual ? If so, what action has been taken so far ?

Minister : I am not aware.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : Is it a fact some cases have also occurred in Amritsar ?

Minister : I am not aware.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Will the Honourable Minister for Education please state whether he is aware of the fact that T. A. B. inoculations have proved ineffective in preventing the epidemic ?

Minister : No, Sir.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Will the Honourable Minister please take care to collect facts and figures relevant to this question ?

Minister : Certainly.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether it is a fact that milk is the chief carrier of typhoid fever infection ?

Minister : Yes, Sir.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Then, will he please state whether he is prepared to enquire from the municipal committee as to why they have not taken measures to control the milk supply ?

Minister : They have taken this measure and my reply includes the control of the sale of articles of food and drink and the milk is an article of drink.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will you please look to the answer : "The Municipality has taken measures to protect the food from flies" ?

Minister : No, 'Control'. That is a different thing altogether.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Then what are the measures taken ?

Minister : Proper measures have been taken.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : What are the measures ?

(No answer.)

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Minister aware that the Ministry is completely out of touch with the serious situation arising in the Punjab out of the prevalence of typhoid ?

Minister : No, Sir. I may tell the honourable members that the Director of Public Health is proceeding to join a conference at Java and it was the intention of the Government not to make any officiating arrangements. But now on account of these factors that have come to their notice Government has decided to make an officiating arrangement and the details are in the hands of those officers. The ministry is not expected to carry these figures.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it a fact that the Honourable Minister is not aware of the prevalence of typhoid in many important towns in the Punjab ?

Mr. Speaker : His answers speak for themselves.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Is the Honourable Minister for Education aware of the fact that certain persons who have got typhoid bacillus in their intestines do not contract typhoid ?

Mr. Speaker : That is a scientific question.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Mr. Speaker, it is a very important point.

Mr. Speaker : I disallow the question.

OKARA WORKERS' STRIKE.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Will the Honourable Minister

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of order, Sir. May I request you to give a ruling whether it is competent for the honourable member to ask a private notice question unless that question has been circulated to the members of the House ?

Mr. Speaker : A short notice questions is circulated to honourable members if time permits.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state whether his attention has been invited to the alleged unauthorised beating of the workers at Okara which has precipitated a strike ; if so, the action that has been taken or is proposed to be taken by the Government ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : Yes. An officer of the department of Industries has been directed to proceed to the spot at once and submit a report as soon as possible.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : When was the order sent ?

Minister : I passed the order the very first thing this morning.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the honourable member as to when the facts relating to the strike came to his notice ?

Minister : I only heard informally from an honourable member of this House three days ago.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister why notice having been taken of the strike, a man was not sent three days ago ?

Minister : Because the information was conveyed to me only in an informal manner.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that newspapers also contained representations of the strikers and notice of actions having been taken against the strikers ?

Minister : They had it.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the Honourable Minister read the newspapers ?

Minister : Yes, whenever I find time.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Did he not find this report in the newspapers and if he found it why did he not send a man down after he read it ?

Minister : Frequently reports in newspapers turn out to be incorrect.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister whether it is a fact that because the matter is brought to his notice by a member of the Unionist Party therefore a man is sent down ?

Minister : No.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Then why was he not sent earlier ?

(No answer).

MOTION FOR ADJOURNMENT.

STRIKE IN SUTLEJ MILLS LIMITED, OKARA.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Hoshiarpur West, General, Rural (Urdu): Sir, I beg to ask for leave to make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the serious situation created by the strike of labourers in the Sutlej Mills Limited, Okara, the assault on peaceful strikers causing personal injuries to some of them and the failure of the police authorities to enquire into the matter.

Mr. Speaker : How many persons were injured ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : About 20 persons have received injuries. Some of them have been seriously injured and are being treated by Government doctors.

Mr. Speaker : How many persons made the assault ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Some three dozen men belonging to the mill authorities attacked the labourers. I have been to the scene of occurrence and I have come to know that the police has not investigated into the matter ?

Mr. Speaker : What weapons were used ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : As far as I have been able to ascertain, 'lathis' were used and the pity of it is that the labourers were subjected to a lathi charge when they were lying in a peaceful manner, 6 hours after of the strike.

Mr. Speaker : Was any complaint made to the local authorities ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : But no investigation seems to have been made by the sub-inspector of police about those who inflicted injuries on the labourers. At present an extra assistant commissioner is in charge of the situation. But previous to that police did not take any action upon the report of poor labourers. The said extra assistant commissioner told me that now he was duly responsible for everything which might happen.

Mr. Speaker : So, an extra assistant commissioner is in charge of the situation now ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : But no investigation worth the name has been made so far by the police. On the other hand a fictitious case seems to have been started against the poor labourers in order to save the skin of the mill authorities. No investigation has been made up till now, nor is there any likelihood of such investigation being carried out in the near future.

Premier : The honourable member has stated that some complaint has been made by the owners of the mill and that action is being taken on that. If that is so, an investigation must be going on. (An honourable member : He did not say so.)

Mr. Speaker : May I ask the Honourable Minister concerned whether official information is available ?

Minister for Development : Not yet.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I be permitted to draw your attention to the wording of the adjournment motion, apart from the fact that I take it that there is no objection raised to it, namely, the serious situation created by the strike of the labourers of the Sutlej Mills? That I submit must be a sufficient matter of grave public importance for us to be able to discuss on the adjournment motion and I say so in view of the express provisions of the Trade Disputes Act, I believe it is section 3. The section itself provides a double weapon (Premier : A double-edged sword?)—not a double-edged sword as my honourable friend the Premier wants it, but a double weapon either on an application made by the employers and employees where a situation is apprehended or on a serious situation arising the Government can appoint either a board of enquiry or a committee of conciliation or suo motu the Government, where they find that there is apprehension of a serious nature of that kind, might appoint a court of enquiry or a board of conciliation. They have not taken any action which they might have taken or should have taken to appoint a board of enquiry or a board of conciliation. The situation is serious and we want to draw the attention of the Government to the seriousness of the situation by moving this adjournment motion.

Premier : Sir, may I read out a telegram which purports to have been sent by the Secretary of the Strike Committee? The telegram is dated 14th from Okara. It was despatched at 2-15 yesterday and arrived here at 4-30 and I received it late last night. This is what the telegram says :

We the peaceful strikers demand wages on Bombay and Ahmedabad scale and recognition of our Union.

This indicates that the situation was not serious till 2-15 yesterday when the telegram was despatched, and probably this is the usual dispute between the owners and the labour with regard to wages. My honourable colleague has already informed the House that he has sent an officer to enquire and see whether there is any genuine cause for interference by Government. This telegram definitely indicates that there is no serious situation at Okara.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Sir, may I say that the telegram contains the demands which are the original basis of the strike. It does not refer to the action taken by the employees of the mill as against the strikers. As I have stated it does not relate to the lack of action on the part of the Government in not prosecuting those people who were guilty of assault. Nor does it refer to the fact that there are 3,000 men on strike. The situation may develop into one of a very serious nature at any time.

Premier : It may possibly so develop.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Therefore it is necessary for the Government to take action.

Premier : I may assure the honourable member that the officer deputed must have taken all necessary precautions.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Apparently he did not take any action.

Premier : There are no such allegations.

Diwan Chaman Lall : There is an allegation. The Honourable the Premier has not received the telegrams which we have received previous to that. The telegrams are in our possession and we can hand over those telegrams to him if he so desires.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Here is a telegram which I have received.

Premier : When did you receive it ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : On the 12th.

Premier : But I have read the telegram which I received on the 14th.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : The telegram received by the Premier is meant for the Government but the telegram which I have received is meant for the Congress Party. It reads thus :

Okara 12

Chaudhri Kartar Singh M. L.A., Simla.

2,500 labourers Sutlej mills on strike—peaceful strikers beaten by mill chaukidars serious injuries to dozen persons—situation very serious—intervene come Congress.

I have personally visited the place and have studied the situation. I have seen the injured persons lying on the roadside. I have seen the site where they were beaten. The camping of the police nearby is very provocative. With your permission I will quote the words of the Colony Assistant. He said, "what has occurred before my arrival I am sorry for that". But he was not prepared to hold an enquiry.

Mr. Speaker : I had better read the relevant provisions of the Trade Disputes Act for the information of honourable members—

If any trade dispute exists or is apprehended between an employer and any of his workmen, the Local Government may.....by order in writing—

refer any matters appearing to be connected with or relevant to the dispute to a Court of Inquiry to be appointed by the Local Government or the Governor-General in Council, as the case may be ; or refer the dispute to a Board of Conciliation to be appointed by the Local Government or the Governor-General in Council, as the case may be, for promoting a settlement thereof :

I think under this section it is open to the Government to take action and put an end to the strike.

Premier : I am not sure if these sections are applicable to or were promulgated in the Punjab.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I submit that it is an all-India Act ? I had a good deal to do in regard to this Act. I may assure the Honourable the Premier that it is applicable to every province.

Premier : It is left to the local Government to apply it or not.

Mr. Speaker : The Act says :

It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Southern Ferganas.

Premier : I think this is one of the permissive Acts which the local Government may further notify—

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable the Premier is not fully conversant with this particular legislation. As a matter of fact in the year 1931 a court of enquiry was actually set up in Lahore under the provisions of this Act and I had to lead evidence on behalf of railway workers. There is no doubt about its applicability to the Punjab.

Mr. Speaker : The Trade Disputes Act is there. It may or may not be applicable to the Punjab. But there is no harm in giving an assurance that the case will be dealt with according to law.

Minister for Development : I have already stated before the House that I have directed an officer to proceed immediately to Okara to make necessary enquiries and submit his report as early as possible ; as soon as I receive the report I will take such steps as may seem called for by that report.

Diwan Chaman Lall : There is one more point. I am very loth to get up so often wish reference to what the Minister stated. The Act does provide for action, where there is an apprehension of a dispute ; here the dispute has actually arisen. What I take from your advice is this. Why cannot Government give such an undertaking since a dispute is already in existence, and the provisions of the law are there ? If the law gives them the necessary authority they should take action under the Trade Disputes Act.

Minister for Development : I may make the situation quite clear. As soon as I receive a report anything that seems called for and is permissible under the law will be done in order that the dispute may be settled.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I draw the attention of the Honourable Minister once again to the fact that the dispute is there and the law provides for machinery to be set up ? Why should he not take immediate (or as early as possible) steps to put an end to this situation by using the provisions of the law ? I shall then have no objection.

Mr. Speaker : The answer given by the Honourable Minister appears to be quite sufficient. There is no doubt that a dispute exists, but no official information of details is available. As soon as details are known, the Honourable Minister will take such action as the law in force permits. More than this the Government cannot do.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : May I have an assurance from the Honourable Minister that he will take the Opposition into his confidence before he decides to take any action in the matter as a result of the report he has called for. That will satisfy us.

Minister for Development : Whether the Opposition should be taken into the confidence of the Government should depend upon the nature of the report which is awaited.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not see what difficulty the Honourable Minister can have in consulting the Leader of the Opposition. I cannot understand this bureaucratic method of doing things.

Mr. E. Few : After the clear assurance of the Honourable Minister for Development that he would do all that is possible under the law, what further assurance is necessary ? Why should the Opposition try to bind the hands of Government ?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : May I submit that what I want is a very simple one. I do not want to create any difficulties in the way of Government which would debar their taking any action which they are entitled to take under the law. My suggestion is that the Government should establish a convention of taking the Opposition into its confidence. That would simplify matters. Otherwise the assurance that has been given by the Minister will not satisfy us, me at least, because, when I find that a simple demand like this is not accepted and when the Minister even though he had the information three days back did not take any action, I would not feel satisfied by his assurance that steps will be taken.

Premier : I think either I have not understood the honourable member opposite or his suggestion is so palpably grotesque in its nature that it could not be adopted. If the honourable member means that we should set up a convention that in every executive act we should consult the Opposition, I am afraid that he is asking too much of the Government. (An honourable member : No.) If it is necessary in the public interest to consult the Opposition my colleagues and myself will never miss an opportunity of consulting them. I should like to make that clear.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : My submission was whether in the specific instance now before the House the Government would in the public interest consult us.

Premier : On receipt of the report if it is found to be in the public interest to consult the Opposition and seek their views, I am sure my colleague will avail himself of the offer of the Opposition.

Lala Duni Chand : It smells of setting up a parallel government.

Premier : The honourable member may rest assured that I will not allow that as long as I am here.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : In view of the assurance given by the Honourable Minister I do not propose to press the adjournment motion.

ELECTIONS TO THE NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

Minister for Public Works (The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana) : I beg to move—

That this Assembly shall elect on such date and in such manner, as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, two representatives, who may or may not be members of the Assembly, to serve on the North-Western Railway Advisory Committee, representing rural interests and the travelling public respectively.

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved—

That this Assembly shall elect on such date and in such manner, as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, two representatives, who may or may not be members of the Assembly, to serve on the North-Western Railway Advisory Committee, representing rural interests and the travelling public respectively.

Sardar Hari Singh : I beg to move—

Mr. Speaker : Before the honourable member moves his amendment, I rule out his amendment No. 1, which suggests adoption of the system of proportional representation by means of a single transferable vote, inasmuch as that system is unthinkable when only one representative has to be elected for each of the two interests.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : You have made a remark which requires elucidation. May I know how it is possible that under a system of a single transferable vote two candidates belonging to the same party can be elected?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : Is it a point of order?

Sardar Hari Singh : My submission is that the motion moved by the Honourable Minister for Public Works still leaves the method of election to be decided by the House.

Premier : Not by the House.

Sardar Hari Singh : I beg your pardon, Sir, "by the Speaker." The mode of election is yet to be decided by the Speaker.

Mr. Speaker : I would prefer this to any other method.

Sardar Hari Singh : I can suggest a method of single election even when we are electing two persons to represent two different interests.

Mr. Speaker : May I request the Secretary to explain, as I am sure that more than 99 per cent. of members do not know what in practice is the method of a single transferable vote.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It is not necessary, Mr. Speaker, that a speech on the question of proportional representation should be delivered to the members of this House, but before we go on to the question of proportional representation or otherwise, may I, with your permission, ask for your ruling as to the authority on which we are electing these two representatives, who may or may not be members of this House, to serve on the North-Western Railway Advisory Committee?

Premier : What authority?

Minister for Public Works : This representation has been given to this House by the Railway Board under certain conditions. The conditions are those which I have stated in the motion.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether it is under an Act or under an authority recognised by us by means of a resolution or is it according to a particular procedure?

Minister for Public Works : It is a Central subject and the Railway Board has allowed certain representation to this House on certain conditions and we must comply with those conditions. It is not within our competence to vary those conditions.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I want the matter to be made perfectly clear. The Railway Board is a statutory body and it certainly cannot dictate to this House.

Mr. Speaker : It appears that the position is not clearly understood. The Railway Board probably with a view to enable this House to represent the province on the Advisory Committee, has asked for two representatives. The Punjab Council has been sending three representatives in the past. Now the number is reduced to two. It is up to the House to decide that the Assembly does not wish to send any representatives.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What was the rule in regard to members of the House or outsiders ?

Mr. Speaker : It was open to the House to elect outsiders or members as their representatives.

Diwan Chaman Lall : All that I wanted to know was, whether the Railway Board gave this right as a matter of courtesy to this House or whether that right was subject to the provision that only members of this House should sit on the Advisory Committee.

Mr. Speaker : It was not subject to any proviso ; but the House has been sending its own members.

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : May I know how they were formerly selected ?

Mr. Speaker : By plural vote .

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : To facilitate matters we can adopt the method which this House had previously been adopting.

Sardar Hari Singh : I have proposed an amendment—

Mr. Speaker : I have held the first motion as out of order, inasmuch as the amendment suggested by the honourable member is not practicable.

Sardar Hari Singh : It is for the House to decide whether to hold two different elections or one single election for two members.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member should have given notice of a motion to that effect.

Premier : Is my honourable friend suggesting that each member should have two votes—that is, the same thing as plural voting ? Single-transferable vote is not applicable.

Mr. Speaker : If one party is in overwhelming majority, the other party may not succeed.

Premier : That is inevitable under any system.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am not quite sure if honourable members really understand the single transferable method. As you have pointed out, and you are perfectly correct, it will not apply in this case. It is an absurdity to use the single transferable vote method in an election of this nature. I am afraid my honourable friend is mistaken.

Mr. Speaker : Does the honourable member wish to move his second motion ?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I want some more information. Does the letter authorising us to elect two representatives also want us to elect one representative for rural interests and the other for the travelling public ?

Minister for Public Works : Yes. Two totally different interests are to be represented.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Have you got the letter of authority ?

Minister for Public Works : Two different interests are involved. I am not carrying the number and date of the letter with me.

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : What are the different interests ?

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That this Assembly shall elect on such date and in such manner as may be approved by the Honourable the Speaker, two representatives, who may or may not be members of the Assembly, to serve on the North Western Railway Advisory Committee, representing rural interests and the travelling public respectively.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : I propose to fix Thursday, the 22nd July as the day for holding the election. The method of election shall be by card votes and as two representatives to represent two different interests have to be elected, each member will cast two votes. Members should send in nominations to the Assembly office not later than 8 p.m. on Friday, the 16th July, on proposal forms which may be had from the office.

SUPPLEMENTARY DEMANDS FOR GRANTS.

Finance Minister (The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal) : I beg to intimate that the supplementary demands for grants for the year 1987-88 are made on the recommendation of the Governor.

I beg to present supplementary demands for grants for the year 1987-88.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Sir, we received notice of these supplementary grants only this morning and we have not had time to study them. I would therefore suggest that these supplementary demands may be taken up in the next session.

Premier : There are only three demands of not big amounts and they will be discussed on the 19th.

PUNJAB LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY (ALLOWANCES OF MEMBERS) BILL.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan) : I introduce the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill. In doing so I might inform the House that this is being done on the recommendation of the Governor. I also move—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill be taken into consideration aforesaid.

Mr. Speaker : The motion moved is—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill be taken into consideration aforesaid.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : Sir, I have an amendment to move—

That the Bill be referred to a select committee consisting of the mover of the Bill and the following Members:—

Maulvi Mazhar Ali Azhar.
Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava.
Mian Abdul Aziz.
Sardar Sampuran Singh.
Khawaja Ghulam Hussain.
Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan.
Mrs. J. A. Shah Nawaz.
Mir Maqbool Mahmood.
Nawab Sir Malik Muhammad Hyat Khan Noon.

I do not want to make a speech in support of this amendment. I notice that on behalf of the Treasury benches there is also an amendment to the effect that the matter be referred to a select committee.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : On behalf of Mir Maqbool Mahmood, Sir.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On behalf of the Treasury benches in anticipation, if I may say so (laughter). The question is an important one. I take it that in the House of Commons several weeks were taken up in discussing the provisions of the New Ministers Salary Bill, which I believe is now about to be passed or has just been passed, and since this is a matter of some importance, as it is likely to govern the procedure adopted by this House in regard to the salaries and allowances of members for sometime to come, I think this matter should be considered in the select committee. I do not want to say anything on the merits of the question and all I say is that this is a matter of importance which ought to be considered carefully.

Mr. Speaker : Motion under consideration, amendment moved—

That the Bill be referred to a select committee consisting of the mover of the Bill and the following members:—

Maulvi Mazhar Ali Azhar.
Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava.
Mian Abdul Aziz.
Sardar Sampuran Singh.
Khawaja Ghulam Hussain.
Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan.
Mrs. J. A. Shah Nawaz.
Mir Maqbool Mahmood.
Nawab Sir Malik Muhammad Hyat Khan Noon.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan) : I entirely agree with my honourable friend opposite that the matter is of considerable importance to this House and if it had been a complicated measure I would have certainly adopted his proposal to refer the Bill to a select committee. The honourable member is aware that a committee was appointed to consider the various aspects of this question and also the amount of allowance or salary to be fixed. When I arrived in Simla and had an informal discussion with several members of the House I found that there was a certain amount of opposition to the idea of a "salary" and it was for that reason.

that I had to scrap that portion of the report in drafting this Bill, and adopt the idea of an "allowance". Really the clause that matters is clause 3 of the Bill. The House will have ample opportunity of discussing these rules and the details of the rules, but the substance of this Bill is contained as I have submitted, in clause 3 and that relates to the figure or the amount which is proposed as daily allowance for the members of this House. If any honourable members want to vary the figure, we are prepared to hear the views of the House—we have an open mind—but I think the concensus of opinion so far as I could ascertain it informally outside the House is that the figure in the Bill would be suitable, and indicates an adequate allowance to the honourable members for attendance at the meetings of this House. (A voice: Whose opinion?) I said that it is the concensus of opinion that that is an adequate amount for the honourable members of the House when they attend the meetings of this Assembly or the committees of the Assembly. I, therefore, request my honourable friend opposite that he should not press his motion, because after all clause 3 is not complicated, it is quite clear and simple.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban): Why I am in favour of the motion moved by Diwan Chaman Lall is that we fixed the salaries of Ministers in a great hurry and we find that the Punjab Government or the Punjab province pays much more than what they are paying to Ministers in other provinces?

Premier: The number of Ministers is much greater there. In Madras it is 10.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava: In fixing the amount as allowances for members, I think we should not commit the same mistake of haste. There is no harm if we wait for some time more because according to the Bill which has been presented to us it shall take effect when it is passed and not before. It will not have retrospective effect. Therefore the allowances to be given under this Bill, if passed, shall only be given in the next session. I, therefore, submit that if the matter were referred to a select committee, we shall be able to find out by that time what allowances are fixed for members in other provinces and it is quite possible that we may be able to save some money by reducing the amount which is proposed here.

Minister for Development: Do it now.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava: I submit, therefore, that we should wait and refer this Bill to a select committee as proposed by Diwan Chaman Lall.

Mr. E. Few (Anglo-Indian): I have only one word to say about what the Leader of the Opposition has said that we should wait to see what the other provinces do. Why should we be the slaves of precedent? Why should we not give the lead? If we have the courage of our convictions, let us go ahead, if we have not, let us get out.

Diwan Chaman Lall: All that I wanted to say in regard to this matter is this. I entirely agree with both of my honourable friends. I am in a very peculiar position. I agree with the Premier and I agree with the Leader of the Opposition. In this matter, let us, therefore arrive at a compromise. I do not think that any time would be wasted or that the matter would be delayed beyond the necessary limit if the select committee sits and reports by the 19th of this month. The select committee should sit and report by the 19th of this month and go into the relative matters.

As far as my honourable friend, Mr. Few, is concerned, there are very few like him (laughter), but as far as he is concerned, I assure him that one should not jump to a conclusion unless one has the facts before one. There was a committee called the Allowances Committee and I do assure you that I have not seen the report of this committee and I doubt very much if many members of this House have seen it. (Cries of "None of us has seen it"). Nobody on this side of the House has seen the report of that committee and yet we are asked to come to a conclusion on the basis of the report of that committee whose findings and report we have not seen. But Mr. Few is in a better position than we are because he says that we must have the courage of our convictions. Courage of conviction blindly is one thing and courage of conviction after having examined the materials is another thing and therefore I suggest that this committee should sit and report by the 19th. If the Honourable Premier is prepared to accept it, I personally have no objection.

Premier : The object of my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition, seems to be to delay this measure, not that it is necessary to defer consideration on account of the complexity of the Bill. As I have already explained clause 3 is quite plain and it is not necessary to have any select committee to thrash it out. Amendments can be moved about the question whether Rs. 20 would be adequate or Rs. 15 and I understand certain amendments have already been tabled. The rest gives power to the Government to frame rules and these rules will come before the House and the House will have ample opportunity to discuss and amend those rules and the rules will not be effective unless ratified by this House. With regard to the report of the committee to which my honourable friend (Diwan Chaman Lall) the mover of this amendment has referred, may I draw your attention to the report of the proceedings of the Assembly when this committee was formed? You were pleased to appoint a small committee to go into the matter and place their report before the Government member concerned who was to draft a Bill for the consideration of the Assembly. The committee submitted its report to the member concerned, as a matter of fact the Finance Minister was the president of the committee, and after consideration of their report and the informal opinion of the honourable members we have framed this Bill and have brought it before this House and I submit that it is not necessary for us to wait and see what other provinces do. Punjab is always in the habit of giving a lead to other provinces and not of following them (hear, hear).

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Punjab is Punjab.

Premier : My honourable friend is perfectly correct. Punjab is Punjab and it will remain Punjab.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : What a shame!

Premier : The honourable member does not want the Punjab to remain Punjab and he exclaims, " what a shame ? " My honourable friend perhaps wants to convert the Punjab into the North-West Frontier Province where kidnapping is taking place every day.

Coming to Mr. Few, I believe very few members in this House will disagree with the few remarks that he made, that so far as we are concerned we are not prepared to wait and look to other provinces for lead. We are here to lead, and we have given a lead and we hope that we will continue to lead and the rest of ' India ' will benefit from it (hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill be referred to a select committee.

The motion was lost.

Mr. Speaker : The next motion which I have to put to the vote is—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill be taken into consideration at once.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Now the Assembly will proceed to consider the Bill clause by clause.

Clause 1, sub-clause (1).

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That sub-clause (1) of clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Clause 1, sub-clause (2).

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That sub-clause (2) of clause 1 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Clause 2.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan (Pind Dadan Khan, Muhammadan, Rural).
Sir, I beg to move that—

(i) in clause 2, line 1, the comma after the word " Act " be omitted ;

(ii) in lines 1 and 2, the words " unless the context otherwise requires—" be omitted.

As honourable members will observe this is a drafting amendment and therefore it is not necessary for me to make any elucidation. I beg to move—

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved is that,—

(i) in clause 2, line 1, the comma after the word " Act " be omitted ;

(ii) in lines 1 and 2, the words " unless the context otherwise requires—" be omitted.

Advocate-General (Diwan Ram Lall): Sir, I beg to oppose this amendment. The only reason given is that this is purely a drafting and verbal amendment. My submission is—

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar: On a point of order, Sir. Is it the right of the Honourable Advocate-General to initiate opposition to a certain motion? This right belongs to the members of this House only. He can advance his views, he can speak and he can give advice to us but he cannot vote for or against any motion that comes before the House. It is the privilege of the members of this House.

Advocate-General: May I draw the attention of the honourable member to section 64 of the Government of India Act which says:—

“Every minister and the Advocate-General shall have the right to speak in, and otherwise take part in the proceedings of, the Legislative Assembly. . . .”

And the only limitation, as I understand, is that I cannot vote; otherwise I can take part in the proceedings of the Assembly. The only other limitation is a limitation I have imposed on myself, that is, I do not speak on any question which has got no bearing on legal matters. I have got a right to speak even on those matters which do not involve any legal points.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: He can take part in the proceedings of the House, but he cannot oppose any motion, as opposing means casting a vote.

Mr. Speaker: The Honourable Advocate-General cannot vote; but even if he could vote, he could speak against the motion and vote for it.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: The Advocate-General has no right to vote.

Mr. Speaker: Yes; but he has a right to speak and take part in the proceedings of the House.

Advocate-General: I was submitting, Sir, that these words “unless the context otherwise requires” are necessary for the reason that in clause 2 (b) the word “member” is defined thus—“‘member’ means an elected member.” It obviously means “elected member” of this Assembly and I presume an amendment will be necessary, when we come to clause 2 (b) that the words “of the Assembly” be added after the word “member.” In any case it is clear that the word “member” as defined in clause 2 (b) is a member of this Assembly that is now sitting; whereas if you kindly turn to clause 4 (3), there is a reference to members of the old Punjab Legislative Council and it would be necessary to make a distinction, where the context so requires, between these two separate persons, that is, the members of this Assembly and the members of the Punjab Legislative Council and for this reason it is necessary to retain these words.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: Sir, in view of what the honourable Advocate-General has said, I beg for leave to withdraw my amendment.

The motion was by leave withdrawn.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: Sir, I do not want to move my next amendment.

Mr. Speaker : But the words "an elected" appear to make the clause ambiguous and should go if possible.

Premier : May I submit that it will make no difference if these words are deleted.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Are there any other kind of members apart from the elected ?

Premier : There may be a minister who is not elected for 6 months.

Mr. Speaker : Is the Honourable Leader of the House against deletion ?

Premier : I am indifferent. If these words are deleted, it will make no difference. It might be safer to leave them.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan (Pind Dadan Khan, Muhammadan, Rural) : Sir, in view of the opinion expressed by you with your vast experience of these rules, I beg to move my amendment which runs as follows :—

That in clause 2 (b) for the words "an elected" the word "a" be substituted.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved is—

That in clause 2 (b) for the words "an elected" the word "a" be substituted.

Premier : Sir, I have no objection. I am prepared to accept that amendment.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That in clause 2 (b) for the words "an elected" the word "a" be substituted.

The motion was carried.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Before the next amendment is moved, will I be in order to suggest, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, that the words "of the Punjab Legislative Assembly" be added after "member" ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : These words that are being proposed by my honourable friend are not really necessary because the title of the Bill is "The Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill."

Allowances to Parliamentary Secretaries, Government Whips, etc.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural) : I beg to move ;

(i) That in clause 2, line 6, after the words 'the Speaker' comma be added ; and in line 7, the word 'or' be omitted ;

(ii) that in clause 2, line 7, the full stop after the word 'Deputy Speaker' be omitted ; and the words 'or a parliamentary secretary, if and when appointed' be added.

The object of this amendment is to supply an omission in the Bill. While a minister or Speaker or Deputy Speaker who are members of this august Assembly are excluded from the payment of allowances to which the members are entitled, there is no reason why the parliamentary secretary who will be appointed and who will receive salary should be paid the allowance. A grant of Rs. 50,000 has already been made by this House for parliamentary secretaries, for payment to those dignitaries whose names are yet to be announced. So, I beg to submit that just as a minister or Speaker or Deputy Speaker will not be paid the allowance, the parliamentary secretaries also who will be office-holders under the Crown getting regular salaries should not be paid these allowances to which the members are entitled.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved—

In clause 2 (b) after the word 'Speaker' substitute the word 'or' by a comma and for the full stop at the end substitute 'or a parliamentary secretary if and when appointed.'

Premier : Sir, I believe that the honourable member is labouring under some misapprehension. I am sure that a brief explanation which I propose to make will satisfy him that his amendment is not necessary. The salary of the parliamentary secretaries has not been fixed yet. We have excluded the Deputy Speaker because his salary has already been fixed by the House and we know what it is. I can assure this House that the salaries of the parliamentary secretaries will be fixed commensurate with their responsibilities and the volume of the work that they have to do, and, also having regard to the fact that they will be getting these daily allowances which other members will get. If you include their names here in this clause and thereby exclude them from the daily allowance it merely means that we will have to increase their salaries which we propose to fix to bring them in consonance with the importance of work they have to do. It merely means taking it from one pocket and putting it into another. I may, therefore, assure him that his amendment will not make any difference whatever and it would be convenient from my point of view to give them the allowances and pay them a smaller salary.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : On a point of order. The suggestion is made by the Honourable Premier that in fixing the salaries of the parliamentary secretaries consideration will be given to the allowances that are to be given. I beg to submit that a sum of Rs. 50,000 has already been provided in the budget for their salaries—

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is making a speech and not raising a point of order.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : In view of the fact that a fixed sum has already been provided in the budget for their salaries it is not open now for the Honourable Premier to say that these allowances will also be taken into consideration in fixing the salaries of the parliamentary secretaries.

Mr. Speaker : It is not a point of order.

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : With due deference to the opinion expressed by the Honourable Premier it is a matter of principle. The Speaker, the Deputy Speaker and the Ministers have been excluded simply because they are drawing salaries. The secretaries who are going to be appointed later on shall also draw salaries.

Premier : They may not; why do you anticipate?

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : A sum of Rs. 50,000 is allotted for them and if they are going to be paid salaries then I submit they should be excluded, in all fairness, from payment of these allowances.

Premier : Even if they are paid Rs. 100 a month?

Mr. E. Few : Does allotment necessarily mean expenditure?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of Sardar Hari Singh. It has been said by the Premier that while fixing the salaries of the parliamentary secretaries special consideration shall be given to the allowance which shall be paid to them and such salary shall be given to them that would be sufficient or dignified for their posts. Well, Sir, if permitted, I would submit that if the above proposal is agreed to we shall be giving a chance for the appointment of a larger number of secretaries (Premier: Like Madras). That means, that when the demand for Rs. 50,000 was put before the House, sanction was given on this understanding that that shall be sufficient for the larger number of secretaries.

Premier: I think that is not correct. What I said was, if necessary we would come before the House with a supplementary demand.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava: We have been reading in the papers that the number of secretaries shall be as many as we have got Ministers in our Cabinet and afterwards we came to know that the Ministers would not be satisfied with one secretary each. I do not know the reasons for it. Perhaps they might have found that there is greater amount of work or there might be some other reason to satisfy one party or the other (Premier: No). So, we heard that the number shall be 13.

Premier: I may assure the honourable member that I will not adopt that unlucky number.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava: We thought and now we also hear it that 13 was an unlucky number. We heard it long before that it was not going to be reduced: it was going to be raised by one and now the number of the secretaries shall be 14. Therefore my submission is that we should not permit the appointment of a larger number of secretaries by this method. If the Cabinet wants more people they should come forward with a supplementary grant. Therefore my submission is that parliamentary secretaries should be treated like salaried servants of this Government, and as such they should not be entitled to claim daily or travelling allowances (hear, hear).

Chaudhri Sumer Singh: My motion covers the motion moved by Sardar Hari Singh also and I think it should be taken first.

Mr. Speaker: Does the honourable member wish to move the motion standing in his name?

Chaudhri Sumer Singh (South East Gurgaon, General, Rural): Yes, Sir, I beg to move—

That in clause 2, line 7, for the word "or" comma be substituted; and the words "a parliamentary secretary, Government whip, or any other member of the Punjab Legislative Assembly in the pay of the Government in any other capacity" be added in the end.

Sir, while moving this amendment, with your permission, I will refer to the report of the select committee. In that report it was laid down that the parliamentary secretaries will not be paid daily allowances. I submit that in Madras the pay of the Deputy Speaker or Deputy President has been fixed at Rs. 250 and the pay of the parliamentary secretary in the Punjab should not exceed Rs. 250 in any case. Madras which is the richest province in India has fixed the pay of the Deputy Speaker or Deputy President at Rs. 250. Punjab is not so rich and it cannot afford to pay even Rs. 250 to the parliamentary secretaries. An argument is advanced that there is no certainty that they will remain in office. They can remain in office provided they work for the benefit of those who elected them. If they work for those who have elected them they will remain in office and nobody can turn them out of it. Why should they not be able to remain in office, after some of them have given up practice of Rs. 2,000 a month, provided they serve economically and benevolently for the benefit of masses? The other day it was stated that they were servants of the public. If they are servants, they must serve and not govern.

With these few words I commend my amendment to the House.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved—

That in clause 2, line 7, for the word "or" comma be substituted; and the words "parliamentary secretary, Government whip or any other member of the Punjab Legislative Assembly in the pay of the Government in any other capacity" be added in the end.

Sardar Kartar Singh (Lyallpur East, Sikh, Rural) (Punjabi): Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Sardar Hari Singh. My submission is that the Government asked the Assembly to sanction Rs. 50,000 for parliamentary secretaries and that sum has been sanctioned by the House. Now it is up to the Honourable Premier to disburse this sum among as many persons as he likes.

Premier : We can ask for more money from you.

Sardar Kartar Singh : Undoubtedly you can, but my respectful submission is that you should stick to one principle. Those honourable members who are going to be appointed as parliamentary secretaries, should not be given daily allowance, otherwise the case will be on all fours with the Punjabi saying

“ناہان وندے، راجڑیان مے مے اہندان نون”

Sometime you fill the pockets of some of the honourable members by offering them fat salaries and now you want to give them allowance also. This is not evenhanded justice. You must manage to satisfy the parliamentary secretaries with this sum of Rs. 50,000. They should not be paid any allowance in addition to their salaries. With these words I bring my speech to a close.

Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan (Jullundur North, Muhammadan, Rural) (Punjabi): There is a saying جان جفت دل ہے ہم (easy come, easy go). (Laughter). Here in this province the Government is acting in a manner which exactly agrees with the moral of the adage mentioned above. I remember a short but interesting story which, Mr. Speaker, I will relate with your permission. Once a quarrel arose between a cat and a fox on the division of a loaf of bread, which could not be equally divided between the two. They appointed a monkey as an arbitrator. The cunning monkey began to weigh two pieces of bread in a balance. He would bite off a slice when one of the pans failed to counterpoise the other. In this way the monkey ate the whole loaf of bread and the poor cat and the fox went away disappointed. (Laughter). We, too, are being treated by Government in exactly the same manner. In my opinion there is absolutely no justification for giving the parliamentary secretaries salaries as well as allowances.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not right in saying "salaries as well as allowances."

Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan : On the one hand we are told that the Government is doing its best to relieve the zamindars of their burden of heavy taxes and on the other it is increasing its expenditure. I do not see any logic in it. When a sum of Rs. 50,000 has already been voted by the House for the salaries of parliamentary secretaries, there is no reason why the latter should be paid daily allowance also. I am of the opinion that by doing so, the Government would be adding an unnecessary burden to the already overtrained finances of the province. I may also point out, that it is not fair that this hard earned money, which comes out of the pockets of the poor zamindars, should be squandered on the allowances of parliamentary secretaries. If the parliamentary secretaries are to get daily allowances in addition to their salaries, then may I ask what fault the honourable Ministers have committed for which they are being debarred from receiving daily allowance? They are also entitled to receive it. In the same manner all Government servants deserve daily allowance.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not right in saying that the framers of the Bill propose to give both salary and allowance to parliamentary secretaries.

Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan : What I meant was that it is not fair to pay daily allowance to parliamentary secretaries (laughter). I hope the Government will see their way to accede to my request and desist from paying allowance to parliamentary secretaries.

Sardar Lal Singh (Ludhiana Central, Sikh, Rural): I rise to support the amendment for a reason which perhaps has not been advanced so far. All these paid servants are paid out of the money raised from the poor tax-payers.

Premier : Also rich tax-payers.

Sardar Lal Singh : But mostly from the poor tax-payers. What do these paid servants do? Instead of attending to their duties for which they are paid they go out to the villages and mislead the ignorant villagers to work against nationalism. It has been said here on the floor of the House that these Ministers—

Mr. Speaker : The House is not now discussing Ministers.

Sardar Lal Singh : I am referring to the others whose salary is now being considered.

Mr. Speaker : No salaries are under consideration.

Sardar Lal Singh : If, in addition to the Rs. 50,000 already provided in the budget, we provide for additional allowance, there will then be more parliamentary secretaries and these secretaries will be employed to work against nationalism. More paid workers will go into the villages and will preach the pushing out of the national workers as the Honourable Minister for Development did. That is one reason why more money should not be provided.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta (South-Eastern Towns, General, Urban): I wish to enquire of the Honourable Premier whether it is not unfair to this House that when the sanction for the amount of salaries of the secretaries was sought this House was not taken into confidence as to the number of secretaries the Government proposed to employ and the salaries that were proposed to be paid to them. It was only about a fortnight ago that the Government sought the sanction of the House for the salaries of the secretaries. Now they seek to make fresh provision for the allowances of the secretaries. I do not know how long the Treasury Benches will take to decide the number of secretaries and their pay. I think it is high time, and it is also only fair that before making any further demand of this nature, they should take the House into confidence and tell us as to what will be the number of secretaries and what will be their pay so that the House may be in a position to decide whether the secretaries really need the allowances which we are called upon to vote for them or not. We should like to know what in reality is the difficulty of the Government. I cannot understand as to why they should keep this as a studied secret from the House even at this late stage? For this reason I support the cut which is under discussion.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): Let me assure my honourable friend opposite that it is not my habit, nor is it necessary for me, to use backdoor methods. If I had wanted Rs. 75,000 for the secretaries, the honourable member must be fully aware that there would not have been any difficulty for me to get that amount from the House. I even said at the time when I asked for Rs. 50,000 that if this amount was found insufficient, I would come again before the House with a supplementary demand and it would be for the House to give me that amount or not. I may, however, assure the honourable members that I have not yet decided with regard to the number or personnel of the secretaries for the simple reason that I have had no time to think about them. When I get a little leisure I shall sit down to think of the number and pay of the secretaries. I will also have to consult my colleagues, because after all these will be their secretaries. There are several other details also to be settled.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: Is the question so perplexing?

Premier: Very perplexing.

An Honourable Member: How many candidates have come forward?

Premier: Does the honourable member want to know the number of candidates from the opposite side or from this side? (Cheers).

Diwan Chaman Lall: I challenge the Premier to name on the floor of the House the candidates from this side of the House. (Cheers).

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar: On a point of order. I submit that the remark of the Honourable Premier is an insinuation against this part of the House. I consider it a serious reflection upon this side of the House, particularly when it is generally known that we here cannot go in for any office. Therefore it is necessary for the Premier to name the members on this side of the House who have approached him in connection with the secretaryship.

Mr. Speaker: There is no insinuation in the remarks of the Premier. It is not inconceivable that some members of the Congress Party may like to become secretaries, especially when the Congress Parties in some legislatures, have decided to accept offices. (Cheers).

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am afraid the point of order has not been appreciated. It is not that the members of the Opposition would consider it dishonourable to become secretaries, because their own colleagues in other provinces are beginning to take up secretaryships. But the insinuation is in the fact that the members of the Opposition offer themselves for secretaryship under the Unionist Government. (An honourable member : No, no). If that is not so, I have nothing to say.

Premier : My honourable friend asked, how many candidates from this side? I merely enquired if he wanted to know the number of candidates from this side only or from the benches opposite also.

1 P.M.

Honourable members should take such remarks in a sporting spirit. If the honourable member still insists on my giving the names I shall be prepared to do so outside the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I will be very glad to receive it on the floor of this House and even outside. It will be very interesting.

Premier : Who is there to stop me if I want to offer secretaryship to members of the Opposition? There is none to stop me from doing that.

The Assembly then adjourned for lunch.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2 P.M. Mr. Speaker in the chair.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, may I suggest that Sardar Hari Singh's motion may better be put. So far as the other motion is concerned, it includes the Chief whip; otherwise the principle involved is the same. Sardar Hari Singh's motion is confined only to those who are in receipt of salary.

Mr. Speaker : I agree.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I would like to say a word before my learned friend gives a reply.

Lala Bhagat Ram Choda (Jullundur, General, Rural) (Urdu): Sir, I would speak for only two minutes. It is commonly known that a sum of Rs. 50,000 has been provided for the parliamentary secretaries. And it is now being decided that in addition to their salaries, they should be paid daily allowances as well. I say the ministers will have parliamentary secretaries as well as private secretaries. We do not object to their being given salaries. You may provide any amount for them, let each of them be given a thousand or more a month. But in my opinion it should be made quite clear what salary they are going to receive and it is but fair that with regard to this matter we should not be kept in the dark.

There is another danger to which I want to draw the attention of the House and that is, that the ministers and the secretaries would themselves form sub-committees which would take the shape of a sub-government and the rest of the members would hardly get any share. I, therefore, suggest that the secretaries should be elected by the vote of the House.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Wherefrom would you get votes?

Lala Bhagat Ram Choda : I was submitting that the secretaries should be elected by the vote of the House. In this way every member would be able to vote for a person of his own liking. In the end I would suggest to the Honourable Premier to make clear what salary his government is going to pay to parliamentary secretaries, and how many secretaries are going to be appointed.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : My honourable friend, the Premier, stated that the question of a grant of Rs. 50,000 had been fixed without any decision on the part of the Government in regard to the number of secretaries they were going to appoint and that he opposed this particular amendment on the ground that the pay of the secretaries may be fixed in such a manner as not to be adequate in the opinion of the Government. I take it that that was the argument that the pay of the secretaries which is going to be fixed may not necessarily be adequate and it is for that reason that the Government were opposed to this amendment in order to enable the secretaries to draw their allowances as members of this House plus the pay of secretaries that they are going to draw.

Premier : What I actually meant was that the pay of the secretaries, when it is fixed, will be fixed after having in view the provisions of this Bill. That means that supposing we wanted to fix their salary at X and this amount is Y, the salary fixed would be X minus Y.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am glad the Premier has made the position clear, but there is no distinction in the argument advanced by him and the argument that I am advancing that is to say the pay of the secretaries will be fixed at X taking into consideration the figure of Y which is the allowance to be given to the members of this House. Let us have a look at the actual position.

Mr. Speaker : Is the honourable member going to make a fresh speech ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : No, I have not spoken on this issue before. I am not willing to speak at all if you do not wish me to speak.

Mr. Speaker : I asked the honourable member to speak. He spoke for a short while and then resumed his seat.

Diwan Chaman Lall : That was on the select committee motion.

Mr. Speaker : But that was finished long ago.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I think Mr. Speaker, you are perhaps under a misapprehension. I have not spoken on this motion.

Mr. Speaker : Then the honourable member may speak.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I want to say a word or two about this particular amendment. When my honourable friend fixed Rs. 50,000 as the budget grant for the purposes of parliamentary secretaries' salaries, he must have had some sort of idea as to what he intended to do. But suppose he did not have an idea, let us see what the actual position is. There are six ministers who require not more than six secretaries. Even if my honourable friend takes a leaf out of the book of the Congress which accepted office yesterday in Madras, he will find that there each Minister has got one parliamentary secretary. Going on the basis of one parliamentary secretary for each minister and fixing his salary at the exorbitant figure (which in my opinion is very exorbitant—and I say it advisedly) of Rs. 500 per person—even then the figure comes to Rs. 36,000 and leaves my honourable friend a sum of Rs. 14,000 in hand for him to utilise for other purposes which I understand are the appointment of what are known as personal secretaries. Even if my honourable friend allows Rs. 200 a month for personal secretaries, even that figure is covered because it comes to practically Rs. 50,000. I submit he must have had it in mind that even if Rs. 500 a month was provided for the secretaries, yet there was an ample sum left over. In the Presidency of Madras—a very important presidency—the Congress have taken office and what my learned friend over there would like to give to his secretaries is going to be paid to the ministers in that particular province. (Hear, hear from Opposition benches). If Rs. 500 which is going to be paid to the ministers in Madras is considered to be inadequate payment as salary to the secretaries in the Punjab, I submit that we are asking this House to accept a proposition which is absolutely unacceptable. It is an undesirable proposition. If on the top of Rs. 500 my honourable friend wishes to add the extra Rs. 22-8-0 as allowances for those gentlemen, I submit it will become still more undesirable. What is the principle involved which my learned friend Sardar Hari Singh wishes this House to accept? Let me here state that a personal secretary or private secretary or a parliamentary secretary in the House of Commons does not draw a salary. Mr. Baldwin owed his recent position to the fact that he was Personal Private Secretary to Mr. Bonar Law when he was the Prime Minister of England. But it is an unpaid office. It is an office of great importance, because of its future possibilities, but it is an unpaid office and if my learned friend wishes not to accept that particular convention which is prevalent in the House of Commons and pays a salary, then, I do submit that the amount he has asked for in the budget is adequate. The principle that Sardar Hari Singh wishes this House to adopt is this that any officer of the Crown who is in receipt of a salary—it does not matter what it is—but if he is in receipt of a salary—he shall not draw any extra allowance by virtue of being a member of this House. That is the sole principle.

My friend says that this is a whole time job. I can lay my hand on my heart and with a clean conscience assert that at least three weeks before this Assembly started I had wholly and solely given my time in helping to frame rules and you know, Mr. Speaker, the enormous amount of work that we have done in the Rules Committee. Having done that, we cannot turn round and say, please pay us a salary because ours has been a whole time job. By all means give salaries to your secretaries. Do not think we are against it. By all means do so, but do not burden the tax payer still more by adding to that salary these allowances. There is no reason why you should pay those allowances. There is no necessity and I do submit that the budget demand is ample for the purpose for which my learned friend has demanded it.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the question be put.

The motion was carried.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural): Mr. Speaker, during the course of his reply to my speech on my amendment to the Bill the Premier was pleased to say that I was labouring under some misapprehension. Let me tell him that I have no misapprehension and I am as definite and clear-headed on my point as he is or anybody else is. The question is a question of principle. That principle is whether a secretary who is a member of this House like the Minister is entitled to allowances over and above the salary he receives. We want to put the parliamentary secretaries, the Ministers, the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker who are all of them members of this House receiving salaries and holding offices of profit under the Crown, in a class by themselves and separate from those who are not receiving any salary at all.

In the second place when the House voted this sum of Rs. 50,000 for parliamentary secretaries, the House did it under the impression that this amount included the salaries as well as any extra allowances that might have to be paid to the parliamentary secretaries. This thing was not made clear at the time that the parliamentary secretaries would be receiving this sum by way of salaries and over and above this amount they will be receiving allowances. Had that been made clear on that day that amount might have been reduced by a substantial amount.

In the third place, Mr. Speaker, the Premier has been pleased to say that he has not decided upon the number of parliamentary secretaries and the emoluments they will be receiving. May I just draw his attention to an A. P. I. message published in the papers just this morning saying that it has been decided definitely that such and such a person (three persons sitting in the second, third and fourth benches behind the Ministers) have been appointed secretaries by the Cabinet or by the Premier?

Premier: It might possibly be an effort at intelligent anticipation, but it is not a fact.

Sardar Hari Singh: Sir, when the House voted this sum of Rs. 50,000 for the pay of parliamentary secretaries, it did not do so because it was enamoured of the reasons and arguments given by the Premier. It did so more because it took pity on the Premier when he said: "Gentlemen," "I have to work very hard,—because I have no parliamentary secretaries, I have to work up to 2 o'clock in the morning." He said he wanted parliamentary secretaries to assist him in his work as Premier and to assist him in other parliamentary work that he had got to undertake as the Leader of the House. Sir, the sum of Rs. 50,000 was voted because the Premier wanted assistants in order to carry on the parliamentary work, on the floor of this House. When these parliamentary secretaries are going to be paid for the parliamentary work on the floor of this House, I fail to understand, it is beyond my comprehension, mortal as I am, how they require us to sanction members' allowances for parliamentary secretaries. By what logic, by what reasoning do they want us to agree to allowances for them, after they have got us to sanction Rs. 50,000 as salaries for eight months? With these remarks I resume my seat.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): I know my limitations and I am afraid I have not been able to make myself quite clear. I tried to explain to the House that while the salaries of other officers mentioned here have already been fixed, the salaries of the secretaries have not been decided upon, and these will be fixed commensurate with the work and responsibility which they may have to undertake. We have not yet decided what their duties will be. It may be that the whole of Rs. 50,000 may not be necessary for their salaries in which case we will be able to save something. It may be that that amount will not be sufficient in which case, as I said on the last occasion, I will have to come to this House with a supplementary demand and ask the House to give me more money. My point is that if we had included their names also in this clause, it would have meant that we would have had to fix their salary at a higher scale than we would if they are excluded from the receipt of daily allowance. In the circumstances I do not see why so much emphasis has been laid by the the honourable member on pressing this point. Supposing, normally we fix their total emoluments at Rs. 600—I am assuming, we have not done so—but supposing we fix them at Rs. 600, since they will be getting Rs. 20 a day we will reduce that Rs. 600 to Rs. 400, so as to take into consideration the amount which they will be getting as ordinary members.

Another point which I should like to impress on my honourable friends opposite is that we have not yet decided whether they are going to be whole time officers or part time officers.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Or honorary ?

Premier : Or may be honorary. I am certain that there are enough public spirited gentlemen in this House who would be prepared to work honorarily, if they could afford to do so—

Sardar Hari Singh : Has any minister set an example ?

Premier : You are also aware that recently in Parliament they have also fixed a certain amount of salary for the Leader of the Opposition, because he has to undertake a certain amount of work both outside and inside the Parliament to the detriment of his professional or private work and suggestions were made to me from my side that we also should provide something for the Leader of the Opposition, but I dared not do anything because I thought perhaps the whole Anand Bhavan would come down upon me if I suggested something so sacrilegious as that for the Leader of the Opposition, but I assure the House that if the proposal is acceptable to my honourable friends opposite, and if a proposal comes from the other side, it will receive very sympathetic consideration from me (laughter). I do not think it is necessary to say anything more on that point.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I thank you.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

* In clause 2 (b) after the word "Speaker" substitute the word "or" by a comma and for the full stop at the end substitute "or a parliamentary secretary if and when appointed."

(When the division bell was ringing Chaudhri Kartar Singh stood up to raise a point of order.)

Mr. Speaker : When a division is going on, a point of order may be raised by an honourable member while sitting.

The Assembly then divided: Ayes 98, Noes 87.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Is there any rule under which action can be taken against any one using physical force to make a person vote in a particular direction ?

Mr. Speaker : If any such incident takes place and my attention is drawn to it I will take notice of it.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I deny that any physical force was used by any one.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That Clause 2 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Clause 3.

Salaries and allowances of members.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural) :
 Sir, I beg to move—

That in clause 3, line 2, between the words 'section 4' and the word 'allowances' the words 'salaries and' be inserted.

Sir, as I have already submitted, in legislative enactments it is essential that we should adhere to the niceties of form. If you turn to section

[S. Hari Singh.]

72 of the Government of India Act under which this Bill has been placed before us, it says :—

“Members of provincial Legislative Assemblies and Legislative Councils shall be entitled to receive such salaries and allowances as may from time to time be determined by Act of the Provincial Legislature”.

So the words are ‘salaries and allowances’. It is not ‘salaries or allowances’. If it is so desired the salaries may be fixed at zero. But the words ‘salaries and allowances’ must appear together. With these words I commend this amendment for the acceptance of the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : This is purely a drafting amendment, I take it, the amendment moved by my honourable friend Sardar Hari Singh. What he means is, I take it, that section 72 refers to the words ‘salaries and allowances’ and therefore the expression should be ‘salaries and allowances’ in the body of the Bill as well as in the title. It is purely a drafting amendment.

The Advocate-General : My submission is that at this stage it is not legally necessary to put in both the words ‘salaries’ and ‘allowances’. You are making a provision now for allowances. It may be at another stage you may wish to make a provision for salaries. You have already made provision for salaries in the case of Deputy Speaker and in the case of parliamentary secretaries. Therefore, whenever occasion arises you may use both or one as the case may be. At present we are dealing with allowances and therefore it is not necessary to insert the word ‘salaries’ at this stage. It is not legally necessary.

Mr. Speaker : In view of the opinion of the Advocate-General, I rule that the amendment is out of order.

Premier : Raja Muhammad Akram Khan may now move his amendment. He is now in his seat. (An honourable member : The next amendment has been disposed of. He cannot move it now). This is only with the idea to have the Act as perfect as possible. And we are still on that clause.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : But is it a correct procedure?

Sardar Hari Singh : On a point of order. If the suggestion made by the Premier is accepted, it would be setting a very bad precedent, because the honourable member who tabled the amendment was not in his seat when he was called.

Premier : If the honourable members do not want it I will not mind it because there is another amendment of which notice has been given by Thakur Ripudaman Singh. I only thought that this amendment will suit better.

Khan Bahadur Raja Muhammad Akram Khan (Jhelum, Muhammadan, Rural) : Sir, I beg to move—

That in clause 3, lines 2 to 4 for the words “allowances shall be paid to members at the following rates” the words “members shall be entitled to receive the following allowances” be substituted.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May we ask the honourable member to explain to us the difference.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved is—

That in clause 3, lines 2 to 4, for the words "allowances shall be paid to members at the following rate" the words "members shall be entitled to receive the following allowances," be substituted.

Premier : I believe, Sir, that my honourable friend's intention in moving this amendment is more or less to adhere to the words of section 72 of the Government of India Act which says that members "shall be entitled". Personally I think that it is unnecessary because if there is any public spirited gentlemen who have any objection to draw the allowance they can give it back to the exchequer or to the nation. It may be that the honourable member had probably in view some gentlemen who might have conscientious qualms in drawing the allowances—the so-called heavy allowances—and they need not draw it if they do not want. Personally I do not think it is necessary. As I have already stated public spirited gentlemen who do not wish to avail themselves of the allowances can always give back to the exchequer or not draw them at all. It might be difficult for the Assembly office to decide, since there is the word 'shall', whether it be given to somebody else or be left to the exchequer. (Sardar Hari Singh: Give it to whom?) If any one of honourable members have any conscientious qualms they should leave it with the exchequer and not give it to some body else.

Thakur Ripudaman Singh : Sir, some members of the House who have certain objections to travelling in a higher class may not wish to draw allowance above a certain rate. The rates proposed by this Bill are maximum. If any member wishes to draw less he should be allowed to do so.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It seems to me that both the Honourable the Premier and Thakur Ripudaman Singh are suffering from an inferiority complex because they seem to think that the charges levelled by this side of the House against their seeking high salaries seemed to deserve on their part some sort of reply and the reply, a most puerile reply which they can offer in this House, is that honourable members on this side of the House should not be compelled if they have any conscientious objection to receiving Rs. 22-8-0 a day, when they themselves are quite content with Rs. 48,000, a year. That makes no difference. My honourable friend over there Thakur Ripudaman Singh himself has no objection to pocketing these allowances. I understand that he is a candidate for secretaryship. He has no objection to receiving those allowances. My honourable friend suddenly takes upon himself the mantle of the conscientious objector and worries about the consciences of the honourable members sitting on this side of the House without having been told to worry about them. I may tell him that our consciences are quite clear and he need not worry about them.

I submit that there is no need to change the original draft of the Bill so as to prevent anybody sitting on this or that side of the House turning round and saying we will not accept the allowance. (Premier: That is what I said). There is no need for this particular amendment. It is absolutely puerile and unnecessary. The laugh is at their expense and not at our expense. I do submit that the time of the House should not be wasted on this sort of thing. (Hear, hear, from Opposition Benches).

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That in clause 3, lines 2 to 4, for the words "allowances shall be paid to members at the following rates" the words "members shall be entitled to receive the following allowances", be substituted.

The motion was carried.

Residence Allowance.

Lala Duni Chand (Ambala and Simla, General, Rural): Sir, I rise to move—

That in clause 3, line 5, for the word "twenty" the word "ten" be substituted.

Sir, I venture to think that my amendment is the most important amendment. It is a touch stone on which one could test the claims and pretensions of the Government party to serve the people of the Punjab. I beg to say that I am not actuated by considerations of mere show or playing to the gallery in moving this amendment. I felt the urge in me to move this amendment. Had I thought that there was the least justification for the Government party to give Rs. 20 on account of residential allowance to the members of the House, I would not have proposed this amendment. I know there are heavy odds on the other side and they can carry away anything by sheer force of numbers. All the same I may be able to convert those people who are difficult to be converted and hence with this faith I am moving this amendment. I shall deal with the different stages through which the proposal to fix the allowances of members has passed. When a proposal was made in this House to set up a committee to consider the question of fixing the residential allowance and other allowances of the honourable members of this House an offer was made to this side of the House to send a representative or representatives on this committee. We consulted together and decided to refrain from taking any part in so far as the deliberations of this committee were concerned. We knew it full well that we will not be serving any purpose by going on the committee in view of the attitude of the Congress and in view of the declared intentions of the Congress that no officer howsoever high he may be will be allowed to accept more than Rs. 500 a month. We thought it unnecessary to go to this committee. Then we received communications from the committee asking for a representation in connection with the question before the Committee. Again we decided to decline to send any representation on the subject. Afterwards this proposal went through several stages in the meetings of the Unionist Party. We know that at one time the proposal was to fix the salary at Rs. 1,200 a year. That fact appeared in the Press and it is known to all. It appeared that there was some trouble over it. Then another proposal was made—this also appeared in the Press—that the honourable members of the House will get Rs. 1,500 a year. Thereafter it seems that Government was confronted with good many difficulties. I believe I am not disclosing any secret, because all these facts are known to all. Good many members of the Unionist Party who constitute the backbone of the Government wanted a share in the spoils.

Premier : Question.

Lala Duni Chand : I am perfectly certain of the correctness of the statement that I am making on the floor of the House.

Premier : The statement made by the honourable member is absolutely incorrect.

Lala Duni Chand : I thought that the word 'spoils' was a perfectly parliamentary expression and that nobody would take any exception to it. But if the Premier takes exception to it—

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is requested to proceed with his speech.

Lala Duni Chand : What I have stated is a fact which cannot be denied by the Honourable Premier. At one time there was a proposal to fix salaries. That proposal was dropped and another proposal was substituted, namely, the fixing of daily allowances. A good deal has been said in the Press with regard to what has been happening in the conclaves of the Unionist Party. Government is generally interested in issuing contradictions and avoiding wrong impressions that might arise in the public mind, but notwithstanding all those things that appeared in the Press the Government in the present instance has not published any repudiation of what has been suggested in the Press.

Let us now consider what the fixing of these allowances means. I submit that if the figures regarding residential allowances, conveyance allowance and railway fares are properly worked, they will come to nearly a thousand rupees a month for the working period of the Assembly. It means that every member will be getting nearly one thousand rupees a month for the period that the Assembly is in session.

Premier : May I know what the Congress members in the central legislature are getting to-day?

Finance Minister : How does the honourable member arrive at the figure Rs. 1,000 a month?

Lala Duni Chand : I arrive at the figure thus. At the rate of Rs. 20 a day each member will get Rs. 600 a month and the conveyance allowance will give him Rs. 75 at the rate of Rs. 2-8-0 a day. Then each member is entitled to one and two-thirds first class railway fare and this will bring him about Rs. 325 a month. (Voices : No, no.)

Taking the average distance between the headquarters of a member and the place of meeting of the Assembly, the railway fare for going and coming back comes to something like Rs. 80; and supposing a member goes four times to his headquarters and comes back, the total railway fare comes to Rs. 320.

Premier : May I ask whether the honourable member is assuming that honourable members travel without tickets? How else can they make Rs. 80 on each trip?

Lala Duni Chand : I am saying that this is the gross income that every member will be making. (Interruption.) I am told that in that case the member will not be entitled to daily allowance. I am aware of that. In that case Rs. 86 or if the honourable member absents himself for two days Rs. 24 will have to be deducted.

Minister for Education : The rule is, railway fare or daily allowance whichever is less.

Lala Duni Chand : I understand that he is entitled to railway fare as prescribed in the rules. If the Minister for Education corrects me I am prepared to accept the correction. (Hear, hear). All that I want to say is that every member will be getting for a period of five months in the year at the rate of Rs. 1,000 a month, or very nearly Rs. 900. (An honourable member : How ?) I say, including railway fare. I do not say that every member will be making a net income of Rs. 1,000 or Rs. 900. My arithmetic is as undisputable as the science of mathematics. (Hear, hear). The question is whether this is a fair amount to which every honourable member can lay claim. I consider the question of salary or allowance in the light of the criterion that nobody is entitled to get from the country what it is beyond the means of the country to pay. So often has it been proclaimed on the floor of this House that ours is a poor country. Lurid picture has been drawn of the poverty-stricken condition of the people of this country. I submit that in other countries the people may be able to pay more without any difficulty. But the question of questions is whether taking into consideration the condition of our country, the amount provided in the Bill is fair or just.

There is another question that might be considered in connection with the amendment that I have proposed. I know that there are honourable members in this House who are big landlords, big capitalists, millionaires. I can understand that in their case it is perfectly immaterial to them whether they get Rs. 10 a day or Rs. 20 a day. I also know that it is their idea of importance, their idea of service that has prompted them to come to this House. Therefore, this class can be disregarded in considering the question of allowances. There is another class of honourable members who might be getting just Rs. 800 or Rs. 900 a month or a little more. There is yet another class, and without meaning any discourtesy or disrespect to them, I say that there is a majority of this class of honourable members who cannot get as much as Rs. 700 a month outside this House. The House should take this into consideration whether it will be justified in voting this money for such honourable members. I submit that it appears to be a hard fact. The Honourable Premier may have realised this matter, it is an undeniable fact that the object of allowing these big allowances is to keep the flock of the faithful sheep of the Unionist Party together. (Cheers). I know this party is called the Unionist Party but I dare say that at times they are on the verge of war. They give out that they will be no more unionists and they will be no more by the side of the Government unless some of their terms are accepted. (Minister for Education : Question). They said that if it was desired to keep them in the Unionist Party, certain terms of theirs should be complied with.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : They wanted more.

Lala Duni Chand : The story has gone abroad that they are saying in this way:—"Look here, the honourable ministers are getting from three thousand to three and a half thousand rupees a month besides the allowances. What are we going to get? We are as good honourable members of this House as the honourable ministers." Their argument was that they must get something on the basis of the proportionate share of the salaries of the ministers.

Khan Bahadur Nawab Muzaffar Khan : I am sorry to say that these are grave insinuations against the Unionist Party.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Something was said about the Opposition as well this morning. Ask your Leader first.

Lala Duni Chand : I am giving expression to my views in a very moderate way but if you give me a certain amount of latitude, I shall condemn your party in a much stronger language than I have done. I say that the Unionist Party is no party. It is a party that tries to hoodwink this province. What this party is really doing and is going to do is really not service to this province but dis-service to this province.

Mr. Speaker : Opinions always differ. The honourable member will, therefore, please proceed with his speech without being personal.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Let opinions differ and let the other party deny.

Lala Duni Chand : The members of the Unionist Party and the members of the Government party claim to be the sole custodians of the interests of the peasantry.

Mr. Speaker : May I request the honourable member to be relevant ?

Lala Duni Chand : My respectful submission is that I always, without much demur, accept your ruling but I do claim that every word that I have uttered so far as perfectly relevant not only within the meaning of the Evidence Act—(laughter).

Mr. Speaker : Will the honourable member please speak to the motion ?

Lala Duni Chand : If you had waited for one second—

Mr. Speaker : I have waited for minutes.

Lala Duni Chand : The Government benches claim to be the custodians of the interests of the peasants and other humble classes when they are giving as much as six, seven or eight hundred rupees to an honourable member of the House who is to be appointed parliamentary secretary. Can their claim to be the sole custodians of the interests of the peasants hold good ? I submit that any government that is so extravagant with the money wrung out of the people, cannot put forth a claim of being the custodians of the interests of the people. I wanted to make out this point as a relevant point in this way. I might cite the instances of England to which the Government members owe a good deal and we also confess that we have also derived some benefits from some of the teachings that England has given us. Till recently the members of the House of Commons were not getting a penny as allowances or salaries. It is only recently that the members of the British Parliament have become entitled to certain allowances. (Voices : What, recently ?) I think about fifteen or twenty years ago, the members of the British Parliament were not getting any kind of allowance. Sometimes capital is made here of the schemes of the Congress.

[L. Duni Chand.]

They call the congressmen as impractical people and refer to Mahatma Gandhi and say that he is content only with a loincloth. It is the aim of the Congress that the rulers of this country should do service to the country and not draw fat emoluments or fat salaries. I think so far as the question of setting an example is concerned, some of us in our presence have set up very high examples (Hear, hear). If you care to know about me or about some others, you can easily know that we are here at a great sacrifice. Some of us have sacrificed thousands of rupees outside this Legislative Assembly and we have come to this House with the object of getting an opportunity to serve. Let Sir Chhotu Ram go to my constituency and enquire whether a man like me has or has not made any sacrifice and if some sacrifice is made he should enquire the object thereof. (Hear, hear). I have placed different aspects of the question for the consideration of the honourable members of the Government party. I believe that the Government members are capable of appreciating truth. If within the last three or four months they have not grasped the real truth, I am sure within the next nine or twelve months, if they are going to have these big salaries and allowances, they will be found out too soon, in the Punjab.

Minister for Education : You people are drawing first class railway fares.

Lala Duni Chand : I honestly wish that I should be the last person to cause any pain to any honourable member of this House including the honourable ministers. I have every respect for their susceptibilities and for their feelings, but knowing all that, I submit before this House that the payment of Rs. 20 a day for an honourable member is a piece of jobbery, it is a piece of extortion, I should say. I say it is an act of legalised robbery. We have been saying that some of the laws of the present Government are lawless laws and as you have the majority you can have any number of lawless laws accepted by this House. I look upon this provision of the Act as a lawless provision. I have proposed a very fair amount, i. e., Rs. 10 a day. It comes to exactly Rs. 300 a month for the period for which this Assembly will be in session.

I have only one last word to submit before you. As I submitted in the beginning, I felt a kind of urge within me to put forward this motion, and I request you to accept that expression of my mind, that expression of my feelings in the spirit in which it has been made. The Government members have been proclaiming at the top of their voice, in season and out of season, on opportune occasions and on inopportune occasions, that they are the best friends of the country, that they are going to improve the conditions of the poor people of this country. I say, if this is their genuine and honest claim consistently, Government members cannot play the part that they are playing in connection with this matter. Sometimes we have indulged in poetic expressions and I say only one word and I have finished.

ہم خدا خواہی و ہم دایاے دین

Mr. Speaker : Clause under discussion, amendment moved—

“ That in clause 3, line 5 for the word ‘ twenty ’ the word ‘ ten ’ be substituted.

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain (Multan Division Towns, Muhammadan Urban) : It has already been pointed out, that the matter is one of great importance which will have a far reaching effect on this Assembly. I do not make sentimental appeals that the occupiers of the Treasury benches should look to the miserable plight of the zamindar nor would I say that this is a lawless law which is going to be imposed upon the Assembly. I propose to place before this honourable House certain facts and my submission is that before taking a final decision in the matter those facts may kindly be looked into. I am perfectly prepared to concede that the gentlemen occupying the Treasury benches are equally anxious for the miserable plight of the peasants. I do not want to call myself the sole custodian of their rights and the sole protector of their privileges. The facts which I wish to place before the honourable members of the House are very simple. It is common knowledge that the daily allowance which was allowed hitherto to the members of the Legislative Council was Rs. 12 per day. This is the allowance which is actually being drawn now by the members of the Assembly. The number of members drawing allowance in the Punjab Legislative Council was 68, and the number of sittings was from 40 to 45, and at the rate of Rs. 12 per day Rs. 60,000 was the annual expenditure of the Punjab Government by way of allowances to members. Now the number of members who will draw the allowances will be 168 (excluding the Ministers, Speaker and the Deputy Speaker). The expected number of sittings will be about 90. This was given in the papers as the approximate number of sittings. Now at the old rate, that is, if Rs. 12 is permitted to members, let us see what will be the total amount. For approximately 90 sittings each member will be getting about Rs. 1,100 by way of daily allowance and Rs. 400 by way of travelling allowance. This is at the old rate. The total expenses for 168 members at the old rate of Rs. 12 per day will come up to about Rs. 3 lakhs (Rs. 2,71,000 to be exact). The rates proposed by this Bill are Rs. 22-8-0 per day. At these rates the total amount comes up to Rs. 5,00,000. The sole thing which I wish to place before this honourable House is that formerly members got Rs. 60,000 annually by way of allowances. Now they will be getting Rs. 5,00,000 per annum. My simple question is what is it which has necessitated this extraordinary rise in the daily allowances of the members? Rs. 12 was being given to members for the last several years and my submission is that that was quite enough. It is not in order to create any dramatic effect that I am making this suggestion. This suggestion is perfectly honest and I place it before the House for their consideration. In my opinion Rs. 12 at the old rates is quite enough and there is absolutely nothing which justifies the increase in that Rs. 12 per day.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan (Pind Dadan Khan, Muhammadan, Rural) : I have nothing much to say with regard to the speech made by my honourable friend who has just now resumed his seat, but I must admit that I was very much shocked to hear the speech of my honourable friend and old colleague, Lala Duni Chand.

Lala Duni Chand : Your constituency will be more shocked at your speech.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I am surprised that my friend Lala Duni Chand seems to know more about our constituencies than we ourselves know. What I was going to submit was that I was very much shocked not with the subject matter of my honourable friend's speech, but with the language used and the most objectionable way in which he tried to attack the Treasury benches and the members of the Unionist Party who are supporting the Government. He concluded his speech with a Persian verse. I would like to begin my speech with a Persian verse :

اعظان کین جاره بر عسراب : ممبر میکنند
چون بغلو = ممبرانند آن کا دگر میکنند

I was surprised to find that such a cut should be moved by my friend who has been drawing an allowance of Rs. 20 per day for a number of years.

As a member of the Central Assembly he used to draw at the rate of Rs. 20 plus Rs. 5 per day as daily and conveyance allowance and I do not remember a single occasion when he made a speech that travelling allowance was a robbery or a legalized robbery—

Lala Duni Chand : On a point of personal explanation.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I refuse to give way at this stage. I was surprised that the Congress party themselves who command a majority in the Central Legislature while they have defeated the Government on almost all important points have never tried to cut down the allowances from 20 to Rs. 10.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Angel quoting the scripture.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : Here is my friend the young baby angel from Sialkot (laughter).

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Is this parliamentary? If I say that my age is as much as his uncle's, will he accept it?

Mr. Speaker : I think "a baby angel" is not worse than "a blooming darling" (laughter and cheers).

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : Instead of indulging in these cheap interruptions I would like to see the honourable member get up and say that it is wrong and that the Congress are not drawing travelling allowances at the rate of Rs. 20 per day for the meetings of the Central Legislature and the Council of State or that they made an attempt to reduce the travelling allowances from Rs. 20 to Rs. 10. Although they command a majority in the House they have never tried to do anything of that sort. But here is my friend who gets up and says, the people are poor and peasants are poor, why do you charge Rs. 20 per day? But I may tell you that if the Congress did not know fully well that the cut would be defeated, I can assure you that they would not have moved it (Hear hear from ministerial benches) (Voices of No from Opposition benches). Mr. Speaker, if you will be kind enough to permit us we can still with your permission move an eleventh hour amendment and if my honourable friends and particularly Lala Duni Chand will think of some way, by which the Congress members only will draw Rs. 10 we will be glad to support it.

(Voices : Why this difference?). They know that the Bill will be passed, it is a reasonable amount, it is an amount which the Central Legislature has been paying to the members for so many years, they know that their amendment will be defeated and they will have the pleasure of a few Congress papers putting it in big headlines that the Congress members have great sympathy for the poor masses and thus will earn cheap popularity. I am sorry that my honourable friend in the heat of argument said so many things about members who are occupying the front benches on this side of the House. He made certain statements which are absolutely wrong and entirely untrue. He said that members on these benches could not make even Rs. 500 a month, if they were not here. He forgets, but there is no honourable member on this side who does not know, that the Leader of the House himself was drawing about Rs. 6,000 a month and probably he may have been drawing about Rs. 10,000 a month if he had not come over here. He has come here at a sacrifice (hear, hear). An argument repeated ad nauseum does not become strong, but it becomes ridiculous.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the honourable member if he considers that Rs. 6,000 a month was a reasonable salary? (Laughter).

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : That depends on the circumstances and the duties performed. My honourable friend has interrupted me, therefore, I must remind him that unless we are in a position to control the incomes of all classes of people conveying different trades and businesses, it is ridiculous to take only one class of people, that is the services for attack. When we know that there are people making millions at the expense of the poor peasants, there are men who are rolling in wealth sitting in the bazars of Bombay at the expense of poor peasants in the Punjab, is it fair to attack a few services alone? (At this time there were interruptions from many members). I wish one member interrupts me at a time, because I would like very much to reply, but unfortunately, twenty members speak at a time.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Now that you have the power, why not attack the incomes of these millionaires? (Hear, hear).

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I have no doubt that such proposals will be brought before this House separately and the honourable members opposite will be called upon to give proof of their genuine spirit of sacrifice and sympathy and love for the masses and I hope that they will support us. I have nothing more to add excepting simply to request the honourable members and particularly my honourable friend from Ambala for whom I have very great regard and respect, I really appeal to him kindly not to look at every matter from the point of view of money. He seems to be working under the impression that every honourable member who is present in this House not by nomination, but because he enjoys the confidence of his constituency, every honourable member who is present here is here because he wants to make Rs. 20 a day. This is an insult to the House and I think it is most improper on the part of any member to get up and make such a suggestion (hear, hear). Again it is said that the members are entitled to go about and draw travelling allowances and he said that by this method a member can make so much money per month. I am really surprised. Does he consider that honourable members of this House undertake journeys not because there is some important work but because by undertaking journeys they will make a little money.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : He never said that.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I would really request the honourable members opposite through you not to make statements which are likely unnecessarily to irritate all the self-respecting members of this House (hear, hear), because I can assure him that the only criterion of being a well-wisher of the people is not being a member of the Congress. Can he really and honestly say that all members occupying seats on the other side are angels and that they have no other consideration in view. What was that verse which my friend read ?

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Ask the Premier (laughter).

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : If all those honourable members sitting here instead of looking after the interests of themselves, are only looking at the interest of the people, they should be sitting on the heights of Himalayas. With these words I close my speech and hope that while discussing the merits of the amendment they will not indulge in cheap attacks on the honourable members on this side.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang (West Lahore Division, General, Rural) : Sir, the honourable gentleman, who has just resumed his seat, has asked my honourable friend from Ambala not to look at every question from the money point of view. I shall accept his advice. I do not want to look upon this question purely from monetary point of view, because I know that Rs. 10 or Rs. 20 are not going to make a poor-man rich and all these members here do not care so much whether they get Rs. 22-8-0 per day or they get Rs. 10 per day. They have spent thousands on their elections. I am sure this Bill is not going to compensate them for thousands that have been spent on their elections. If they can afford to spend thousands, I am sure they can afford to forego any increase in their daily allowances. I would, therefore, not look at the thing from the point of view of money alone.

There is such a thing as what I may call a sort of moral estoppel and I think we are bound by a sort of moral estoppel in this case because most of the members on this side and some on the other, have been saying that the expenditure of the Government should be reduced, because the province is poor. Some of the honourable members, particularly, on this side attacked the Ministers for drawing high salaries. They overlooked the fact that the Ministers have voluntarily reduced their salaries by 33 per cent.—an act of sacrifice on their part. Reference has been made to the Honourable Premier that he has sacrificed an office of six thousand rupees monthly and has come to serve his province on a salary of four thousand rupees monthly. I think due appreciation has been given to this act of sacrifice on his part. Then the question arises “are the members justified in asking for an increase in their daily allowances ?” I wish I could speak in Punjabi, so that I could impress upon those members, who are not familiar with the English language, the unreasonableness of this measure. I think they have looked at the thing from purely money point of view alone and not from the moral point of view. They should not care for an increase in their daily allowances or any other allowance. That is the first thing which I wanted to say.

Then, Sir, perhaps, it does not occur to them that the old Council was spending only Rs. 816 per day on daily allowances. Sixty-eight by 12, comes to Rs. 816. If I am wrong I shall accept the correction. Now the number of members who will draw allowances has been more than doubled. From 68 it has come to 167 and if you multiply 167 by 22-8-0, the amount comes to Rs. 3,757-8-0 per day. If you add to it the expenditure on account of the secretaries which are new features in this House, the daily expenditure would be very nearly Rs. 4,000 per day, which is nearly 5 times what this province was spending on its legislature.

Minister for Education : Do you then want the old system ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I am not enamoured of this expansion of the Assembly because if the Assembly becomes more chauri or more lambi, it does not bring salvation to the province ("hear, hear" from the Opposition Benches). We want men of sterling worth. Quantity is a secondary thing. It is quality that we want. If my honourable friend, I wish he had not spoken, thinks that by expansion of the Assembly, the salvation of the province is in sight, I think, he is sadly mistaken, the larger the number of members the greater are going to be their difficulties, as they must be experiencing even during this session. So, mere addition to the numbers does not necessarily mean an improvement or reform of the old system. We shall judge the new system when it has had time to work. I have scrupulously refrained from criticising the Government, as the honourable Government members must have seen. I have not said a word either against their salaries or against the constitution or against anything, because a baby is not to be blamed, if it cannot show any result. It is a baby Government. It requires yet to be cleaned and washed. I think it was rather unfair to condemn those gentlemen. It may be true, as my honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall said that even after some time there will be no result. But let us wait and help them in everything that is calculated to advance the interest of the province. I have, therefore, been listening with amusement to all the criticisms that have been made for or against it. Criticisms and encomiums have been both out of place, because the time has not yet advanced sufficiently far to enable us to form an opinion about the competency or incompetency of the present Government, or about its success or failure to do proper service to the province. I am not, therefore, enamoured of this numerical expansion. It has only brought more trouble and more expense to the province.

Then again, there is another thing which I want to bring to the notice of the members of this House and that is that the Ministers have made sacrifices—honourable members may not agree to it—but that is a great sacrifice—reducing their salaries by 33 per cent. What sacrifice have we, the members, made? They have reduced their salaries and you want to increase your allowance! Can you justify it on moral grounds? If you had followed the example of the Ministers, you should have come forward to reduce your allowance to Rs. 8 per day, because 33 per cent. reduction in Rs. 12, if I am not mistaken, means Rs. 8 a day. That would have been very fair. I tell you that the whole province would have been praising your sacrifice and your good sense. Then your criticisms against the Government and your cry for reduction in provincial expenditure would have been justified. Now the people will say "with what face can you ask the Government to reduce their expenditure, and reduce the salaries of its officers who have to work from 12 to 16 hours a day sometimes, when you are yourself asking for 50 or cent. per cent. increase in your allowances." This is what your voters will ask you. They know what is happening in this House. They will certainly tell you, 'you great patriots, you have been promising that you will go and try to reduce the expenditure of the province, you will make a cut in the salaries of officers and will try to turn out those Indian Civil Service and Imperial Service men, who are drawing such fat salaries; but you are asking the Government for Rs. 22-8-0 instead of Rs. 12 per day that you are getting now.' Are you justified yourself in their eyes? I am talking from honour point of view. You are honourable men, representing your constituencies. With what face can you go and justify this increase in your allowance.

Then again, Sir, a point was made by my honourable friend Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan. He says those people are addicted to kar-i-digar when they are in khilwat, they talk differently when they come to Councils, and when they are by themselves they act quite differently.

He quoted the instance of my honourable friend Lala Duni Chand and his Congress colleagues in the Central Assembly, who have never hesitated to draw Rs. 20 per day. If Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan were here he would have certainly appreciated what I am going to say that if the Congress is blamed for not reducing their allowances, you will be blamed much more for asking for an increase in your allowances. The Congress can certainly look after itself. The Congress Party will try to defend it. There is some force in the charge. I am sure the Congress people now perhaps will think of reducing their travelling and daily allowances. The proposal before you now is not to reduce your allowance but to increase your allowance. If you can accuse the Congress for not reducing their allowance, cannot they accuse you for asking for an increase in your allowance? These are the two points, which I would respectfully ask you to consider. It is not a question of putting a little more money in your pocket. It is really a question of honour, prestige, and as I said, of a sort of moral estoppel.

Several Honourable Members : The question may now be put—

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the question be now put.

The motion was carried.

Lala Duni Chand : I want to make a short reply. I would not have done so if Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan had not indulged in certain irresponsible language. He quoted a couplet of Hafiz. Well I can give him a reply. When we were in the Central Legislative Assembly we were giving a little trouble to the Government Benches. What did we do? When we go outside many of us—

وہ بیگموت ہے۔ یہ وہی کار۔ دیگر مہنگند

When we think of serving the country we do other things in Khilwat. Whether in the Khilwat of jails or outside we can show what we can do and what mettle we are made of.

I would like to say a word with regard to what Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang has said. I confess I am not as judicially minded as Dr. Gokul Chand is. I wish I could cultivate that spirit of judicial mindedness. He is a trained man and a very high placed man. He has been occupying those benches. He made a very valuable suggestion. If the Government benches are going to accept Rs. 8 or Rs. 10 or 12 I shall be at one with them and so will be the members sitting on this side. I must repudiate some absolutely wrong things which Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan has said. I never said that men like the Honourable Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan had not made any sacrifice. I said there are certain members, big landlords, big capitalists and so on to whom it is nothing whether they get Rs. 15 or Rs. 30 or Rs. 40. I can understand the Honourable Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan was getting six thousand rupees a month. I can assure him that if now as the head of the Government he goes to America on a lecturing tour he will be making Rs. 50,000 a month. Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan said that I was a member of the Legislative Assembly at one time drawing Rs. 20 a day. Let me tell him one thing with regard to my earnings. Several months before we were due to retire there was an order to walk out and we walked out and I was one of those who had walked out and after that I never had a look at the Central Legislative Assembly. I may quote another instance. Once a Bill was prepared for me for Rs. 3,000 by the Central Assembly Office. When I had a look at it, I thought it was wrong and that I was entitled to only Rs. 1,700 and I drew the attention of the office to this fact.

Mr. E. Few : Is the honourable member speaking to the motion or eulogising his own doings?

Mr. Speaker : In other words he is saying that the honourable member is not speaking to the motion.

Lala Duni Chand : I am making a reply to the gratuitous attack that the honourable member Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan has made. The Congress party has never been in the majority in the Central Legislative Assembly, neither in 1923 nor in 1926 nor even now. It may be the largest single party but it does not constitute the majority. Give a majority to the Congress party in the Central Legislative Assembly and then you will see what they are capable of. Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan always used to humour Pandit Motilal Nehru. If he could ever talk about the members of the Congress he could get correct information. Considerations of fair play require that the honourable Government members should accept this motion and I for one shall not feel in any way flattered by that. I assure you there are men who are capable of appreciating the earnestness on our side. I shall publicly acknowledge that they have given one proof of being real friends of the people. With these words I appeal to the members of this House and to all the members of the Unionist Party to support this motion.

An attempt has been made to create a certain amount of prejudice against this motion by Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan. I have got as much respect for the members on that side as I have got for members on this side. But in the course of the debate it is absolutely necessary to draw up a picture of all the parties. After all, all of us have not got the same kind of views, the same mentality, the same attitude. I never said a word with regard to any member or that any member makes money out of the railway fare. I said they might have important work to go to headquarters often. I am sorry that my old friend Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan should have made these gratuitous attacks that he has made on me.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : After this assurance from my honourable friend I withdraw what I said on this point.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikandar Hyat-Khan) : I have listened with great interest to the learned and lucid speech made by my honourable friend opposite and I am glad and I have much pleasure in conceding that he and other honourable members like him have made great sacrifices in coming to this House, especially an able advocate like him making Rs. 100, coming and giving his service for the sake of the province as also several other members on that side. It was in consideration of that particular point of view that we thought it necessary to fix a sum that makes an approach to adequacy. As you are aware, originally it was intended to provide a consolidated annual salary for members, but there are some members who took exception to the idea of a salary. They said "we do not want a salary because after all we come here to serve the people. What we really want is to get something so that we may not be out of pocket." I admit that there are some members who can live on a much smaller sum than Rs. 10, and if they try to reduce our standard of life, it might be a welcome feature. If we all are able to reduce our standard to the previous Indian standards, it might be desirable in many ways. We cannot deny the fact that at the moment the standard of living is high. For instance, my honourable friends living in the Cecil Hotel have to pay more than Rs. 10 a day as minimum hotel charge, and therefore it would not be fair to ask them to be out of pocket. My honourable friend the mover of the amendment has replied to all the various criticisms made against the proposal except one which seems to me to be very important. If some of my friends of the Congress in the Assembly can draw Rs. 20 a day and Rs. 5 a day conveyance allowance without any qualms of conscience I do not think that the honourable members are justified to indulge in humorous hits at the expense of members on this side or for that matter that side of the House. I beg to submit that he has not answered that question.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : May I ask one question from the Honourable the Premier? The Ministers now in some of the provinces shall be getting Rs. 500 a month. Will the Cabinet of the Punjab follow the Congress?

Premier : My honourable friend has again asked whether the Punjab Cabinet will follow the Congress. I have repeated on the floor of the House several times that the Punjab is not to follow others : it is to lead other provinces (hear, hear). We do not believe in this cheap sentimentalism : we believe in real constructive work. So far as the Punjab is concerned we are going to give a lead to other provinces. I hope history will show that the Punjab has given a lead ; and I dare say perhaps the example of the Punjab has encouraged other provinces to accept office. My honourable friends are always restive when they find that the answers to their interruptions are inconvenient from their point of view. I was saying that my honourable friend has not answered that criticism from that part of the House. If my honourable friend Mr. Bhulabhai Desai could without any qualms of conscience draw Rs. 25, why could not Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan do the same when it costs him Rs. 20 to live in Simla or Lahore ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : They did for 17 years, but conditions have changed now.

Premier : Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan was getting Rs. 25 in the Council of State.

I need not detain the House any longer. I think my honourable friend has unnecessarily wasted his breath : I do not want to waste my time because the last amendment gives the fullest possible latitude to my honourable friends opposite or my friends on this side that if they do not wish to draw the full amount in the interest of the province or for any reasons of conscience then it is open to them to draw Rs. 15 or Rs. 10 or Rs. 5. They have got the fullest latitude. They can practice what they affect to preach, and win name and fame. I think this amendment is wholly unnecessary. If they do not want to draw the full amount they are welcome to do so. Perhaps if they could give a lead they might be causing other members on the other side of the House to follow them. I, therefore, do not think that in view of the last amendment it is necessary for him to press his amendment.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That in clause 3, line 5, for the word 'twenty' the word "ten" be substituted.

The motion was lost.

Conveyance allowance of members.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the first four lines of clause 3 as amended and sub-clause (a) of the clause stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Lala Duni Chand : I beg to move—

That sub-clause (b) of clause 3 be deleted.

I do not propose to make any speech on this motion. The arguments that I put forward on the other motion apply mutatis mutandis to this amendment also.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That sub-clause (b) of clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

The Assembly divided : Ayes 93, Noes 30.

AYES.

Travelling allowance of members.

Lala Duni Chand (Ambala and Simla, General, Rural) : I move—

That at the end of clause 3 (c) the following be added—

“ Provided that members shall not be entitled to more than second class rail way fare.”

Sir, I move the amendment without any speech.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved—

‘Provided that members shall not be entitled to more than second class rail-way fare.’

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikandar Hyat-Khan) : I suggest to the honourable members that this is a matter for the committee which will frame rules. When they have framed the rules, those rules will come before the House and then the honourable members will be at liberty to move an amendment to the rules.

Lala Duni Chand : Sir, I want that the committee should make rules subject to this proviso.

Premier : You will be able to get the verdict of the House on that issue when the rules have been framed.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That at the end of clause 3 (c) the following be added:—

'Provided that members shall not be entitled to more than second class railway fare.'

The motion was lost.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That sub-clause (c) of clause 3 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That clause 3 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Clause 4.

Allowances of members — Committee to make rules.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural)
I beg to move—

That in clause 4, line 1, between the words 'may' and 'make' the following be inserted—

'On the report and recommendations of a committee representative of the Assembly.'

The object of the amendment is to make sure that before the Government draw up rules, the views and wishes of all sections of the House may be placed before the Government. I am not unaware of clause (2) of section 4 which is to the effect that rules when framed shall be laid on the table of the Assembly and then they will be passed subject to such amendments as the Assembly may make in these rules. While not unaware of this sub-clause (2), I am also not unaware of the fact that once Government has arrived at a decision with regard to these rules and placed them before the House, the minority will not be able to alter or amend those rules, however reasonable those amendments may be. At least that is our experience up to this time.

Mr. Speaker : Clause under consideration, amendment moved—

That in clause 4, line 1, between the words 'may' and 'make' the following be inserted—

'On the report and recommendations of a committee representative of the Assembly.'

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): I think it would be premature to appoint a committee at this stage. The rules will have to be framed in consonance with the Act itself. They cannot go beyond the scope of the Bill, so they will have to be in conformity with the provisions of this Bill when it is passed into an Act. The rules will be very simple, merely with regard to the travelling allowance and the days on which members will be entitled to draw their residential allowance. I do not think it is necessary to appoint a committee. Government will ask its experts to frame the rules and they will be placed on the table of the House. If any honourable member wants to alter them in the House, he will be at perfect liberty to do so at that stage.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That in clause 4, line 1, between the words 'may' and 'make' the following be inserted—

'On the report and recommendations of a committee representative of the Assembly.'

The motion was lost.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I beg to move—

That in clause 4, line 2, for the words "to determine" the word 'regarding' be substituted.

The motion was put and carried.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I beg to move—

That in clause 4, sub-clause (1) (a), line 1, for the word 'during' the word 'for' be substituted.

The motion was put and carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That sub-clause (1) (a) of clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That sub-clause (1) (b) of clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I beg to move—

That in clause 4, sub-clause (1) (c) for the words 'are to' the word 'may' be substituted.

The motion was put and carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That sub-clause (1) (c) of clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That sub-clause (1) (d) of clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I beg to move—

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member's amendment has been handed over to me just now ; but as it is an important one, I permit it to be moved.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I beg to move—

That in clause 4 (2), line 2, the semi-colon be deleted and for the words beginning with 'they shall' in line 2 to the end of the sub-clause, the following be substituted :—

'and shall only take effect when they have been passed with such amendments, if any, as the Assembly may make therein.

This amendment has been moved for the reason that if and when the Assembly wants to amend them, they need not pass a resolution but when the rules are before them, they can amend them by means of a single resolution.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That in clause 4 (2), line 2, the semi-colon be deleted and for the words beginning with "they shall" in line 2 to the end of the sub-clause, the following be substituted :—

'and shall only take effect when they have been passed with such amendments, if any, as the Assembly may make therein.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That sub-clause (2) of clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Sardar Hari Singh : I beg to move—

That in the last line of sub-clause (3) of clause 4, for the word 'to' the words 'in the case of' be substituted.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That in the last line of sub-clause (3) of clause 4, for the word 'to' the words 'in the case of' be substituted.

Premier : I suggest to the honourable member that word 'to' is better than the words 'in case of'.

At the request of the honourable member the motion was by leave withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker : Question is —

That sub-clause (3) of clause 4 stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That the whole clause 4 as amended stand part of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Preamble.

Sardar Hari Singh : I beg to move—

That in line 4 of the preamble between the words 'provincial' and 'Assemblies' the word 'legislative' be inserted.

Premier : It seems to be unnecessary, but since the honourable member wants me to accept his amendment I do so (laughter).

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That in line 4 of the preamble between the words 'provincial' and 'Assemblies' the word 'legislative' be inserted.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the preamble as amended be the preamble of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That the title be the title of the Bill.

The motion was carried.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): Sir, I beg to move—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill as amended be passed.

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill as amended be passed.

Chaudhri Ram Sarup (Central Rohtak, General, Rural) (Urdu): Sir, I do not understand why such a hue and cry has been raised in the Assembly by the Opposition benches. The fact is that we are acting on the principles enunciated by them. The proceedings of the Assembly are being carried on in accordance with the wishes of the Opposition and the Government has drafted this Bill, keeping in view the wishes of Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru. The Congress wants to raise the standard of living of the poorer classes and desires to keep down the capitalists. The present Government too has acted in a similar manner. (Hear, hear). The Government has reduced the salaries of high officials and has given the poor members a leg-up. (Laughter). Under these circumstances if fail to understand why the Congress Party is opposing this Bill, when everything is being done in accordance with its wishes.

There is a proverb which fits the present situation.

We are blamed for wasting the money of poor zamindars. My reply to this criticism is that we will not accept these allowances provided they return the money which they have extorted from the poor zamindars. (Laughter). Are they prepared to return the money which they have taken from the pockets of the poor? Thirdly, I beg to state that we spent about Rs. 20,000 each on our election campaigns. If we are given allowance at a higher rate, some of the money spent by us poor people would be returned to us, and the money spent by capitalists would also go back to their pockets. In this matter the Government has really acted in accordance with the principles of the Opposition.

Before I resume my seat I would like to make a suggestion to my honourable friends opposite that whereas their ministers have accepted Rs. 500, they should accept an allowance of Rs. 5 and whereas our ministers have accepted Rs. 3,000 we should be allowed to earn treble the amount that would be paid to them. (Laughter). With these words, I request the Opposition not to oppose this Bill. I whole heartedly support this Bill.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban): Sir, I rise to oppose the passage of this Bill. I would not have stood to oppose it, but I stand because it is said that we people here are opposed to the principle of elevating the poor and, therefore, we should not oppose this Bill. When my honourable friend, Lala Duni Chand moved an amendment, in reply to his speech it was said that it was not proper on his part to say that people come here only from monetary point of view. To advance such arguments against us is not justified. My submission is that the honourable member should not have said so, because he has insulted the whole House by saying that people come here to earn money and not to serve the people even at a sacrifice. ("Hear, hear" from the Opposition benches).

I oppose this Bill from another point of view also. It has been said that the members of the Central Assembly have been drawing Rs. 20 a day when they are in session—and because certain Congress members are there—when Congress people draw Rs. 20 a day, there is no reason why we should oppose here. I am really surprised to hear this argument. It is said that the Central Assembly is not a popular responsible body as this House is. The old Assembly follows old rules and if they draw any allowance, it should not be taken as a precedent for us. We here feel that this new constitution under which we are working, is becoming top-heavy and, therefore, if we increase the expenditure, further I am afraid, provincial autonomy shall be a failure and we shall be accused of it. It is no fault of ours if under the constitution certain salaries have been fixed for certain set of people ; but whatever expenditure lies in our hand, I think, it is our duty to reduce it as much as we can.

Next, it has been said that we can draw less if we like and that only the maximum is being fixed. What I want is that this maximum which any member can draw should not be high. We feel that Rs. 20 a day is too much. If the members on the other side, who have supported this measure, are prepared to work honorarily, I am prepared to do so. ("Hear, hear" from the Opposition benches). Though I am a poor man, I have to earn my livelihood by working daily, even in that case I am prepared to work honorarily, not only during the session but even throughout the year, if the other party, which wants Rs. 20, is also prepared to do so. ("Hear, hear" from the Opposition benches). What I want is this. I want to fix a maximum which a member can draw. If we fix it at Rs. 10 or Rs. 12 it does not mean that we shall draw that 10 or 12 rupees. Had it been adopted you would not have been able to draw such a big sum as Rs. 20 a day. There are some people who do not get a single pie, but still work for the service of the country. Therefore, the argument that those who want to take less can take less does not satisfy us.

We want that the maximum should be reduced and that maximum should not be more than Rs. 10 or 12. But the House has adopted Rs. 20 and that is why I rise to oppose the Bill. Further, it was stated that there are people who now say, we work in the interests of the peasants, but when they were doing their professional work they took a lot of money from the poor people and if they are going to return it they should first do so and then work in the interests of the peasant. My submission is, let those big landlords who enjoy, who live a very luxurious life at the cost of the poor come forward and not only preach but practise equality. Let them do acts which would alleviate the condition of the poor people and then when they are ready to return their money, then I think those on this side who earned anything from the people will return it. Next it was said that people on the other side spend all the money they earn from the peasants, for them. During the election time they say they spent thousands and that was only helping the poor. They are satisfied with it. They say that they have spent thousands ; they earned it from the poor and it has gone back to the poor. I do not know how. Does every pie they spend on their clothes, etc., go to the poor people ? It does not. It goes to the foreign country. Does every pie they spend themselves go to the pockets of the poor ? It is not right to say that because they spend thousands on elections they have got a monopoly of serving the poor or representing the poor.

Chaudhri Ram Sarup : I would like to ask the honourable member whether those who do not receive allowances do not wear clothes.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I appreciate the sacrifice which has been made by most of those who are here, giving up their work at their places and trying to serve the people in their own light. I do appreciate it but when it is said that they cannot meet their expenses if their daily allowance-is less than Rs. 20 and they will be out of pocket, I think they are minimising the sacrifice which they are making. It was argued that the Honourable Premier was drawing Rs. 6,000 a month and he has made a great sacrifice by accepting this office and giving up his previous post. I appreciate it and I shall appreciate it further when I find that he begins to live a poor man's life because he feels for the poor. He may not reduce it to Rs. 500 or Rs. 1,000, but let him reduce it to a very substantial amount and at the same time as Leader of this House and as Leader of the majority party let him issue a whip that all members of his party should draw less and thus reduce the expenditure.

Premier : I am prepared if you give me roti and kapra for me and my children, a sufficient wherewithal to live.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I guarantee him as much money as would enable him to live a poor man's life, and thus enable him to serve as Premier of this province honourably and set an example to others. I am not one of those who shall be ashamed of drawing an allowance for the sake of maintenance out of public fund or a Government fund, because Government fund is after all public fund. Every man has to live. But what we want is this that we should live like a poor man because we represent the poor people. Then, again, it has been said that the Punjab leads other provinces and therefore we should give a lead here also. I know that Punjab has given a lead, but that lead does not bring credit to us. We are a poorer province than many others, but we are making our Government more top-heavy. Therefore it is not the right lead that we are giving to other provinces in the country. Therefore my submission is that we should not adopt this Bill and not bring shame to our province. (Cheers).

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani (Muzaffargarh North, Muhammadan, Rural). (Urdu): Mr. Speaker, my honourable friend Lala Duni Chand quoted the following Persian verse in his speech:—

حکم ۱۰ خدای دہم نیائی دہم
ایں خیال است و مجال است و جنوں

It means that a person cannot be a saint and a worldly man at the same time or in other words virtue and worldly affairs do not go together. I do not agree with my honourable friend's philosophy. My own idea is that the greatest virtue is to serve one's fellow beings in the world. I think my honourable friend has been influenced by the political career of the great Mahatama in forming this opinion and he thinks that spiritualism and political leadership should not go together. He had better tender this advice to the great Mahatama of the Congress (laughter and cheers).

Lala Duni Chand : What I said was this that either serve the people of the Punjab or take salaries.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : How can my honourable friend tender this advice to us when he and his co-workers have been receiving remuneration for their services to the country? As a matter of fact most of them live on public charity and subscriptions.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member should not be personal.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : I have no intention to be personal. I was answering my honourable friend's remarks. It has been remarked by the Opposition benches that the Unionist Government has increased the allowance of the members while it should have been reduced in order to effect economy. My honourable friends of the Opposition seem to be labouring under a misunderstanding which I would like to remove. Section 72 of the Government of India Act, 1935, lays down that members of provincial legislative assemblies and legislative councils shall be entitled to receive such salaries and allowances as may from time to time be determined by act of the provincial legislature and until provision in that respect is so made allowances at such rates and upon such conditions as were immediately before the commencement of this part of this Act applicable in the case of members of the legislative councils of the province. Sir, the phraseology of this section clearly shows that the word "salaries" has been deliberately included in this section and that the British Parliament was aware that the members of the provincial legislatures did not receive any salaries at the time of passing this Act, but only drew an allowance for the days on which the legislature was in session. In all democratic countries the members of Parliament receive salaries. The principle underlying the payment of legislative salaries is to enable a poor man to devote himself to public life if he has the talents and capacity to do so. It would be not only undemocratic, but also unwise to allow only rich persons to have a monopoly in politics. After all politics is a business of complicated detail in which the knowledge and experience of the trained men as well as the energy and commonsense of the public spirited amateur are needed. Politics should, therefore, cease to be an occupation or an amusement for only those persons who have leisure, wealth and ambition. The association of the money-power with politics, is an evil which may lend itself to grave abuses unless carefully controlled. It is, therefore, in the best interest of good Government to have a representation of talented persons from all sections of the population in the Government machinery. The British Parliament realised that with the lowering of the franchise the provincial legislatures will include a sufficient number of persons of moderate means. A provision for legislative salaries was, therefore, made to enable them to take part in the public life of their country and discharge their duties effectively. We must also take into account the difference between the last constitution and the present constitution. The legislative councils under the last régime were irresponsible bodies and the Government under the old constitution was not responsible to the members of the legislatures. The voters in the constituencies realised that it was not obligatory upon the Government to accept the advice of their representatives in all administrative matters. Under a system of diarchy the elected representatives of the people therefore, were not answerable to the electorate for all the doings of the Government. The new constitution has laid the foundations of a responsible Government. The present Government is responsible to the people for every action. A popular Government must, therefore, be alive to the needs and requirements of the people and should be aware of public opinion. The present members of the legislatures who are elected representatives and spokesmen of their respective constituencies must have a close contact with the masses in order to represent their points of view truly and faithfully. In order to acquaint themselves with the needs and problems of the people they will have to go about in their constituencies more often than their predecessors used to do in the past. This will not only entail a sacrifice of their professional work, but they will also have to incur additional expenses in touring. The members will have to devote a considerable time in organising public opinion and in creating political consciousness in the masses in addition to the time spent in their parliamentary duties. Under the new constitution the responsibilities of the members have greatly increased. They will have to devote much more time in the performance of their duties as members of the legislature than their predecessors. The present Government is responsible to the legislature and the members will, therefore, be answerable to the electorate for the doings of the Government. (An honourable member : The present Government is as irresponsible as the one preceding it. No one listens to the members even now.) This remark of my honourable friend is unfounded. The present Government always welcomes constructive suggestions and sensible counsels (cheers). But you can hardly expect the Government, to pay any heed to unreasonable and absurd suggestions and destructive criticism (laughter). Sir, the Government placed its proposals regarding the salaries and allowances of members before the members of the Government Party and the proposals were carefully examined by them in a private meeting. I hope I am not divulging any secret when I say that the Government originally proposed an annual salary for the members and railway passes for their travelling. Keeping in view the financial position of the province the salary proposed was not commensurate with the status and the position of the members. Some of the members, therefore, objected to name it as a salary, as they thought it would be inconsistent with their position to be in receipt of a senior grade clerk's pay. They, therefore, suggested that the proposed amount may be given to them in the form of daily allowance. After estimating the number of days on which the assembly will be in session every year the daily allowance was fixed at the present rate which does not exceed the proposed amount of salary. I make bold to say that the amount proposed to be given to the members of the Punjab Legislative Assembly will work out to be much less than the salaries and allowances, which will be given to the members in the six Congress provinces. As I have already explained the allowance proposed is not being given to the members only for the days of Assembly meetings, but also to meet at least some portion of the out-of-pocket expense which the members will have to incur in the performance of their parliamentary duties, apart from attending meetings of the legislature. This provision will stimulate and encourage the inclusion of a large body of talented persons of moderate means in the legislature. Those members who have plenty of money and private means need not take the allowance, and I am sure the provincial exchequer will be grateful to them for their generosity. Moreover, we do not possess large party funds like the Congress, to support our members by under-hand means. Our poor members will have to depend on their allowances for their out-of-pocket expense which they will have to incur in the performance of their duties. We believe in straight-forward and clean methods (cheers and laughter).

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Then why not give them Rs. 30 a day ?

Begum Rashida Latif : If you wish to organize your province you should not forget the women and do something for them as well.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : Sir, I have not excluded the women from the term "people" and I can assure my honourable sister that we shall be glad to do all that lies in our power for her sex. Do my honourable friends of the Opposition wish that the Government of this country should always remain a monopoly of the capitalists? Do they wish that the poor sections of the population should have no representation in the administration of the country? Do they wish to deprive the masses of their birthright of self-government? Do they intend to shape the responsible Government in this country on the lines of the capital-ridden Congress?

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not speaking to the motion.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : In a democratic system of Government every capable person should be afforded equal opportunities to take part in the public life of the country irrespective of his social or financial position. I would now place before the House some figures with regard to salaries which members of the parliaments receive in other countries. In England a member of the House of Commons received a salary of £400 per annum free of income-tax which has lately been increased to £600 per annum. He is also provided with free railway or steamer tickets between London and the constituency.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : You should also take into account the income per head in that country.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : My honourable friend should realise that our allowance is much less than what the members of the British Parliament get. They always bring in the question of income per head. Do they mean that all salaries and wages in India should be based at 6 pice a day? I do not believe in the Congress doctrine of receiving a pocket money from the State and making a living on public subscriptions. In Canada a member gets 4,000 dollars a session or 25 dollars a day for a session of less than 50 days along with actual travelling expenses to and from his home. In Australia a member gets a salary of £1,000 per annum and free passes over all railways to members, as well as free passes for wives of members to and from their home during a session. In South Africa £700 per annum are paid to a member with free railway pass for their journey. In Irish Free State a member receives £360 per annum and free travelling by railway train, bus and motor cars. In South-West Africa a member gets £120 per annum and free railway travelling throughout the year.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : What is the per capita income in those countries?

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : If my honourable friend will allow me to proceed, I shall also quote him the figures for those countries whose income per capita is not more than in India. Let us take the case of Ceylon. There a member gets Rs. 400 a month in addition to a free first class all stations railway pass and a third class servant pass throughout the year and also free conveyance of car and chaffeur by train when travelling on Council business. In New Zealand a member receives £ 865 per annum and a free railway pass for himself and his wife. In the Indian Legislative Assembly and the Council of State a member receives a daily allowance of Rs. 20 plus Rs. 2-8-0 as conveyance allowance. He is entitled to a daily allowance for 3 days before and after the session in regard to Assembly and seven days in regard to the Council of State. The member of the Central Legislature also gets free conveyance of car and chauffeur by rail when attending a session and 1½ first class railway fare.

Begum Rashida Latif : Do some people die of hunger in Ceylon ?

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : What to say of Ceylon, people die of hunger and cold even in the heart of London. We and our Congress friends are not on the same footing. They are for destruction while we are for construction. They have entered the legislatures to wreck the constitution while we have come to work it. There must be a difference between the wages of a labourer who is engaged in pulling down the edifice and a mason who is engaged in the construction of a building. The destructive work which is before the Congress does not require much talent while we have a gigantic task of building up a new Punjab. We are faced with serious problems of making every person in the Punjab literate, removing unemployment, developing industries, increasing the income and standard of living of the masses and uplifting the oppressed and down-trodden sections of the society. For a task of this nature we require a whole-hearted and whole-time co-operation of our members through whom we wish to organise public opinion and create a political and social consciousness in the masses.

With these words, I support the motion under consideration.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Amritsar North, Sikh, Rural) (Punjab) : Sir, while opposing the Bill now before the House I would like to make only two observations. The first point which I wish to bring to the notice of the House is as clear as daylight and that is that a further burden is being laid on the shoulders of the poor. The Unionists claim to be the well-wishers of the poor people but their actions are quite contrary to their professions.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Is the honourable member in order in repeating the same arguments.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : I am in order because I am not repeating any argument. The second point which I want to make is that I do not like to quarrel about the daily allowance, because I have not spent a pie from my pocket on my election campaign.

Premier : You better forego it.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : The Honourable the Premier has remarked that I should better forego it.

Mr. Speaker : I request the honourable member to speak to the motion.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : I was submitting that the Honourable Premier asked me to forego my allowance. In reply to that remark I would say that I will not forego a single pie of my allowance. (Laughter.) Do you know why I propose to do that? Simply to use it against the Unionist Party. (Laughter.) I will form batches of labourers and farmers, and when the next general election takes place, I will use them against the said party. When the Congress comes into power with a majority at its back, even then I will fight for these labourers and farmers just as I am doing now.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the question be now put.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the Punjab Legislative Assembly (Allowances of Members) Bill as amended be passed.

The Assembly divided : Ayes 83, Noes 27.

AYES.

The interest figures against any year in the above statement do not, therefore, represent the interest on the sums advanced in that year.

REALIZATION OF LAND REVENUE AFTER DUE DATE.

*453. Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan: Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- the total amount of land revenue, abiana and rent for temporary cultivation realized during the last year after the date due for the realization of the same;

- (c) whether the Government contemplates introducing the said system throughout the province, if not, why not ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes, since Kharif 1936.

(b) A statement is laid on the table.

(c) The desirability of introducing the sliding scale system of assessment in other parts of the province will be considered as and when each district comes under re-settlement.

This figure also includes the remission allowed on account of hailstorm and gram-blight.

BETTER LAND.

455. Sardar Jagjit Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether Government is aware of the fact that in Sheikhpura district, an extensive area of land has been severely damaged by waterlogging ;
- (b) the total amount of such land ;
- (c) how much, if any, of such land has been exchanged for better land ;
- (d) the action the Government proposes to take in connection with the land which has not been so far exchanged ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes, about 8·8 per cent. of the total area of the Sheikhpura district is affected by waterlogging.

- (b) 180,725 acres (cultivated 19,457 ; uncultivated 111,268 acres).
- (c) So far nil.

(d) It is not proposed to effect any exchanges of land, but seepage drains are being constructed with the object of reclaiming as much of the land as possible. In a few hard cases relief has been given by the grant of land on temporary cultivation terms.

456. Sardar Jagjit Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) what facilities Government intends to extend to the fruit-growers in the province ;

Minister : The reports are to come from local officers. I cannot anticipate the time by which they will be in.

Diwan Chaman Lall : How long does the Honourable Minister think it will take ?

- (b) the number and the names of stenographers now employed by the Lahore Municipality ;

(b) One, namely M. Muhammad Iqbal.

(d) No grounds were given in the order of discharge, but it is explained that the post of personal assistant to the president held by him became redundant on the supersession of the Committee. The discharged municipal employees of Lahore have put in petitions to Government and this case will be considered with the others.

CHAHI RATES.

- (b) whether he is aware of the fact that the Punjab Legislative Council once recommended to abolish chahi rates ;
- (c) whether he is aware of the fact that cultivators have often protested against the levying of chahi rates ;
- (d) whether Government is now prepared to consider the question of abolishing the chahi rates ; if not, the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) It is not possible to give an exact figure, but according to a rough estimate made in 1929 the additional revenue derived from chahi rates amounts to about Rs. 42 lakhs.

(b) Yes, a cut motion urging the abolition of chahi rates was passed by the Punjab Legislative Council in March, 1927.

(c) A few petitions to this effect were received by Government mostly in the years 1928—30. But these do not justify the statement that "cultivators have often protested against the levying of chahi rates".

(d) Government consider that the present rules for the assessment of chahi rates read with those for the grant of protective leases to wells are sufficiently generous, inasmuch as they allow the remission of the chahi rate during a period of 20 to 40 years with the object of enabling the cultivator to recoup at least twice the capital sunk by him in the well. Government are not, therefore, in a position to remit the 42 lakhs of revenue mentioned in part (a) of this reply. In any case, they would await the report of the recently announced Land Revenue Committee which will investigate the best means of affording relief to small holders in the province.

- (c) whether he is aware that the inhabitants of the town had contributed a handsome sum towards the construction of the bund and the Municipal Committee of Sadhaura and the District

Board had also sanctioned a sum, the whole amounting to Rs. 17,000, but this sum has been curtailed to Rs. 8,000 ;

- (d) whether the construction of this bund has been postponed to the next year ;
- (e) whether it is proposed to have the bund constructed before this rainy season ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) The earliest date when the work can be taken in hand is the month of October, 1987. It is very risky to undertake the work at this juncture and it would have been equally risky if the work had been started and remained incomplete at the time rains had set in.

(b) Government is quite alive to the seriousness of the situation and have contributed Rs. 3,300 towards the execution of the work.

(c) The District Engineer's estimate of Rs. 17,000 has been modified to Rs. 8,452 by the Superintending Engineer, Drainage Circle, and the contributions are as under :—

| | Rs. |
|-------------------------------------|-------|
| Inhabitants of the town | 1,399 |
| Municipal Committee, Sadhaura | 1,750 |
| District Board, Ambala | 2,000 |
| Government of the Punjab | 3,300 |
| Total .. | 8,449 |

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) It is not in the public interest to collect this information which would involve a considerable amount of labour.

(b) This is a matter of opinion. The honourable member is, however, referred to part Y of the Government review on the Municipal reports for the year 1984-85.

Minister : There is no idea for the present, but if there is any need, Government will.

(b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, what action the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Yes.

(b) None, as Government has no statutory power to prevent unqualified persons from practising as physicians and surgeons, provided they do not pretend to be qualified or registered practitioners.

Sardar Ajit Singh (Urdu) : Will the Punjab Government recommend to the Government of India not to allow any unqualified doctors to practise ?

(b) what action Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes, except Sargodha, Bhalwal and Phullarwan where it is four pies per maund and Kamalia where it is six pies per maund. It is not possible to fix a uniform rate as the local conditions on the basis of which the rates are fixed, are not uniform.

(c) Yes.

- (f) whether Jathedar Udham Singh was not permitted to attend the last general meeting of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee held in the month of March by the District Magistrate of Amritsar ;
- (g) whether in similar cases in the same district and in other places, the permission to attend the meeting of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, was ever refused in the past ;
- (h) if the answer to (g) be in the negative, the reasons why discrimination has been made in the case of Jathedar Udham Singh ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) For having acted in a manner prejudicial to the public safety and peace.

(c) His activities were restricted from the 28th September, 1936.

(d) The cases of all restricted persons are examined by Government periodically.

(e) Yes, he is a member of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee.

(g) No. The honourable member himself applied for permission to attend meetings of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, when his movements were restricted under the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, in October, 1934 and March, 1935. Permission was granted on two occasions.

(h) No discrimination has been made. The District Magistrate in his discretion refused permission in this case as he had reason to believe that the privilege would be abused.

Sardar Partab Singh : How does the Honourable Premier think that privileges would have been abused by attending the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee ?

Premier : I have nothing to add to my answer.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Is it a fact that district magistrate sometimes grant leave to detenues ?

Premier : I have already stated so in my reply.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) and (b) The honourable member is asked to see the reply given in 1927 to question *3497, printed at pages 1205-1206 of Punjab Council Debates (Volume XI).

(c) Government would be ready to give consideration to any particular cases in which the sentences could be shown to have caused unnecessary suffering, on the application of the persons affected ; but are not prepared to take any general action to modify the orders passed.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : A reference to the year 1927 is given ; while the Government being new, they should have given some recent reference.

Premier : The honourable member has asked the question about 1914-15 and he says that I should be expected to answer a question which relates to an incident in 1914-15, and yet he would not take the trouble of going to the library and finding out what the proceedings of the House were with regard to that very matter.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : If a question is asked about 1914-15, is the Honourable Premier in order to refer to files and not give a reply outright ?

Mr. Speaker : When answers to questions are printed in the proceedings of this House, to refer to them is only fair when identical questions are asked again.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : How many bighas of land were confiscated ?

Premier : How does it arise from this question ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram :

| | Acres. |
|------------------|---------|
| (a) 1930 | 306,696 |
| 1936 | 474,200 |

(b) The situation is practically the opposite, in that there is room for much more cane to be grown within economic distance of sugar-factories and for cane of varieties that will give more sugar over a longer season to be grown.

- (c) what further steps Government propose to take to protect the lives of wild birds and animals ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) and (b). This is a very difficult matter to judge but various indications suggest that there is not only no decrease but probably some increase, and that this is the result of the Wild Birds' and Wild Animals' Protection Act.

CONTRIBUTIONS BY PUNJAB GOVERNMENT TO GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

*498. Sardar Ajit Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Finance be pleased to state whether it is a fact that a sum of rupees one crore was contributed to the Government of India by the Punjab Government in the days of its prosperity ; if so, whether it is intended to ask for the return of the contributions so made ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal : The Punjab Government surrendered one crore of rupees in 1914 out of its surplus balance to the Government of India, receiving in return from Imperial revenues an annual assignment of Rs. 8½ lakhs, representing interest at the rate of 8½ per cent. per annum. In the arrangements relating to the consolidation of debt on the introduction of provincial autonomy, the pre-1921 irrigation debt owed by the Punjab Government to the Government of India has been reduced by this sum of one crore. The obligation of the Government of India in respect of one crore of rupees has, therefore, been discharged.

RAILWAY POLICE CHARGES.

499. Sardar Ajit Singh : Will the Honourable Premier kindly state whether it is a fact that the Railway Police is charged from the Punjab Government revenues and not from the Central Revenues ; if so, why ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : No, this is not correct. The cost of what is known as the Order Police is now defrayed by the railway administration. The provincial Government have only to pay for that part of the Railway Police which is engaged in the detection of crime. I am placing on the table a paper showing the duties which are regarded as Order duties to be performed by the Order Police.

Duties performed by the Order Police.

(1) Control of passenger traffic inside the station premises more particularly on the platforms, in the booking offices, waiting halls, at the entrance and exit gates and wherever specially required on emergencies by the station officials.

(2) The control of vehicular and other traffic in the station compound

(3) The maintenance of order in standing passenger trains, prevention of overcrowding, etc.

(4) Watching loaded passenger trains when standing in station.

(5) The arrest of those found committing nuisances or suffering from infectious diseases and keeping the station premises clear of idlers and beggars.

(6) The examinations of all empty carriages on arrival at terminal stations for property left behind by passengers and to see the carriage fittings have not been tampered with.

(7) The removal of bodies of persons dying in the train and on station premises and conveyance to hospital of sick passengers.

Diwan Chaman Lal : What are the respective costs of the two departments ?

Premier : You will find the figures in the budget.

SHARE OF DUTY OF SALT FROM KHEWRA MINES.

500. Sardar Ajit Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Punjab Government is not getting anything out of the duty on salt from Khewra Salt Mines ; if so, the reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : Punjab Government has no hand in the allocation of the monies realised from the salt duty, as salt is a Central subject.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Has the Honourable Member decided to represent to the Government of India that a portion of the revenues should be handed back to the Punjab ?

Premier : No official reference has been made to the Government of India yet.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the Honourable Member intend to raise this matter which is very important ?

Premier : Yes, when a suitable opportunity offers itself.

Sardar Ajit Singh : Is it a fact that the ilaga adjoining Khewra has been damaged owing to salt mines ?

Revenue Minister : My colleague has answered that question already.

APPLICATION FOR ADVERTISEMENT BY MESSRS. KAHAN SINGH-MOHAN SINGH.

501. Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Messrs. Kahan Singh-Mohan Singh, perfumers of Amritsar, applied on the 13th March, 1937, to permit them to advertise their hair oils by means of their advertisement lorry No. P1787C in Simla Hills ;
- (b) whether the permission was refused ; if so, on what ground ;
- (c) whether the Sunlight Soap or any other British company's lorry was ever granted the permission ; if so, why ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. Lorries are not allowed on the roads in Simla Hills except with special permission, in special circumstances. The local officers decided, rightly, that there were not sufficient grounds for the grant of permission in this case.

(c) The firm Lever Brothers were permitted to bring an advertising lorry up to Simla in special circumstances last year. They applied for permission again this year but it was refused.

ENLISTMENT OF FIELD KANUNGOS IN LUDHIANA DISTRICT.

502. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of field kanungos enlisted by the Collector, Ludhiana, in 1936 and 1937, with their names, parentage, places of residence, ages, and qualifications ;
- (b) the time when the vacancies occurred, and the time when they were filled ;
- (c) the names of those who were rejected with their parentage, places of residence and educational qualifications ;

(d) the grounds on which those who were accepted were given preference ;

(e) the number of agriculturists among them ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Two—

(2) Narsher Singh, son of Ratan Singh, Patwari, resident of village Hans, tahsil Jagraon. Age 24 years. B.Sc., Jat Agriculturist.

(b) These vacancies occurred on the 24th March, 1936, and were filled on the 20th December, 1936, and 23rd December, 1936, respectively.

(c), (d) and (e) It is not in the public interest to collect information of this nature.

RECRUITMENT OF PATWARIS IN DISTRICT LUDHIANA.

503. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) the number and names of patwaris recruited by the present Collector of Ludhiana from the agricultural tribes, with their educational qualifications, places of residence, parentage and dates of recruitment ;

(b) the number and names of patwaris recruited by the said Collector from the non-agricultural tribes with their educational qualifications and dates of recruitment ;

(c) the number of those who were rejected with the reasons why they were rejected ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Two—

(1) Muhammad Usaf, son of M. Ali Muhammad, Jat of village Shamaspur, tahsil Samrala, Middle passed.

(2) Ranjit Singh, son of Badan Singh, Jat of village Jodhan, tahsil Ludhiana, F.Sc.

Both were recruited on the 14th April, 1937.

(b) Three—

(1) Rattan Chand, B.A. (Hons.) ;

(2) Krishen Gopal, Matric ; and

(3) Inder Singh, Matric.

They were recruited on the 14th April, 1937.

(c) It is not in the public interest to collect information of this nature.

PAY AND PENSION OF PATWARIS.

504. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Government propose to increase the pay of the patwaris whose work is of a complicated nature ;

[Ch. Muhammad Hassan.]

(b) the present grades and the maximum pay of a patwari ;

(c) whether the Government is prepared to make patwaris' post a pensionable one ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) No.

(b) 1st grade on Rs. 26 per mensem (maximum).

2nd grade on Rs. 23 per mensem.

3rd grade on Rs. 20 per mensem.

(c) No. Patwaris have already been admitted to a special provident fund and it is not feasible on financial grounds to make the post pensionable.

Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Is it on account of lack of funds that the Honourable Minister does not want to increase the pay of the patwaris ?

Minister : My reply is quite clear.

Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Your reply is plain about (c). But what about (a) ?

Minister : That applies to (a) also.

PATWARIS.

505. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) the number of patwaris who have been promoted to the posts of kanungos in the Ludhiana district during the last five years ;

(b) whether any of the vacancies thus caused have been filled from outside the district ; if so, reason for the same ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Two.

(b) No.

TAQAVI LOANS TO BEIT ILAQA IN DISTRICT LUDHIANA.

506. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) the amount of taqavi loans advanced to the people of the Beit ilaqa in district Ludhiana ;

(b) the names and places of residence of those who received taqavi loans in the said ilaqa during the last ten years ;

(c) the steps Government have taken so far to popularise the taqavi scheme among the small landholders of the said ilaqa.

(d) whether Government are prepared to reduce the rates of interest on taqavi loans and also the amounts of instalments in the said ilaqa ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Rs. 20,900.

(b) The amount of time and labour involved in collecting the information would not be commensurate with the results.

(c) Taqavi loans are liberally advanced in suitable cases and the zamindars are by now generally familiar with the taqavi system in every tract of the province.

(d) Government have already reduced the rate of interest for taqavi loans to 4 per cent. and provision exists for re-payment in convenient instalments. For obvious reasons they are not prepared, at the expense of the general tax-payer, to discriminate in favour of any particular tract or class of persons in a matter of this kind.

507.—Cancelled.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

508. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) the total strength of sub-inspectors, inspectors and deputy superintendents of police in the Ferozepore district and the number of the posts held separately by Muhammadans, Hindus and Sikhs ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs holding these posts is unduly small ; if so, the steps, if any, that are proposed to be taken to give the Sikhs fair representation in these posts ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I do not propose to give an answer to the question here, but it can be shown to the honourable member if he wants to see it.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

509. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) what is the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans in the Punjab police below the rank of assistant sub-inspectors ;

(b) what is the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans, in the Punjab Police above the post of head constables ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in these ranks is very small, if so, the action, if any, that is proposed to be taken to allow fair representation to the Sikhs in these ranks ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : My answer is the same as to question No. *508 (above).

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : May I know whether this statement will be placed on the table of the Assembly for the benefit of all members ?

Premier : I can show it to the honourable member if he wants to see it.

STRAINED RELATIONS BETWEEN HINDUS, SIKHS AND MUSLIMS.

510. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Government is aware of the fact that relations between the Hindus, Sikhs and Muhammadans are not cordial at Zira in the Ferozepore district ;

(b) if so, what precautions the district authorities have taken in view of the possibility of a communal riot ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes, but the latest information received by Government was to the effect that the contending parties at Zira were arranging to compose their differences.

(b) The district authorities are alive to the situation at Zira.

SHORT NOTICE QUESTION AND ANSWER.

VISITORS TO SIMLA.

Sardar Hari Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state the rule under which visitors to Simla are required to give their names, etc., on their entry to the town and the penalty for refusing to do so ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : Paragraph 2 (a) of the Punjab Government Order No. 631-M-37/8058 (P. H.), published for general information with Punjab Government notification No. 631-M-37/8059, dated the 26th February, 1937, and issued in exercise of the powers conferred by section 2-A of the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897. Any person disobeying the order shall be deemed to have committed an offence punishable under section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sardar Hari Singh : Are the names of the new arrivals reported to the Criminal Investigation Department headquarters at Simla ?

Premier : Not under this notification.

Sardar Hari Singh : What use is made of the names registered ?

Premier : To find out whether anybody gives a false statement.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Premier tell the House, if not under this notification, whether in actual practice the names are handed over to the Criminal Investigation Department ?

Premier : Not to my knowledge.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable the Premier make enquiries and find out whether that is a fact ?

Premier : If the honourable member will write to me I will certainly make enquiries ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Premier please state if the names thus registered are sent to the medical officer or anybody else ?

Premier : I cannot answer that question without notice. I believe they are sent to the medical officer.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : What is my honourable friend's own personal impression ?

Premier : I myself have been signing the book since 1923 or 1924.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is any doctor posted at the barrier ?

Premier : Yes. I find that under the notification not only a male doctor but a lady doctor is to be posted there.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is any doctor posted there ?

Premier : I am sure there must be under this notification, otherwise how can the notification be effective ?

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Is it not a fact that the Criminal Investigation Department is also posted at the barrier ?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot answer that question off-hand. The Criminal Investigation Department is posted at various places.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does any medical examination take place at the barrier ?

Premier : I could not give you a recent instance ; but I remember that there were several complaints in the papers of the unnecessary harassment of the passengers by keeping them for a very long time to examine them medically. Therefore under this notification provision is made that the inspection should be restricted to such matters only to which the passenger agrees.

Sardar Hari Singh : Is it not a fact that this practice is devised in order to safeguard against terrorists ?

Premier : No, Sir.

Sardar Hari Singh : Are Honourable Ministers also required to give their names ?

Premier : I have already stated that I have been writing in the book since 1923 or 1924.

Sardar Hari Singh : Has any exception been made in any case ?

Premier : Not to my knowledge.

Mr. E. Few : Is it a fact that this system was first instituted to keep out people coming from plague infected areas ?

Premier : Yes, and infected with other diseases.

Sardar Hari Singh : Where did the Government go for a precedent for such a practice ?

Premier : The Punjab Government is not in the habit of seeking precedents from other provinces.

Sardar Hari Singh : Has this practice got a parallel elsewhere in the Punjab ?

Premier : If the honourable member will give me notice I will try and find out the information for him.

Sardar Kapoor Singh : Was the Honourable Premier ever examined medically at the barrier ? (Laughter).

Sardar Hari Singh : Is this practice resorted to in Lahore ?

Premier : I do not think that notification is applicable to Lahore.

Sardar Hari Singh : What special considerations apply to Simla as contrasted to Lahore ?

Premier : Because it is a health resort and people come from all over India.

Sardar Hari Singh : Has Government considered the question of putting a stop to the practice, if you do not like the phrase 'obnoxious practice'?

Premier : A practice which is in the interest of the general public cannot be called obnoxious.

Sardar Hari Singh : How is it in the public interest ?

Premier : Because it is in the interest of public health.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : Has any representation been made by the public to the effect that such a practice should be adopted ?

Premier : Do you mean to say that Government should wait until representation comes from the public ?

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : Has any representation been made so far ?

Premier : Why should they make a representation ? It is the duty of Government to look after their health.

Sardar Hari Singh : Is the Honourable Premier aware that the honourable members of the House resent the application of this rule ?

Premier : I am afraid the resentment is uncalled for.

Sardar Lal Singh : Has there been any instance of a person suffering from any infectious disease having been detained at the barrier ?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot give the information off-hand.

Sardar Hari Singh : Has the Honourable Premier considered the attitude to be taken if honourable members of this House refuse to give their names at the barrier ?

Premier : They would then be breaking the law and must be prepared to take the consequences.

Diwan Chaman Lall : In view of the strong feelings evinced by the honourable members on the floor of this House that this is a device meant for the purposes of the Criminal Investigation Department—

Premier : I may assure the honourable member that that is not so.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Premier to investigate the matter with a view to finding out whether this is merely meant to help the Criminal Investigation Department ?

Premier : If the honourable members will write to me I shall make enquiries. Will the honourable member suggest any other device by which we can keep off infectious diseases from Simla ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Is it a fact that at the barrier instead of doctors, Criminal Investigation Department people are appointed ?

Premier : No.

Sardar Lal Singh : In view of the fact that certain areas are stricken with infectious diseases and it is well-known, why did His Excellency invite members of this Assembly to Simla from those areas? (Laughter).

Premier : I may assure the honourable member that if any member were suffering from any infectious disease he would have been isolated and kept in the Isolation Hospital before he was allowed to enter Simla.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : How many cases have been brought to the Isolation Hospital so far?

Premier : I cannot be expected to give that information off-hand.

Mian Muhammad Iftikhar-ud-Din : Is it a fact that the names are taken even at Kalka?

Premier : Not so far as I am aware.

Mian Muhammad Iftikhar-ud-Din : People wearing Gandhi Caps have to give their names even at the barrier at Kalka?

Premier : I am not sure that that is correct, but if the honourable member will write to me I shall make enquiries.

An honourable member : Where is the Isolation Hospital?

Premier : In Tara Devi.

MOTIONS FOR ADJOURNMENT.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF ROYAL COMMISSION ON PALESTINE.

Mr. Speaker : The adjournment motion, for discussion of the unjust recommendations of the Royal Commission on Palestine, was handed over to me yesterday. For many reasons it is out of order, but the first and the foremost reason for which it cannot be allowed even to be read to the House is that His Excellency the Governor's consent under Rule 35 is necessary for discussing the motion and His Excellency has decided, acting in his discretion, that the motion should not be moved.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : May I know whether His Excellency was communicated with?

Mr. Speaker : When I say that His Excellency has refused to allow the motion to be discussed, the honourable member must take it that His Excellency was communicated with.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I want to know whether this matter was referred to His Excellency by you or by the honourable member who gave notice of it.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is supposed to know rules. If he will refer to rule 35 he will find that it is the duty of the Speaker to refer such motions to His Excellency.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I draw your attention to rule 35 according to which—

“No resolution shall be moved save with the consent of the Governor acting in his discretion in regard to any of the following subjects, namely:—

(i) any matter connected with the relations between His Majesty or the Governor-General and any foreign State or Prince.

But the subject of the motion is not governed by this particular rule.

Mr. Speaker : It is governed, because the relations of His Majesty with Palestine, which is a foreign country, are there and no motions about such relations can be moved.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will you please permit me to put my point of view? Palestine is not a foreign state. It is part and parcel of the British Empire. (Cheers). Palestine is governed under a mandate by the British Government and so it is not a foreign State. A British subject can travel to Palestine without a passport.

Mr. Speaker : As the Governor has disallowed the motion, I cannot allow the honourable member to read it to the House. It is out of order for several other reasons as well.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I submit to your ruling. But since a constitutional matter of grave importance is involved, may I draw your attention to two points only and I shall not say another word. One point is this. In the history of the British Empire never has a royal commission visited a foreign State. A royal commission has always visited only British territory. The second point is this. Since this particular motion has been disallowed by His Excellency acting in his discretion, may we request you to communicate with His Excellency and point out to him that this particular rule does not apply to this adjournment motion?

Mrs. J. A. Shah Nawaz : May I point out one other thing? This adjournment motion which was submitted to you yesterday morning—I am very sorry that I am not allowed to read it—clearly shows that those who have given notice of it have no intention of discussing the details of the report. All that they wish to point out to His Majesty's Government through the Punjab Government is this that the acceptance of the Report by the British Government is going to have serious repercussions on the peace and tranquillity of this province. (Cheers).

Mr. Speaker : If the honourable lady member wishes to read the motion to enable honourable members to know which motion has been disallowed, I have no objection to its being read.

Mrs. J. A. Shah Nawaz : The adjournment motion reads as follows :—

That the House do now adjourn to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the unfair and unjust recommendations of the Royal Commission on Palestine which is likely to have serious repercussions on the peace and tranquillity of the province.

I beg to submit that the wording of this adjournment motion does not come under rule 35. The representatives of the people sitting here have a right to discuss.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable lady member was allowed to read the motion. She has read it. But she cannot make a speech unless the motion is held to be in order. No adjournment motion can be moved unless some administrative responsibility of Government is involved for a definite act. Where is the administrative responsibility of the Punjab Government involved? As there is no administrative responsibility of the Punjab Government involved in the Report, which is considered to be objectionable or unfair, I do not consider that the motion is in order. As regards the statement that it is likely to have serious repercussions on the peace and tranquillity of the province, that, I think, is only an argument in support of the first part of the motion; but unless the first part is in order, the second part, even if in order, cannot make the motion in order.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani (Urdu): Sir, we want to express our feelings—

Mr. Speaker: I have given my ruling. So the matter ends. The next motion.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu): It was stated by the Honourable Premier that His Excellency the Governor had assured him that he would not interfere. I think His Excellency the Governor should not have interfered in this matter.

Mr. Speaker: Certain things have to be done by the Governor.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: A point of order, Sir. You have just now remarked that there are certain powers—

Mr. Speaker: That is not a point of order. Have I violated any rule of procedure?

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: But that was not a correct statement.

Mr. Speaker: If my statement is incorrect the honourable member is welcome to correct me.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: I wanted to rise on a point of information.

Mr. Speaker: But a point of information is different from a point of order.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: I want to know whether His Excellency has disallowed the motion with the consent of the Punjab Government.

Mr. Speaker: How does that question arise?

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt: Because His Excellency the Viceroy has issued a statement that so far as the—

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath: The honourable member should discuss that point with His Excellency the Governor and not with the Speaker.

SPEECH DELIVERED BY THE MINISTER FOR DEVELOPMENT AT KHARAR.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, non-Union Labour): I beg for leave—

To make a motion for the adjournment of the business of the House to discuss a definite matter of urgent public importance, namely, the serious situation created, which may result in a breach of peace, by the speech delivered by a responsible Minister, Sir Chhotu Ram, on the 14th instant at Kharar while electioneering for Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh, a candidate for the Punjab Legislative Assembly.

In regard to this matter I will, with your permission, read out to you the telegram that has been received in regard to this particular matter.

Mr. Speaker : I hope the honourable member is not going to make a speech.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not intend to make a speech. I hope the Honourable Minister for Revenue will forgive me if I do not add the titles to the names because the telegram does not add the titles that he is entitled to.

“Majithia did not speak. Extracts from Chaudhri's speech follow. We both have come to help Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh because we are sure he will join our party which is for the benefit of zamindars. When we replied to Dr. Gokul Chand's motion about Land Alienation Act, the Congressmen rushed upon us like mad dogs. Look at the appearance of Mahatama Gandhi and Pandit Nehru. What can we expect from them? We can never expect help from Congress people.”

Two very objectionable statements are contained in this particular telegram. I think you will agree with me that it is a matter of very great importance when a responsible minister makes a statement of this nature. Therefore, I beg to request you to allow me to move this motion of adjournment.

Premier : I think the honourable member, before moving his motion, should have asked my honourable colleagues, as a matter of courtesy, whether those words had been used. (Voices: Does he deny now?) The honourable member will forgive me when I say that people outside might think that it is merely another stunt to gain cheap publicity or notoriety. If the honourable member is going to move an adjournment motion on every telegram received from any quarter without verifying its authenticity and correctness and without any responsible man vouching for its accuracy, I think it is unfair to this House and the honourable member himself. Since he has made that motion and read out extracts from a telegram purporting to be from somebody, I would ask my honourable colleague to say whether he did make any of those statements or not.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Before the honourable minister says what he has got to say in the matter, may I, with reference to his remark, say one thing? The Honourable the Premier says that this telegram may have been received from anybody without any sense of responsibility. May I remind him that this telegram is from a member of this House who is the leader of a party. If you want me to name him, he is Sardar Sampuran Singh M. L. A., an important member of this House. He is a responsible person and I have no reason to doubt his word.

Premier : May I ask the honourable member to explain whether Sardar Sampuran Singh was present at that meeting?

Diwan Chaman Lall : When I knew the attitude of honourable members opposite in regard to another matter which arose a little while ago regarding Sir Chhotu Ram's remarks about nokili topi wallahs, I could not, for a moment, take the word of Sardar Sampuran Singh as incorrect. I am sure that what he has told me is certain and correct to his knowledge. If the Honourable Minister now denies the accuracy of this statement, I am quite willing to accept his word that he never uttered it. If he uttered it I want him to stand up like a man and face the music.

Premier : That is what I suggested.

Mr. Speaker : Practically the motion is being discussed. I think both the honourable ministers may be allowed to make statements, if they wish, otherwise the motion is out of order and cannot be allowed to be moved, inasmuch as the conduct of ministers cannot be discussed by a motion for adjournment.

Premier : My honourable friend will certainly make a statement in the interests of the public outside and I shall request him to make a statement. But I want to make it clear that if you are going to have adjournment motions on hearing by a telegram that such and such a person heard so and so to say something which he had heard somebody else to say, then I am afraid the time of the House will be wasted and I do not think it will be in accordance with the dignity and decorum of the House. If the honourable member had verified before making this motion from my honourable colleague, then he would have been perfectly justified in making this motion.

Minister for Development (The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : The telegram that has been received by my friend Diwan Chaman Lall comes from a gentleman who was not at all present when I delivered my speech.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do you know that he was not present ?

Minister for Development : I understand that he was not present.

Minister for Revenue : He was not present there. He met us on the way when we were coming back.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Datt : This is not facing the music, this is dancing to the music. (laughter).

Minister for Development : I went to Kharar specifically to help my friend Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh in the elections. It is true that while there I made a long speech which probably lasted for more than an hour. A few words taken out of the context may be made to bear almost any meaning. But I admit that I did use the expression 'like mad dogs'. (Interruption).

Mr. Speaker : That is not fair. Honourable members should first listen to the Honourable Minister and then form their opinion.

Minister for Development : I did use these words, but so far as I can recollect they were not in connection with the motion which was made by Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang in respect of the Land Alienation Act. So far as I can remember my reference was to the impatience which was shown by certain members in standing up, three or four at a time, in respect of questions relating to the Jhang Conciliation Board.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, instead of making matters better far from corroborating the moral indignation shown by the Honourable the Premier when he said that we must satisfy ourselves about the truth of our allegation, the Honourable Minister has corroborated every word of the statement sent to me by telegram. May I with your permission say that the Honourable Minister sits there laughing instead of being thoroughly ashamed of himself. (Cries of Shame).

Mr. Speaker : This is inconsistent with the dignity of the House. I have ruled the motion to be out of order, because the conduct of a minister cannot be discussed, except on a substantive motion and there the matter ends.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask you whether you are prepared to uphold the dignity and privilege of the members of this House by preventing an honourable member who calls himself a responsible Minister from calling members of the Opposition 'mad dogs'?

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is again discussing a matter which has been closed.

Diwan Chaman Lall : No, I am asking whether it is parliamentary for an honourable member to use on the floor of this House the corroboration of a remark made by him outside which is to the effect that he calls members opposite 'mad dogs'?

Mr. Speaker : That point I will consider. It certainly deserves consideration.

THE PUNJAB UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BILL.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : I beg to move—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Unemployment Insurance Bill.

Minister for Development (The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : I beg to object to leave being granted for the introduction of this Bill.

Point of order re Opposition to introduction of a Bill.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. It is rather an important point of order. Since the Honourable Minister—I do not quite know his designation, I think, he calls himself the Minister for Development—since he has raised an objection to leave being granted to the introduction of this Bill, it is a matter regarding which I request you to give me your indulgence, because it is a matter of very great importance in reference to the constitutional procedure to be adopted by this House. If I have your permission, I might dilate upon this point of order so that we may have your considered ruling on this point which will guide the proceedings of this House for a considerable time to come. The general practice in the central legislature is that when leave is asked to introduce a Bill, that leave is not opposed. That has been the considered practice in the central legislature for a considerable time. The procedure adopted by this House in the past has varied. This procedure has at times been held to be similar to the procedure adopted in the central legislature and at other times held to be not similar to the procedure adopted by the central legislature. I have before me one reference. It is a reference in relation to the Punjab Fisheries (Amendment) Bill (Punjab Debates, Volume IV, page 907). There a similar objection was raised when Mr. E. R. Abbott,

Financial Commissioner, said : I beg to move that leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Fisheries (Amendment) Bill. The President ruled and said :—

Before putting the question to the House, I think I might say that it is not the practice in the House of Commons that Bills should be thrown out at this stage and I think it would be undesirable that this House should adopt such a practice of throwing out Bills at this stage as a general course of procedure. The Standing Order only allows some ten minutes for the Member of Government, who introduces the Bill, to set forth its advantages, and it only allows a very short time to anybody who wishes to oppose to say that he opposes it, and nobody else is allowed to speak at all. Therefore, if the Bill is thrown out at this stage, the House would be called on to make a decision on very inadequate material. In case leave to introduce is given, it will have a further opportunity at which many members can take part in the debate. I think it would be a bad practice to throw out Bills at this preliminary stage which is really only a formal stage.

This was the attitude adopted by the President of the Council in regard to the Punjab Fisheries (Amendment) Bill. The reason why this rule has been in general practice is this. If you will kindly look at May, page 394, you will find :—

“ It is a general principle of legislation that a public bill, being of national interest, should be debated in Parliament upon the grounds of public expediency; and that the arguments on either side should be restricted to members of the House, while peculiar interests are represented by the petitions of the parties concerned.”

Being a public Bill of national importance it is desirable that it should be discussed on the floor of the House on the grounds of public expediency. That is the reason why the House of Commons procedure is of this nature that very rarely, let me use the exact expression, very rarely the first stage of the Bill is opposed in the House of Commons.

Premier : The second reading.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable the Premier refers me to the second reading. The procedure in the House of Commons is different to the procedure adopted in the Indian legislatures. The second reading is the most important reading. The first stage is the formal stage, the third stage also, what is known as the third reading is of very great importance to us here in the Assembly. The third reading is of very little importance in the House of Commons. I am laying down the general principles, namely, the grounds on which objection is not taken. You will find it in the second sentence in paragraph 2 on page 394. I was referring to that merely for the reason that the grounds on which objections are not taken are that when a public Bill is brought forward which is of national interest it is necessary that it should be discussed on the floor of the House and that when it is discussed on the floor of the House honourable members who have come here to legislate should be allowed the expression of their opinion one way or the other. My honourable friend, the Premier, refers to the second reading of the Bill. There is a further distinction, Mr. Speaker, in the procedure adopted by the House of Commons and the procedure adopted by us in the Indian legislatures. The difference lies in the meaning of a private Bill or a public Bill. We here call a private Bill, a Bill which is moved by non-official members and a public Bill, a Bill which is moved by the Treasury benches. But in the House of Commons that distinction is of no account. A private Bill is a Bill, in the House of Commons which refers to a particular interest or to a particular person or persons and it may be moved by a non-official member or even by the Treasury benches. Therefore the analogy regarding the public and private Bills would not be applicable here. But let us have a look at the analogy in regard to private Bills in reference to another matter and that is the procedure adopted in regard to private Bills. An individual interested outside the House of Commons might promote a particular private Bill through a non-official member—

Mr. Speaker : Why is the honourable member discussing private Bills? We are not concerned with them here.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am giving the analogy of the procedure which might be equally applicable here and the reasons why that procedure is laid down and the various stages regarding circulation through advertisement regarding notice to be given to all sorts of interests regarding the vetting of the Bill by the Private Bill Office regarding the presentation of the Bill before the Committee or before the Chairman of Ways and Means the Counsel to the Speaker and those preliminary stages which are of great importance in the life of a Bill are gone through. I submit that this particular convention should be adhered to by my honourable friends opposite instead of summarily dismissing a Bill of very great importance to this province. (Interruption). My honourable friend says "Very grave". It is only a question of opinion. We want honourable friends to adopt this procedure and enable this House to discuss this Bill without tying down the House to any particular principle. By permitting leave to introduce this Bill my honourable friends over there are not committing themselves to any particular opinion and principle.

Minister for Development : Why waste the time of the House?

Diwan Chaman Lall : My honourable friend asks "why waste the time of the House?" My honourable friend sitting over there did not consider that days and days taken up in discussing their own remunerations was wasting the time of the House but suggesting a practical way adopted by every civilized country in the world to alleviate unemployment is a waste of the time of the House. (Opposition cheers). This is the mentality of the honourable members opposite. I have not come across in my whole experience a mentality worse than this against the interests of the people of the province ("hear, hear", from Opposition). I want to draw my honourable friend's attention to the fact that in the year 1925 I moved a Bill called the Weekly Payments of Wages Bill in the central legislature. That Government supposed to be a bureaucratic Government did not take up this exceedingly bureaucratic attitude and throw out the Bill at the very mention of it. It permitted that Bill although it was an extravagant Bill, it was a Bill which even I considered extravagant in its scope. It permitted the Bill to be moved and permitted it to go for circulation. (Laughter). My honourable friend laughs very easily. It is the way of a puerile—a childish.

mind ("hear, hear," from the Opposition). I want him to pay some attention to what I am saying. The Government of India allowed it to go to circulation and to-day that Bill in a modified form is an Act of the central legislature. I hold it in my hand and it is called the Weekly Payment of Wages Act, 1936. I withdrew that Bill at the third reading after Government had stated that if they are satisfied that the subject needs legislation they would bring in a Bill of their own, and they did bring in a Bill of their own. I ask the Honourable the Premier to agree to this convention being created and the Bill being discussed on the floor of the House without the Treasury benches being tied down to the principles of the Bill. I know my honourable friends over there will turn round and say that in the year, I believe, 1933, Col. Joshia Wedgewood moved a particular Bill to which leave was refused. Here, Mr. Speaker, I want to point out the distinction in the House of Commons in reference to such matters and I think it would be better if my honourable friends opposite were to bear that distinction in mind always that when Bill is opposed in the House of Commons, it does not die. All that happens is this that leave to move the Bill then is refused. In a sense a postponement takes place that it should be read three months hence or six months hence. The death of the Bill does not take place and such a Bill can be moved again at any stage. I may draw your attention, Mr. Speaker, to May, page 390. The ordinary practice is to move an amendment to the question of leaving out the word now and adding the words three or six months hence or any other time beyond the probable continuation of the session.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Read the next sentence.

Mr. Speaker : I need not correct the honourable member at this stage ; but I may say that he is not quite correct.

Diwan Chaman Lall : True, if the session ends. But what I am driving at is this. I would refer to pages 390 and 392 of May :—

"It must be borne in mind, however, that the resolution, if agreed to, does not arrest the progress of the bill, the second reading of which may be moved on another occasion. The effect of such an amendment is merely to supersede the question for now reading the bill a second time ; and the bill is left in the same position as if the question for now reading the bill a second time had been simply negatived or superseded by the previous question. The house refuses, on that particular day, to read the bill a second time, and gives its reasons for such refusal : but the bill is not otherwise disposed of."

The procedure in the House of Commons is a little different, but at the same time, Mr. Speaker, ordinarily such refusal is not contemplated by the House of Commons. I admit that it exists under standing order 10 of the House of Commons, but it is, I submit, an almost obsolete rule and I do submit that honourable members opposite need not in any way be nervous about these Bills that are going to be presented to the House. They should allow public opinion to be expressed on these Bills and allow themselves also the opportunity to exercise their opinion as to the validity and usefulness of these Bills.

At this stage the Assembly adjourned for lunch.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2-30 P. M., of the clock. Mr. Speaker in the chair.

SPEECH OF MINISTER FOR DEVELOPMENT AT KHARAR.

STATEMENT BY THE MINISTER.

Minister for Development (Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : Considerable misunderstanding has arisen about what I said at Kharar and my version of the incident in the House this morning. I ascribed nothing to the Congress. The information received by the honourable members here was based on hearsay and wrenched from the context. The telegram in their hand was not from a gentleman actually present. In my speech there while calling upon the electors to give their support to Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh, I had occasion to refer to how members of the Opposition, on the occasion when the Jhang Conciliation Board was under discussion, rose three or four at a time more than once to express their unrestrained anger and indignation and it was furthest from my thought in any manner to use words that might give offence. I am sure that if my words were not torn from the context—and my speech covered a large field that lasted for an hour—they did not contain anything but an energetic protest against the manner in which the Opposition sometimes attack Government. If the meaning of any specific words of mine has been misunderstood, I have no hesitation in withdrawing them. I should be unhappy if I felt that I had created an unfortunate impression. No manner of offence was expressed and none was intended when I repeated the same expression in this House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : With your permission, Mr. Speaker, I may be allowed to say that I am very glad that the Honourable Minister for Development has seen wisdom at this late hour and made an apology for what has happened.

Mr. Speaker : He has learnt it from the honourable member.

Diwan Chaman Lall : When I am in the wrong I am always willing to apologise. I wish this statement had been differently worded. Let me state straight-away that there is no misunderstanding about this matter as the Honourable Minister seems to think. If now the Honourable Minister is sorry for having used that expression—(Minister for Development : No). The Honourable Minister says 'no.'

Premier : On a point of order, Sir. Is the honourable member in order in discussing the statement made by my colleague ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : I say it is not a correct statement.

Mr. Speaker : It is enough. If he used offensive words, he has withdrawn them.

THE PUNJAB UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BILL.

Point of order re Opposition to introduction of a Bill.

Premier : Sir, my honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lall, sought to make that refusal at this stage would not be justified and he quoted Parliamentary practice and referred to convention. He himself admitted, while raising his point of order, that the practice in Parliament is not on all fours with the practice here or with our rules. The practice in Parliament regarding classification of Bills, which also he admitted, is quite different. There are various stages in the Parliament, which stages, so far as we are concerned, do not occur at all under our present procedure or practice; in several important particulars they differ from both our rules and practice. So far as the practice in the central legislature is concerned, I have submitted on the floor of this House before, that we should not draw from conventions set up in the central legislature, which is an irresponsible body and that where our own rules are silent, we should, if possible, try to adapt if possible the practice followed in the British Parliament. You are aware that in the Parliament the corresponding practice is contained in standing orders 31 (2) and 32 (2). The old standing order was modified. It was under that order that Bills could be presented in the House of Commons without leave to introduce being granted by the House. But that order has been amended and our present standing order No. 40 is in consonance with the present Parliamentary standing order. My honourable friend referred to certain incidents in the Parliament where he said that leave to introduce had been opposed, but that eventually the honourable member was allowed to introduce his Bill. There are instances of both kinds—of the kind which the honourable member has suggested and also to the contrary, where leave to introduce was not only refused, but the matter was carried to a division and was voted down by the House. There were at least two instances in 1922, if I recollect rightly, where on one day two Bills were moved—one with regard to Unemployment Insurance, where the leave to introduce was opposed, but eventually no division was called. On the same day another Bill was introduced and leave was opposed and the matter was taken to division and the thing was stilled there—I refer to the Abandonment of Capital Punishment Bill. I submit that since our rule with regard to this particular matter is quite clear, it is not necessary for us to look to the Parliamentary convention and practice. Had our practice been on all fours, there would have been some justification for looking into Parliamentary convention. In this respect our rules are quite clear. I may submit—you know better than I do—that the practice in our old Council was also in accordance with rule No. 40. At one time, in 1928, I believe, a convention was sought to be set up that Bills should not be opposed at 'leave to introduce' stage. That convention was not accepted. Now, the practice of the House is that we can, if we so desire, refuse leave to introduce at this stage. If my honourable friend wants to alter that convention or rule, there is ample opportunity for him to do so, because there is a Committee of the House which is now considering new standing orders and rules. It is for them to make specific provision to bring the rules into conformity with Parliamentary practice or in conformity with the wishes of my honourable friend opposite, if they want to do so. Pending revision of these rules and in view of the fact that we have been following the practice or convention set up by the old Punjab Legislative Council and in view of the fact that the rule is quite clear on the subject and the practice in Parliament and our own practice are not on all fours, I beg to submit that the point of order raised by my honourable friend opposite should be ruled out.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : May I ask one question, with your permission? The Honourable the Premier has just remarked that the central Assembly is an irresponsible body and we therefore should not follow the practice of that House but in the same breath he has remarked that we should follow our own practice, namely, the practice of the old Legislative Council. May I know if that body also was not an irresponsible body?

Premier : It was partially irresponsible.

Mr. Speaker : This criticism is unnecessary.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Another consideration which I want to urge in addition to the very weighty considerations that have been put forward by my honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lall, is this. When we gave notices of certain resolutions we were told by you that when a certain resolution makes it necessary for certain legislation being provided for before Government can be asked to take action on that resolution, that resolution could not be admitted or could not be allowed to be discussed on the floor of this House, as it is open to a member to give notice of a Bill. Your ruling goes in this connection to establish or to say that the members of this House have got free opportunities of giving notices of Bills and of bringing those Bills before the House for the consideration of the House. Now if we are going to be opposed even at this very initial stage, a stage when merely leave is being asked to introduce the Bill, there cannot possibly be any opportunity for the members of this House to go ahead with their legislation. The absence of such a convention which is sought to be established in this House will very effectively kill all initiative in this section of the House, because as is perfectly clear to honourable members of this House and to everybody else outside, unless a certain thing is desired by the Treasury benches and those who constitute the following of the Government, nothing can be got done in this House.

Premier : Why?

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : The Honourable Premier has always said, "if we want a certain thing to be done we have a majority and we can get it done". He has repeated it on the floor of this House. So there is nothing that should prevent the Honourable Premier from creating such a healthy convention. After all, what is this? We come forward with a constructive proposal for the amelioration and the betterment of the condition of the people and it should not be anybody's desire that we should not be allowed to initiate any legislation.

Secondly the Honourable the Premier has said that we must look to the House of Commons and no precedent that has been set up in the central legislature should avail here, the reason being that the central legislature was an irresponsible body; and in the same breath we are being taken back to the Punjab Legislative Council. Now, was it a responsible body in the sense in which the Honourable the Premier wants the word to be understood?

Premier : It was more responsible than the central legislature.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Can the Punjab Council be considered in any sense a responsible body if the central legislature is not a responsible body? Now this attitude will not be at all in consonance with the spirit which is being exhibited or given expression to so many times by the Honourable the Premier, namely that he is very anxious to set up healthy conventions on the floor of this House. Here is an opportunity to create a very healthy convention, which will enable the Opposition to put forward constructive and definite proposals for the betterment and amelioration of the condition of the people.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I would ask the Honourable Premier to answer one question if he can. Is it not the practice in the House of Commons that introduction of Bills is not opposed as a rule and in fact the present practice is that even dummy Bills are allowed to be put in and it is the representatives of the Government who fill in details and Bills are taken as introduced as a matter of course? Is not that the practice?

Premier : It is only in regard to Bills presented and not introduced. The honourable member is confusing two things. In the case of dummy Bills the procedure is different. We have not got that stage here. Our first stage is quite different from theirs. Our first stage is their second stage.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : If circumstances were identical no dispute would arise. We are discussing the question of principle, propriety, of being fair to the Opposition and to the minority. Of course it is open to the Government who have got a solid phalanx of votes to say, "we do not care a hang for you. Away with your Bills."

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Sir, as has been indicated by the Honourable Premier, the question at issue before us resolves into two specific questions, (1) whether we have anything in our rules and practice which will help us to deal with the present case and (2) if not, what is the practice of the Parliament from which we may draw light and inspiration for the present case. Now, my honourable friend, the mover of the Bill, suggested three specific arguments in favour of his proposition that the Bill should not be opposed at this stage. He referred first to the convention in the central legislature. With regard to that I would submit two points, firstly that he will bear me out that the convention in the central Assembly is a double barrelled one. It suggests first that the Bills shall not be opposed at the leave to introduction stage and secondly that no further motion dealing with the Bill shall be tabled on the day when leave to introduce the Bill is sought. What is more important is that this convention did not spring up over night by a single speech or by a ruling of the Chair, that was a convention established by the House with the concurrence of the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It is not correct. It is the ruling of the Chair.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Much as I respect my honourable friend's knowledge of that legislature, I am prepared to quote chapter and verse that the ruling of the Chair cannot establish a convention. Conventions can only be evolved by the House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It was first the ruling of the Chair that was followed afterwards.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I refer the honourable member to pages 369 and 396 of 1927. I also refer him to page 1630 of 1929, where the Speaker definitely stated, he gave a definite indication that it was for the House to establish a convention. Now what I was submitting is that in the central Assembly they established a double barrelled convention—established by the House. We here can establish a convention if you so like. But the fact that the central Assembly has established a particular convention is not binding on us. Secondly, my honourable friend will bear me out that the double barrelled convention, to which I referred, of the central Assembly has been ignored by us in the Punjab Legislative Council. It has been ignored in the present motion of my honourable friend the mover of the Bill who has tabled both the motions with regard to the introduction and also with regard to the circulation of the Bill on the same day. You cannot say heads I win and tails you lose. If you rely on the convention of the central Assembly, then act on it and if you do not act on the central Assembly convention in all its bearing you cannot say "so long as it suits us we will choose it and where it does not suit us we will ignore it."

Mr. Speaker : Motions relating to introduction and circulation were put on the agenda under my orders.

Diwan Chaman Lall : And so are the Bills arranged under your instructions.

Mr. Speaker : They are balloted.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : That strengthens my point. You as the custodian of the House acted on what was the convention of this House and not of the other House.

I now come to the second point raised by my friend the mover of the Bill. He referred to certain remarks made by your predecessor in 1923 with regard to the Fisheries Bill when it was introduced. Let me tell him that it was a Government measure and when the Bill was moved the Honourable President's remark was an obiter dictum : it was not a ruling, it was a suggestion to the House. He said :

I think it would be a bad practice to throw out Bills at this preliminary stage which is really only a formal stage.

That was a government measure and it was only a recommendation made by the President of the Legislative Council.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Sir, may I correct the honourable member. The Honourable President did not say that. The honourable President said—

Before putting the question to the House, I think I might say that it is not the practice in the House of Commons that Bills should be thrown out at this stage ; and I think it would be undesirable that this House should adopt such a practice of throwing out Bills at this stage as a general course of procedure. The Standing Order only allows some 10 minutes for the Member of Government, who introduces the Bill, to set forth its advantages, and it only allows a very short time to anybody who wishes to oppose to say that he opposes it, and nobody else is allowed to speak at all. Therefore, if the Bill is thrown out at this stage, the House would be called on to make decision on very inadequate material. In case leave to introduce is given, it will have a further opportunity at which many members can take part in the debate. I think it would be a bad practice to throw out Bills at this preliminary stage which is really only a formal stage."

Therefore it was a ruling.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I welcome the full quotation read out by my honourable friend. In that case it was a Government measure. I am responsible for the statement that I am making that with one exception leave to introduce a non-official Bill was always opposed ; and I have here before me a list on which I do not want to waste the time of the House but I am prepared to give it to my honourable friend the mover of the Bill. I myself was the first victim and I was the first person privileged to have an advantage of the new convention which the House wanted to set up. When I introduced the Money Lenders Bill it was opposed by my honourable friend, Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang, now sitting opposite. Thereafter in 1924-25, 1931, 1932 and 1935 several times when any non-official measure came up, leave to introduce was opposed. That was the convention which was set up by the Punjab Legislative Council. That is so far as reference from the quotation of the last Speaker read out by my honourable friend. I will not waste the time of the House by making certain references to May's Parliamentary Practice when you yourself rightly pointed out that they all referred to the second reading of the Bill.

Sir, there is just one point which I would submit. It has already been indicated by the Honourable the Premier and I wish to develop it because that is the real crux of the matter. There is a real confusion with regard to the Parliamentary practice. In Parliament they have a double avenue open to members to bring forward their Bills. One is under the old Standing Order 31; now Standing Order 32, sub-section (2) under which no leave to introduce is required. A Bill is merely presented without any leave. When it is presented there is that formula of the dummy Bill to which my honourable friend referred. The Bill is not read for the first time but it is taken as having been read the first time.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : It strengthens our arguments.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : If my honourable friend would only have patience he would get a reply to his remarks. The second point which I was urging was that the procedure in the House of Commons is exactly the procedure analogous to our own. Leave to introduce is sought under the old Standing Order 11, now Standing Order 10. When leave to introduce is sought the Standing Order provides that the Bill can be opposed. It has several times been opposed in the case of a government measure—leave aside a non-official measure—by moving amendments of various types hostile to the purpose of the Bill. The Honourable the Premier referred to specific cases in which leave to introduce was opposed. I invite the attention of the House to a later case. In 1932 when leave to introduce the Rating Bill was sought it was opposed and the motion was negatived.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What was the result? Could it not be proceeded with later?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : So far as the Parliamentary practice is concerned it could not be proceeded with until a later session.

My honourable friend said that the Bill could be taken up later on. May I refer him to page 390 of May's Parliamentary Practice wherein it is stated that the postponement of a Bill is regarded as the most courteous method of rejecting a Bill. What I was trying to submit is this that our rules on the point are clear. It is open to any member to move to oppose the leave to introduce. I am not concerned at the time with giving arguments about the Bill; but I am sure my honourable friend will make out a good case if he feels satisfied. All we are concerned is whether we have a right to oppose the Bill at the introduction stage. The Parliamentary practice, though not on all fours with ours, has been that if a member desires he can oppose the introduction of the Bill. There is only one point before I resume my seat. It is this that reference has been made to the Parliamentary practice of the right of minority. My honourable friend Lala Bhim Sen suggested that when certain resolutions of the members of the House were thrown out it was open to them to bring in a Bill. I am afraid he is confusing it with the right to pass a Bill, because even if it is moved he cannot force the House to pass it. It is only a matter which can be brought before the House, and once it is brought it is the right of the House to decide whether to pass it or not. A reference was made to the right of minority. If my honourable friend will refer to the Parliamentary practice for the last 5 years he will find that it is not usual for private members of the Opposition to bring in important legislation without consulting the Government and giving a chance to Government to bring forward such a legislation. It should be the right of the majority to initiate such an important legislation. If my honourable friend had any useful measure which deserved to be encouraged he may rest assured that our fair-minded Premier will give him every encouragement.

[Mir Maqbool Mahmood.]

While the rule making committee is just now sitting it is open to the committee to frame such rules as it may consider desirable. Meanwhile it is the right of every member to oppose the Bill at the introduction stage.

Sardar Hari Singh : I readily agree with the opinion expressed by my honourable friend opposite that our procedure is not clear as can be judged from the rulings of the Chair. But in spite of the references made by him to the practice in Parliament the fact remains that in the House of Commons and in the daughter parliaments of Canada, South Africa and New Zealand the convention is that leave to introduce a Bill is rarely opposed. According to the rules any member is at liberty to oppose the introduction of a Bill, but they have established a convention that advantage should not be taken of this provision.

3 P. M.

Premier : Where ?

Sardar Hari Singh : It is a convention in the House of Commons, the mother of Parliaments, and in the daughter parliaments.

Premier : So far as the mother of Parliaments is concerned the honourable member is not correct.

Diwan Chaman Lall : You are only a step-daughter (loud laughter).

Sardar Hari Singh : I disagree with the Premier when he says that we should have for this purpose a hard and fast rule.

Premier : The rule is there.

Sardar Hari Singh : The standing order in our legislature, in the Central Legislature, in the mother of Parliaments and in the Parliament of Canada is the same. The standing order is identical in language. The difference lies in the fact that in those legislatures they have established a convention not to oppose the introduction (hear, hear). May I remind the Premier of his own remark when he said that he doted on the liberty which the people of England enjoyed and not the freedom enjoyed by the people of Germany or Russia? He ought to know better than I do that the liberty of the people of England is guaranteed by the parliamentary system of democratic government. May I also tell him that the success of parliamentary system of Government depends upon the proper working of the apparatus of party system? Its success depends upon a body of mutual understandings, conventions and compromises. (Hear, hear). The success of party system of government depends upon the extent of confidence and co-operation of the minority party which the majority party can win for itself. (Hear, hear). If to-day the majority party refuses to establish a convention, which is favourable to the minority party, to-morrow the majority party will be requesting the opposition to create a convention which will be favourable to them. The present attitude of the majority tantamounts to condemning the Opposition without hearing it. (Hear, hear). It is tantamount to absolute non-co-operation which attitude on the part of the Congress Party the Government is never tired of condemning. May I ask the Premier a simple and direct question? If he has decided to non-co-operate with the Opposition, if he has decided to condemn us without hearing us, what are we here for? The Government sometimes complains that we look only at one side of the picture and that we criticise the Government in an irresponsible way without looking at the other side of the picture. But now the Government is assuming the attitude which it condemns on the part of the Opposition. The Government refuses to give leave to the introduction of the Bill because it looks only at one side of the picture and not the other. It does not want to hear what we have got to say in favour of the Bill. Let the House give a hearing to both sides and then come to a conclusion whether the measure is good or bad. In the interests of the tender plant of parliamentary system which has been implanted in the Punjab I would appeal to the Leader of the House not to act in a—what shall I say—rash or dictatorial way. I appeal to him that in the interest of the establishment of a sound parliamentary system in the province he should establish a healthy convention on this point.

Advocate-General (Dewan Ram Lal): I shall take only very few minutes to discuss a very narrow and what seems to me to be a very central part of the whole question. It is this. What is the law under which we are working? When that law is explicit, is it open to the Leader of the House or of the Opposition or even to you, Mr. Speaker, to go outside the terms of that law? What is the law? The law is contained in Standing Order 40. That Standing Order gives power to the House to either vote down a measure or not.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar: The point before the House is not what the law permits. The question is whether a convention should be established or not. So far as the law is concerned the Advocate-General is quite correct. But the question is whether the Leader of the House and his party are prepared to establish a convention which is not barred by law.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: So far as the law is concerned, there is no difference of opinion.

Advocate-General: I am glad to see that Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang agrees with me on the legal question. What the other side wants is that the law should be set at nought and a convention should be established (An honourable member : No, no).

An Honourable Member: Is there any mandatory provision that the introduction of a Bill should be opposed?

Advocate-General: The Leader of the House is asked to set up a convention which I submit it is not in his power to do. The convention has to be set up not by the Leader of the House but by the whole House. Whether the House will establish such a convention can be ascertained only by putting the question to the vote of the House.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: I want to ask one question from Diwan Chaman Lall. This convention of not opposing the introduction of a Bill was not honoured by the honourable member himself. As a matter of fact I have just now come across an instance when Diwan Chaman Lall himself was guilty of opposing the introduction of a Bill.

Diwan Chaman Lall: Was it accepted?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: The Honourable Sir Charles Innes said—

“I move, Sir, for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the fostering and development of the bamboo paper industry in British India.”

and Diwan Chaman Lall got up immediately and said—

“Sir, I rise to oppose the introduction of this Bill.”

Diwan Chaman Lall: Read on, read on (laughter).

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: He then went on speaking for twenty minutes in opposition of the Bill and then he was pulled up by the Chair (hear, hear). Wait and see what happened further. The Chair said—

“The honourable member must be aware that this is a motion for leave to introduce the Bill and he has no right to speak for more than ten minutes, which he has already exhausted” and so he was asked to wind up his speech and he said—

“I agree with your statement, Sir, that I have only ten minutes on the introduction of the Bill and since that is so I shall reserve my remarks for a subsequent occasion when the Bill is taken into consideration.”

If he wants to read the exact words that were uttered by him and the Chair, I have got the book before me and he can very well read them.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: A point of order. Is the honourable member discussing the conduct of Diwan Chaman Lall?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan: So it was Diwan Chaman Lall himself who opposed the introduction of the Bill.

(Diwan Chaman Lall rose to speak.)

Mr. Speaker: The honourable member (Diwan Chaman Lall) need not give any explanation. He did not act wrongly.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Sir, a great deal of learning has been displayed and I regret to say wasted on the floor of this House. They have been trying to establish that two plus two make four which nobody denies. The learned Advocate-General got up to give the legal exposition of the question which did not arise (laughter). I pointed out to him that there was no difference of opinion so far as the legal aspect of the question was concerned. They have a right to oppose. The only thing that we are urging on this side is that it is not right to oppose (hear, hear). My honourable friend has the right to go and make himself drunk absolutely, but as a friend I would tell him not to do such a thing. Every one has a right to go and hang himself and drown himself but if we have regard for the person, we shall warn him not to do such a thing. But the question is whether these gentlemen are going to drown themselves or hang themselves or are we dealing with people who are drunk or are willing and anxious to make themselves drunk and whether it is not the duty of members of this House on this side or on any other side to warn them against the suicidal step that they are contemplating to take ? (Hear, hear). My honourable friend Mir Maqbool Mahmood said that it is not open to the Chair to establish conventions. Technically he may be right but it is the Chair that guides the House to set up conventions. It is the learning of the Speaker that comes to the rescue of the laymen who constitute the bulk of the House. Do you think these gentlemen are going to set up conventions ? (Loud applause).

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member will please resume his seat. His remark is not fair. (Hear, hear).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : You have misunderstood me. (Voices : Withdraw). I am not afraid of these things. I have passed through such stages.

Mr. Speaker : I would request honourable members not to speak slightly of their colleagues. Honourable members should always remember that they are members of parliament. (Hear, hear). They may hold and express different views ; but should not treat each other in a slighting manner.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Sir, you took the sentence out of my mouth and you, let me say respectfully, were rather too hasty in getting up because the very next sentence I was going to say was this. I did not mean any disrespect at all to any honourable member of this House (hear, hear). I was discussing a legal proposition and you would remember the previous sentence was , "it is the learning of the Speaker that comes to the rescue of the House and it is the Chair that we look to for learned expositions of the propositions of law and not to every member of the House." The convention would be set up by them, but only when they are guided by you and by others who understand the law. I did not mean any disrespect and there is no disrespect when I say that every member of the House is not capable of throwing light on propositions of law. No disrespect in any way is conveyed. You took the sentence out of my mouth while I was myself going to explain myself. So, as I have explained already there was no disrespect at all implied (hear, hear).

[Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang.]

My honourable friend Mir Maqbool Mahmood pointed out that conventions are set up by the House and not by the Chair. I do not quarrel with this proposition. I am asking the House to set up a convention with your assistance and guidance. And what does it matter who sets up the convention so long as the convention is there? We are not to look to the origin or history of the convention. If it is a fact that there is a convention, then we have the right to ask these gentlemen in their own interest and in the interest of the province to follow that convention. This is the proposition. Otherwise nobody denies and the Standing Order is clear on the point that they have every right to oppose, but the question is, as I have said, is it right to oppose? Do they want to bring about harmony in the province, or do they want to lay the foundations of bitterness? Do they want to create a feeling on this side of the House that they do not care at all for them? There are probably 15 or 16 Bills notice of which has been given by members on this side of the House. Are you going to brush them aside with one fell swoop and create the impression that this side is full of fools who do not understand their duties, who do not understand the requirements of their province?

There is another point which the members on this side have to bear in mind. The learned Government Advocate-General pointed out with great zeal that it was not open to the Leader of the House to set up this convention; it is the right of the House. But he forgets that the Leader of the House represents the House; it is he who represents the majority in the House, it is he who has the confidence of the majority. If he does not enjoy the confidence of the majority and if he does not have their confidence he has no right to be there. He cannot sit there for a minute. He knows and knows correctly and rightly and with all legitimate pride that the whole of this phalanx is at his back and is prepared to follow the sign that he makes with his little finger. It is as the representative of the House, as the mouth-piece of the House that we can appeal to him. We cannot appeal to every individual though sometimes we do appeal to individuals also, but it is to the House that we appeal through the Leader, because ex hypothesi he is the embodiment of the wisdom of the House and is the representative of this House. Therefore, there was no force really in what the learned Advocate-General said on this point that the Leader of the House has no right to set up conventions. He was laying down a very technical proposition of law when he said that he as an individual, as Sikander Hyat-Khan, has no right to set up a convention, but as the Premier, as the leader of the majority party in the House, he has a right and he has the power to set up this convention because what he suggests would certainly be followed by his party. As I have already stated, if he has no confidence in himself or if his party has no confidence in him, then he had better come to this side of the House and let him who can have the confidence of the party take his place. He has been setting up other conventions with the agreement of the Opposition. I am a poor individual living in a neutral zone and I have to give advice to this side and sometimes to that side. On occasions this side follow my advice and on occasions that side will also follow my advice. Then if the motion for leave is opposed and leave is refused, how is the Opposition, which is ex hypothesi in a minority, to expose the majority Party? (A voice: So the cat is out of the bag.) How are we to instruct the electorates? How are we to tell them that the majority party that now occupies the Government benches and which is ruling the province is not competent to rule? I do not say that they are not competent. I am not saying that. But if they want to show that they are incompetent, that is one of the methods and a very efficient method. They can say, "look here, here are some of the most necessary measures, very useful measures, we wanted to bring forward and these gentlemen would not even allow us to introduce those measures." If they are allowed and are considered, they will give their arguments in support of their measures. The other side will give arguments opposed to the measures and the public will judge whether the majority party is in the right or the minority party is in the right. How else can this very desirable object be achieved? Therefore, this is also a very strong argument. If they have confidence in themselves, they should have said, "there is no question of opposing the leave, come forward. Let us see what proposals you have got. Let us discuss them and let the House judge."

Again I do not mean any disrespect but I am not at all sure if all the honourable members have even read the Bills which these gentlemen want to introduce. When they are discussed, they will also come to know what it is that is being discussed on the floor of the House. Now judgment is being passed, as Sardar Hari Singh pointed out, against this party without giving an opportunity of stating their case to them, and judgment is being passed on the strength of these gentlemen without informing these gentlemen anything as to the nature of the case on which judgment is being passed. This is a most undesirable procedure and I would submit that the Premier and his followers would be well advised not to oppose the motion for leave to introduce these Bills. I feel confident, I am not talking for the sake of merely talking, I have refrained from talking so far, but I give him my sincere advice that he should not oppose and that he has been wrongly advised in taking up this course and it is not going to lead to good results. I know he is anxious to bring about harmony and peace in the province and to win the goodwill not only of this side of the House but of all parties and communities in the province, but I think if he refused leave to introduce the Bill, he will be defeating himself in that very laudable object with which he started.

Malik Barkat Ali (Eastern Towns, Muhammadan, Urban): Sir, I desire to join in the very powerful appeal which has been addressed to the Honourable Premier by Dr. Gokul Chand Narang. And my reasons are these. It has been stated to this House that in the mother of Parliaments in England, there are two ways of introducing a Bill. One is that of presenting a Bill and the other is that of seeking leave to introduce a Bill. Now when it is a question of presenting a Bill, no leave of the House is required in any form and manner whatever. The Bill is presented straightaway by any member in the shape of a dummy Bill the form of which he obtains from the clerk of the Public Office. The dummy Bill contains only the title of the Bill and the name of the member presenting it, but the provisions of the Bill are not printed at that stage. In order to understand how the practice of presenting Bills arose, I should like to draw the attention of honourable members to the fact that the practice of presenting a Bill prevailed originally in the House of Lords but not in the House of Commons. In the House of Commons Bills could only be introduced after leave to introduce the Bill had been given by the House. That was the original practice of the House of Commons. In the year 1902 the House of Commons adopted the practice of the House of Lords and therefore, Sir, since 1902, it is perfectly open to any member of the House of Commons to introduce a Bill through the medium of presenting the Bill without any consent of the House in the form of a dummy Bill with only the title of the Bill thereon but without any provisions of the Bill being printed anywhere.

As regards the second method, the old method of the House of Commons, namely, that of seeking leave to introduce a Bill, there is certainly no doubt that this was the provision. But how was this provision observed? We have been asked to remember that law has got to be interpreted as law. Surely the members of the House of Commons and those who laid down the procedure of the House of Commons were more aware of the requirements of law than we here are in this country. And my respectful submission is this that the House of Commons throughout its history has regarded this second method of introducing a Bill by the leave of the House as a purely formal stage, a stage where even the provisions of the Bill are never printed, and the leave of the House given without discussion as a matter of courtesy. I want the House to remember that under this procedure the provisions of the Bill are never printed. The House is never in a position to know or study the provisions of the Bill, what to say of discussing them; the Bill is a dummy Bill without any provisions of any kind and leave is granted purely as a formality. It is after the leave has been granted that the Speaker calls upon the member to introduce. He comes at the bar of the House and on being named by the Speaker walks up to the table of the House and delivers to the clerk his Bill. What form of Bill? A dummy Bill, without any provisions. It is after leave has been granted that the provisions of the Bill are ordered to be printed and the members are then in a position to know what the Bill is about. Therefore, if this is the position in the House of Commons at this stage, known as the first reading of the Bill, I certainly join in the appeal made to the Leader of the House, because it is really the Leader of the House who is in a position to bring about those healthy conventions which we want to be introduced in this House. So far as this particular Bill is concerned, if it were a very obnoxious measure, if it were a revolutionary or subversive measure, I could understand the opposition at this stage, but the object is to bring relief to the unemployed. It is an Unemployment Insurance Bill the object of which is to advance the very purpose which is also the purpose of the Treasury benches, namely, the alleviation of unemployment and giving relief to the unemployed. Therefore my respectful submission is this that in regard to a Bill of this character let us start this convention. A Bill may be objected to. There have been cases in the early history of England, when the convention was not soundly built up when Bills at the leave stage were successfully objected to and rejected but what was the effect of that rejection? The effect of that rejection was not to kill the Bill. I will read out to you the House of Commons procedure :

“ If a motion for leave to introduce a bill is opposed, the Speaker after permitting, if he thinks fit, a brief explanatory statement from the member who moves and from the member who opposes the motion,—

That is exactly our rule.

“ puts the question thereon or the question that the debate be now adjourned ”.

The word ‘now’ is important and it is printed in italics by May at page 385, where the learned author says —

“ It is to be observed that when the question for the first reading of a Bill is negatived the House merely determines that the bill shall not now be read; and the question may therefore be repeated on a future day.

As soon as the House has ordered a bill to be now read the first time, its short title as entered upon the notice paper and endorsed on the bill, is read or supposed to be read by the clerk. This is taken to be a sufficient compliance with the order of the House, and attempts to obtain that a bill should be read to the House clause by clause have been overruled by the Speaker”.

This supports my submission, namely, that at this stage the House is not required to know the text or the provisions of the Bill, and, therefore, this stage is a pure formality. The stage when the House comes to know the provisions of the Bill and can discuss those provisions is a subsequent stage, but not at this initial stage, and my respectful submission is that our standing order is exactly the same except that the last words in our standing order are that the question may be put without further delay. It is within the discretion of the Chair to put the question and I submit that there is absolutely nothing to prevent you, after the motion has been negatived, to say that the question be adjourned to a later day and that the Bill shall not now be read. I request you as the custodian of the rights of this House and as one who is interested in seeing that healthy conventions are built up, to see that a measure of this kind, emanating from the Opposition, howsoever small that Opposition may be—after all it is a very important minority—is not killed outright in that fashion without being discussed. The minority cannot be refused the right to speak. If we are given leave to introduce and the motion is thrown out later, we do not care, but the Opposition must be given the right to open their lips on any question even if it be in the shape of a Bill sought to be introduced by them before this House (hear, hear).

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I am not one of those who are conversant with the practice prevailing in other countries or in other provinces. But I want to place before the House the difficulties which the Opposition shall have to face in making suggestions or criticising the actions of the Government or the majority party. At the time of the budget discussion when we were discussing demands, your ruling was—during the Old Council and I think it stands to-day as well—that we cannot discuss the provisions of the Act but we have to discuss the policy according to the Act as it exists. Then, when we gave notice of resolutions to you, you ruled that because it affects the law, therefore we could not move a resolution but we should move a definite specific Bill to amend that law. Now that we have come before the House with a Bill, are we to be told that no leave to introduce it can be given, however good the proposal may be? My submission, therefore, is that if we are to be opposed at this stage the position that would result would be that the Opposition have no right to move any amendment to a law which exists to-day. We thus have only one occasion to express our opinion and that is only at the time of general discussion of the budget. That is all that seems to be left to us, but then the time is very short and we cannot discuss the whole administration and the laws of the administration within a short period of three days when 175 members have to speak and discuss their own affairs. The establishment of a convention shall not take away the right of opposing the motion for leave; exceptions shall prove the rule. I therefore ask you to ask the Leader of the House to establish the convention so that the Opposition may be able to get the right to ventilate their feelings and express what they feel that the law of the land should be. (Hear, hear).

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I make a personal statement in reference to what Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan said? In that particular instance we did not oppose it eventually when it was pointed out by the Speaker and the motion was carried nem con.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : Sir, it is provided in the rule that the member who opposes leave being granted should also give an explanatory statement, may I ask that the honourable member should also explain the reasons for his opposition?

Mr. Speaker : That stage has not been reached yet.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : This will enable the Opposition to know the grounds on which he opposes.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan) : I am glad to find that there is no difference of opinion so far as the legal aspect is concerned. We both agree that so far as the legal aspect goes this House is entitled to oppose leave to introduce if it so desires. Very eloquent appeals were made by my honourable friends, Sir Gokul Chand Narang, and Malik Barkat Ali, mostly addressed to me and this part of the House, asking us to set up a convention by which leave to introduce a Bill may not be refused. My position is that there is a convention which has already been set up in the previous Council and that convention is, I venture to point out, in consonance with the convention of the mother of Parliament (Voices from the Opposition : No). It is therefore not necessary for us to set up a new convention. The whole thing boils down to this. My honourable friends opposite want me to set up a convention which goes beyond even the convention set up by the Parliament. I have quoted chapter and verse to show that in the House of Commons leave to introduce has been refused and leave to introduce has been granted. But the inherent right of the House is there to oppose or not to oppose such a request. Therefore, the convention is that each Bill must be considered on its merits. We on this side of the House will also be prepared to consider each Bill on its merits. This is the convention which this House has set up and which is in consonance with the practice in Parliament. We are not setting up any new convention and the honourable members will not like me to depart from that convention merely because a few gentlemen here want to depart from it.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It is very rarely opposed in the House of Commons.

Premier : I am glad that he has pointed it out. It is rarely opposed in the House of Commons. May I also point out that in the House of Commons Bills are rarely brought by the Opposition ("hear, hear", from the Ministerial benches).

Diwan Chaman Lall : Only the other day, Mr. A. P. Herbert brought in a Divorce Bill which is of far reaching effect and which the Government did not oppose.

Premier : One swallow does not make a summer, but I may point out to my honourable friend that that Bill was brought in with the consent of the majority party.

Diwan Chaman Lall : No.

Premier : Do you think that the Bill would have gone through without the consent of the majority party in the House of Commons ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Government did not oppose it.

Premier : Because the convention in the Parliament is that if the Opposition wants to bring in a public measure—there is a difference between a private Bill and a public Bill—it must do so with the concurrence of the Government. My honourable friend was reading out certain quotations from the Parliamentary practice. He must remember that he was there again referring to the first reading, quite a different stage from what the procedure here is. It is not analogous.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : What is the first reading ?

Premier : There dummy Bills, as you know, are brought into the House and sometimes money Bills also which are prohibited—

Malik Barkat Ali : This procedure does not apply to money bills.

Premier : I am talking of several other conventions which are analogous. A private member can bring in a money Bill and he can put in italics what is called 'blank' under the Parliamentary convention. That 'blank' is subsequently endorsed by a resolution of the House. It is before a Bill can be proceeded with. There are several conventions which are not analogous to our procedure here and which are not applicable here, until you amend your law and rules and regulations. I was submitting that our convention here, set up by the previous Council, is in consonance with Parliamentary practice and I do not see any reason for departing from that practice. My honourable friend pointed out that leave to introduce is rarely opposed in Parliament. I submit that it is perfectly true and I agree with him that the first reading is rarely opposed, but, there, the Bill from the Opposition is a rare phenomenon.

Malik Barkat Ali : Because the Government anticipates all that legislation there and for the obvious reason that Government there is a responsible Government not in the nominal sense but in the truest sense of the term. (Interruptions).

Premier : If the honourable members will let me proceed I will come to that point.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I just want to ask a question which would relieve tenseness on this side. Is this Opposition going to be a rare Opposition? It may change the attitude of the House on this side to certain extent to have a reply to this question.

Premier : Sir, if my honourable friends opposite follow Parliamentary conventions and democratic conventions of rarely bringing in Bills from the Opposition side we on this side are not likely to oppose the motion for leave.

Diwan Chaman Lall : This is the first occasion.

Premier : Let me now point out why the convention was established in England that the Opposition very rarely bring in a measure which affects the public. It is for the simple reason that no measure can go through the House unless it is endorsed by the majority party, that is, the Government in power. There those people are so public spirited as not to waste the time of the House or public money by bringing a Bill merely, as my honourable friend pointed out, to criticise the Government. The cat was out of the bag when he pointed out that they want this convention to be adopted to point out that Government is not doing anything at all. If this is the spirit in which Bills are brought in this House and if this is the spirit in which legislation is to be discussed in this House, I am very sorry, my honourable friends opposite will not expect me to accept their point of view or to countenance their proposal. But, as I pointed out, I am prepared to concede and accommodate the Opposition as far as possible. I am prepared to set up conventions which are in consonance with Parliamentary practice and which are in the interest of the public. But in this case, may I submit that a convention of this kind to renounce our rights of refusing consent might lead to abuse? Even in the present agenda paper, you will find that notices of no less than 19 Bills have been given. Now the Opposition must realise that it is not their duty to legislate. It is a primary function of the Government of the time to legislate for the requirements of the public.

Malik Barkat Ali : If the Government does not like to do so?

Premier : My honourable friends have got various opportunities of bringing to the notice of the Government their points of view, or the view of their constituents, by means of resolutions, by means of motions during the budget discussion, through the Press or from platforms. They can go to their constituencies and pronounce their opinions with regard to legislation. But I am sure they will agree with me that I would not be acting in consonance with the interests of this province if I accepted the views they are now pressing upon the House. We have to set up conventions, not only for the present House—I may not be here to-morrow, my honourable friend may not be there to-morrow—we have to set up conventions which would do credit not only to this House to-day but also to posterity. (“Hear, hear”, from the Treasury benches). I hope my honourable friend opposite will concede that it will not be in the interest of this House or the province as a whole to set up a convention which even the House of Commons has not set up so far.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : May I know from the Leader of the House whether after leave is granted he and his party cannot at a later stage throw the Bill out?

Premier : Of course, and that is the very reason why we want to kill this Bill in its initial stage. When we conscientiously believe that we are not going to support the Bill, why allow the time of this House to be wasted? I might for his information point out that apart from this objection, we could have taken other objection and pointed out to you that this Bill is out of order for the simple reason that it has serious financial implications. I would have submitted to you that it should have been ruled out earlier under the Government of India Act. But I did not want to do so, because I wanted the House to have the fullest opportunity to understand our position. We are not going to throw out every Bill blind-folded. We will consider every Bill on its merits. If the Government finds that it is in conformity with its principles and in the interests of the province, it can take up a legislation of that kind. It will bring that legislation itself. As I pointed out, it is not for the Opposition to bring any such Bill in Parliament. It is rarely and only non-controversial measures that are brought forward by the Opposition. All important public measures are brought in from the Government side and the Treasury benches and that is why we want to set up that convention in this House also.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : May I know whether it is open to the members of this House to suggest to the Government, by means of resolutions, etc., the desirability of initiating certain legislation?

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : May I put one question to the Leader of the House, just for the sake of information, to get some light from him? The Leader of the House has been pleased to remark that he and his party want to kill this Bill at its initial stage.

Premier : I did not say anything of the kind. I did not mention the present Bill at all.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : Very respectfully and with your permission, Sir, I beg to say that I understood the Leader of the House to remark, that in regard to this particular measure or Bill he and his party were willing and were anxious to kill it at the initial stage. But if he says he did not say so, I am prepared to take his word for it. Now, may I know this? The Bill as it stands is in the interest of the unemployed and they are to be insured. May I know if the party to which he has the fortune or privilege to belong does not want the unemployed to be insured or he wants to bring another Bill on these lines?

Premier : The honourable member is asking me a question on the merits of the Bill itself. I am not going to enter into the merits of the Bill or to commit myself to any opinion at this stage. Every one of us has got sympathy with the honourable mover of the Bill. But the question is whether this particular Bill is going to do them any good or whether we could find funds to give effect to this Bill, that is a different matter altogether. What I said was there was another aspect, the financial aspect, on which by taking objection, I could have asked you to rule it out of order. But I did not do so because I wanted to give them an opportunity of discussing this other aspect which is more important, namely the aspect of establishing a convention. I have also said that we shall consider each Bill on its merits.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : Have you considered this Bill on its merits?

Lala Deshbhandhu Gupta : The Honourable Premier has taken his stand on the analogy of the House of Commons and he says the Opposition there behaves in a particular manner and that, it rarely brings in private bills. But is he aware of the fact that the present Government of our province is neither national in the sense the Government of England is, nor is free to legislate on all matters.

Mr. Speaker : This is not a point of order.

Lala Deshbhandhu Gupta : I only want to remove a misunderstanding. They want to have the same privileges as are enjoyed by the Governments of free countries, while it is a fact that we are really not free.

Premier : If that is the position my honourable friends should have less occasion to bring in such Bills.

Lala Deshbhandhu Gupta : More, because you cannot have the courage to bring in certain legislation. (Hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : The point of order raised by Diwan Chaman Lall has been discussed at length. My view is that the convention, proposed to be established, is not inconsistent with Standing Order 40 (hear, hear) or any other standing order or rule of this House, or of the House of Commons (Hear, hear). The Standing Order 40, when carefully read, leaves no doubt that the House is well within its rights to establish any such convention, if it likes to do so. A convention is nothing but an agreement to start a certain usage or practice. Standing Order 40 corresponds with the latter part of the Standing Order 10 of the House of Commons and article 74 of the Central Assembly Manual of business and all these are identical. Standing Order 40 runs as follows :—

If a motion for leave to introduce a Bill is opposed, the Speaker after permitting, if he thinks fit, a brief explanatory statement from the member who moves and from the member who opposes the motion, may put the question without further debate.

It does not lay down that every motion for leave to introduce a Bill should be opposed. It leaves it to the discretion or option of members to oppose a motion or not. Consequently, there can be no legal objection to the establishment of the proposed practice or convention. But a convention that no Bill shall be opposed at all, shall be clearly against the Standing Order (hear, hear) and illegal.

There was a time when in the mother of Parliaments every Bill was introduced after obtaining leave of the House on a motion to that effect. But in the course of time this procedure was considered to be irksome and difficult. Therefore, in the year 1888 the so-called ten-minutes rule was made and it is in force up to this day. Ten minutes are given to the mover, if his Bill is objected to, and ten minutes to the opposer of the motion. After both of them are heard, the motion for leave to introduce the Bill is put to the vote of the House. This rule also having been found to be irksome, as sometimes it precluded the introduction of certain Bills, in the year 1902, another Standing Order [31(2)] was made providing that any member may, without seeking leave to introduce a Bill, present a dummy Bill. But in practice even the Government has not been taking advantage of the new rule of 1902 and has been moving some important measures under the old rule of 1888, with the leave of the House, and such motions have sometimes been discussed for 3, 4 or 5 days. (See note on page 380 of May's Parliamentary Practice). When a motion is made for leave to introduce a Bill there is absolutely no difference between our procedure and the procedure of the House of Commons. For the last 13 years, during which I have been in this Chair, Bills have been opposed; but with the exception of one, if I remember aright—no motion for leave to introduce a Bill has been ever refused. (Hear, hear).

Now I will read out a paragraph from Redlich's standard work on Parliamentary Practice (volume 3, pages 86 and 87) :—

" A bill may be introduced either in pursuance of an order of the House or without an order. The former method, that of obtaining by special motion leave from the House to introduce a bill, is the old practice which has been in use for centuries. Under a standing order passed in 1888, popularly known as the "ten minutes rule" (Standing Order 11) an abbreviated mode of procedure is authorised for the introduction of bills. Under this rule the question is put after "brief explanatory statements" by the proposer and (in case of opposition) by one member who opposes. Introduction under the "ten minutes rule" is often adopted in the case of minor Government bills, when an explanation is considered desirable at the first stage, and occasionally it is used by private members. A further simplification was made on the 17th of February, 1902 by an amendment of Standing Order 31, under which a member may introduce a bill by simply presenting it at the table, after previous notice, but without any order of the House. This procedure, which was borrowed from the House of Lords is now almost invariably adopted in the case of private members' bills and frequently in the case of departmental measures introduced by the Government. *

" If the old procedure be adopted the day upon which leave to introduce is to be asked must be specified by previous written notice. On the day appointed the motion is proposed, and is supported by the mover in a speech explaining the subject matter of the Bill. There is no real debate unless there is actual Opposition to leave being granted for the introduction of the Bill. It is exceptional, save in the case of great Government measures, for the minister in charge to go into much detail in explaining to the House what it is being asked to admit to its deliberations. Even if a full summary is given, it is not customary to have a debate at this stage, unless it is desired to prevent the bill even from being introduced. Of course no question of the kind arises on the great majority of bills. In consequence the preliminary stage generally takes but little time, and is attended with few difficulties. But from time to time, the Opposition does take the opportunity of making an attack on some measure, or on the Government generally, when leave is asked to introduce a bill: if so a hostile amendment to the motion for leave is usually proposed; occasionally such motions have been followed by important political consequences. If the motion is not treated in this very exceptional way the whole transaction is merely formal: leave is given and a day is fixed for introduction and first reading.

It appears clear from the passage I have quoted that our Standing Order 40 corresponds with Standing Order 11 (now Standing Order 10) of the House of Commons; but that we have no Standing Order corresponding with Standing Order 31(2) of that House, that is to say, a Bill cannot be introduced in our Assembly without an order of the House for its introduction.

It is further clear that, under our Standing Order 40, the Speaker has got the discretion not only to put a motion for leave to introduce a Bill after permitting two brief speeches, but that it is also in his discretion to have the motion further discussed before putting it to the vote of the House. In other words, a motion for leave to introduce a Bill, may be put not only after two brief speeches; but that, if the Speaker permits further discussion, after a full debate on the motion. According to the following passage on page 380 of Sir Erskine May's book, this is also the practice of the House of Commons :—

“ In making a motion for leave to bring in a bill, a member may explain the object of the bill, and give reasons for its introduction ; but unless the motion be opposed, this is not the proper time for any lengthened debate upon its merits. When an important measure is offered by a minister or other member, this opportunity is frequently taken for a full exposition of its character and objects : but otherwise, debate should be avoided at this stage, unless it be expected that the motion will be negatived, and that no future occasion will arise for discussion”.

It is further clear from all that has been said above that the convention proposed to be set up is not opposed to any Standing Order or practice of this House or of the House of Commons. So, I shall welcome any arrangement or agreement the honourable members may come to. It is a question of give and take (Hear, hear). Now I ask Diwan Chaman Lall to move his motion.

Premier : Before the honourable member is allowed to make his motion, may I point out the convention in Parliament namely that public Bills are rarely introduced by the Opposition ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Where is that convention ?

Premier : In the mother of Parliaments.

An honourable member : But the Government of the day leaves nothing for private legislation.

Premier : The honourable member may wait and see whether we leave anything for private legislation.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : I beg to move—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Unemployment Insurance Bill.

In asking for leave I want to express my gratefulness to you, Mr. Speaker, for giving me this opportunity for saying a few words regarding this particular measure and the necessity for it. My learned friend the Premier stated that there is a convention that public Bills are not moved by private members in the House of Commons.

Premier : Rarely moved.

Diwan Chaman Lall : He says 'rarely'. I have not seen that convention in writing, but I have seen a convention in writing that leave to introduce is very rarely opposed. My honourable friend is probably thinking of the fact that private members—(Interruption). I am quite willing to give way to my honourable friend if he wants to say anything.

Premier : I said that public Bills are rarely moved by the Opposition. How does the honourable member assume that when leave is refused all such Bills are moved by the Opposition ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : My learned friend is suffering from a little mental confusion. He said originally that there is a convention that public Bills are rarely moved by non-official members. Now he modifies that statement.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member will please proceed with his speech.

Diwan Chaman Lal : I am afraid my learned friend has not really considered this point of the urgency of discussing a measure of this nature. The reason why I have brought forward this Bill now—I ask my learned friend to pay some attention to this particular matter—is not to rob him of his fire, not to destroy any opportunities that he may utilize for the purpose of bringing in unemployment insurance legislation. I have brought this measure in with this object in view that my learned friend over there who is not familiar—in fact none of the Treasury benches are familiar—with this sort of legislation as we saw only the other day—my learned friend should be educated in this type of legislation. My learned friend should afford us an opportunity to educate the public in regard to this legislation. The provisions of the Bill are not such as to upset or perturb in the least my learned friend if he had allowed this discussion and the circulation to take place. The provisions are very simple and I may with your permission read the provisions of this measure, as I find that a large number of members of this House are not familiar even with its meagre provisions. This is a Bill—

“ to make provision for compulsory insurance against unemployment of every workman employed in certain trades.

The first clause says—

This Act shall be called the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The second clause deals with the type of workmen who ought to be insured under this legislation. I have stated in clause 2 that workmen shall be defined as persons of 14 years or more—

“ employed wholly and mainly by way of manual labour, clerical or supervisory capacity, whether under private, Municipal or public authority, provided that the total monthly wages of such person in employ whether engaged in manual, clerical or supervisory capacities under private, Municipal or public authority do not exceed Rs. 100.”

This is to provide for that particular class of workmen, whether he is engaged in manual work or in a clerical capacity who is unable to make provision for himself in case he is thrown out of employment. I have thrown the onus for looking after this particular workmen principally not upon the Government but upon the employers and workmen themselves. I have in clause 3 defined the ‘ insured trades ’ to include—

Buildings, carpentry, painting; construction of works, roads and railroads; mechanical engineering including manufacture of Ordnance and firearms; iron foundering; construction of vehicles; saw milling and flour milling; employment in factories of whatsoever nature governed by the Indian Factories Act, 1911, as amended or the Indian Mines Act as amended; employment in hotels, restaurants, insurance, banking and commercial offices, and as accountants, clerks, supervisors, typists and teachers, employed privately or otherwise; transport of all descriptions, etc.

This is not a very comprehensive list of the trades which I wish should be insured under this Bill. But it covers particularly all those trades which we find in actual operation in the Punjab, having left out those of a minor nature which have no great importance in this particular province of ours.

The next principle underlying this Bill is that the Ministry of Public Works will be empowered to control this scheme of compulsory insurance—

The Ministry of Public Works may from time to time by notification in the Gazette extend compulsory insurance against unemployment to other trades or vary the definition of workmen with respect to age and may do so with or without modifications of rates of period of benefits.

[Diwan Chaman Lal.]

The next principle is in regard to payments to be made by the workmen and by the Government and by the employers.

Every workman of the age of 18 or upwards shall pay one anna every week of his employment on remuneration (but if he or she is of an age between 16 and 18, then his or her contribution shall be only $\frac{1}{2}$ anna per week) and every employer of such workmen shall pay three annas for every week that the employer pays the said worker any remunerations.

The next principle underlying this Bill is that the employer in the first instance shall be responsible—as is to be found in every type of legislation of this nature existing in other civilised countries—for collecting the insurance premia to be paid to these insurance funds.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : On a point of order. Is the honourable member in order in discussing the provisions of the Bill at this stage ?

Mr. Speaker : The character and objects, but not the merits of the Bill, can be discussed at this stage.

Diwan Chaman Lal : I do not wish to draw the attention of the House to the merits of the Bill. I am prepared to concede to my honourable friend if it will please him that it has no merits at all, (hear, hear). I want my learned friend who says so glibly 'hear, hear' to pay a little attention to the objects of this Bill, to pay a little attention to the provisions of this Bill, not to the merits of it.

Mr. Speaker : As the honourable member appears to have forgotten so soon the important passage which I quoted a few minutes ago from Sir Erskine May's book, I once more repeat the authoritative passage in the hope that the honourable members while discussing the motion will keep in mind the principles enunciated therein—

In making a motion for leave to bring in a bill, a member may explain the object of the bill, and give reasons for its introduction; but unless the motion be opposed, this is not the proper time for any lengthened debate upon its merits. When an important measure is offered by a minister or other member, this opportunity is frequently taken for a full exposition of its character and objects; but otherwise debate should be avoided at this stage, unless it be expected that the motion will be negatived, and that no future occasion will arise for discussion. —May's Parliamentary Practice, page 380.

(Hear, hear and cheers.)

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I would like to read out to you the rulings which have been given by the President of the central legislature in connection with the question raised now that no debate can be allowed at this stage even if the motion is opposed.

Mr. Speaker : I have more than once said from this chair that my first guide is the Government of India Act, 1935, of which this House is a creature. My second guide is the Rules and Standing Orders of this House; and my third guide is the practice of this House, which is not inconsistent with our Rules and Standing Orders and is also supported by the parliamentary practice.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : On a point of order with regard to parliamentary practice. It is apart from the question whether lengthened debate is permissible or not which shall be taken up later. The first speaker and the second speaker are limited to ten minutes each.

Mr. Speaker: The honourable member has not followed me at all. Ten minutes' rule is followed only when it is almost certain that the motion will not be negatived. Where it is certain that it is likely to be negatived, the debate may extend even to the merits of the Bill.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood: I have not made my point of order clear to the Chair. What I submit is that a very lengthened debate under certain circumstances had been permitted before the year 1819. What was the position after that I shall submit later but the rule with regard to first and second speaker has not been relaxed and more than that—

Mr. Speaker: It has been relaxed; but only two members will speak on the motion now under discussion.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood: Other persons have spoken in certain cases but the first two speakers have been limited to ten minutes each. I beg to invite your attention to your own remarks when I introduced the Money Lenders' Bill and you pulled me up after ten minutes.

Mr. Speaker: For how many minutes did the honourable member speak?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood: For ten minutes, Sir. Unless the first and second speaker have spoken, it is not open to the House to know whether it is opposed or not. It is just possible after the speech of the mover of the Bill that we may be persuaded to agree to the Bill being allowed.

Mr. Speaker: As the discussion, which has taken place to-day, and the fate which the Bill is probably going to meet, cannot be ignored, I allow the honourable member to speak for more than ten minutes.

Premier: I did not make myself clear. What I was submitting was that you have relaxed the ten minutes' rule in this particular case after having gauged the opinion of the House, from what has been said already. I venture to submit that it is impossible for the House to know whether the Bill is going to be allowed and that is why my honourable friend here suggested that the first two speeches should be confined to ten minutes each because it is only after the second speech that you come to know whether leave is going to be allowed or not.

Mr. Speaker: Our Standing Order does not fix any time limit.

Premier: If you study the point at leisure you will find that it is only after the first two speeches that that relaxation is made.

Mr. Speaker: It is not imperative that in every case the first two speeches should be confined to ten minutes. Our Standing Order does not fix any duration and, so far as I know, up till now we have established no such convention.

Premier: I did not make myself clear. What I was submitting was that in this particular case, you have relaxed the ten minutes rule after having gauged the opinion of the House from what has already been said. My honourable friend was perfectly right in saying that the first two speeches are confined to ten minutes in the ordinary case and the relaxation takes place after the second speech because the House cannot be in a position to know whether the motion is going to be allowed.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I think there is again confusion of thought in regard to this particular matter. You have stated, by reading out page 380 of May's Parliamentary Practice, that this particular practice—where the motion is likely to be negatived—of permitting a lengthy discussion is of comparatively recent origin.

Mr. Speaker : May I invite the Honourable Mir Maqbool Mahmood's attention to the bottom of page 380 of May's Parliamentary Practice where it is said :—

“ The lengthened debate on this question is of comparatively recent origin ”.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : That was exactly the point that I had in view. If the Honourable Speaker would refer to the rulings and specific suggestions given under that page, he will find that they relate to 24th January to 2nd February, 1881, 1886, 1887 and 1893.

Mr. Speaker : Should I understand that there were no lengthy debates after the year 1893 ?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Not after the year 1893.

Mr. Speaker : May I invite the honourable member's attention to page 177 of Campion's book, which says that when Bills are introduced, introduction is made in certain cases without preliminaries and in others with preliminaries. In our case it is “ without preliminaries ”.

“(a) In the absence of these preliminaries a motion is made that leave be given to bring in a bill. This question has often led to protracted debate, which serves no useful purpose, as it cannot fail to anticipate the discussion of the principle of the bill proper to the second reading.”

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : There appears to be some misunderstanding. What I have already submitted and I submit now is that page 380 of May's Parliamentary Practice makes the statement that protracted debate is not permitted.

Mr. Speaker : That edition was published in the year 1924.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : But rulings of the years 1891 and 1893 have been given.

Mr. Speaker : Yes, but Sir Erskine May expressed his opinion in the year 1924 ; while Mr. Campion's book was printed in the year 1929.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Recent in the life of the Parliament.

Mr. Speaker : However that is what I understand the rule to mean, and I will act according to my lights.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, I was on the point of referring to the principal objects of this measure which I have proposed before this House, and I was stating the main provisions. I think all members of this House will agree with me, Mr. Speaker, in expressing their delight at the quick and the correct manner in which you have given your ruling. There can be no doubt that this matter is of very grave importance and being of grave importance I cannot understand for the life of me why my honourable friends are doing their best to throttle discussion. Why ? Are they afraid of the discussion of this matter ? What is worrying them ? Why are they raising technical objections which they have not studied and why do they attempt to throttle discussion of this matter ?

Premier : My submission with regard to this particular Bill is that you have already gauged the opinion of the House and therefore in this particular case you have relaxed the ten-minute rule. I do not challenge that ruling. I only hope that this is not going to be a precedent, because each case will have to be considered on its merits, otherwise the House will not know whether the Bill is going to be passed or not except through some supernatural powers.

Mr. Speaker : When a measure is an important one, like the one to which the motion before the House relates, and there is no likelihood of the motion being carried, unless I give the mover, who perhaps is the only person, who can discuss the pros and cons of the motion, sufficient time, I shall be gagging his mouth.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not intend to abuse the privilege which you have extended to me and I shall attempt to be as brief as possible in my exposition of this measure. The benefits receiveable under this measure are Rs. 2-8-0 per week for the insured person. He will not be entitled to draw this premium unless and until twenty-four contributions have been paid by him. For every dependent eight annas will be payable provided it is proved that the dependent, whether a child or an adult, is wholly maintained by the claimant and payment shall be made for a maximum of two such dependents at any time. The idea underlying this provision is this that if an unemployed person has a large family he should not be robbed of the benefits of the provisions of this Act and that he should not only be able to provide for himself but also for the whole of his family.

The next principle underlying this Bill is this that there are a series of officers appointed—inspectors, a court of referees and an umpire. The inspectors will in the first instance be in charge of discovering the bases for the claims which are made by the insured persons and for finding out whether they are correct claims or not. If there is any dispute it can be referred to the court of referees, and if there is a further dispute another appeal can be made to the umpire whose decision will be final. In respect of this particular provision I have followed the provisions of the English law (the Unemployment Insurance Act) and have based it upon practice which is now followed after many years of experience. Nothing in this measure is contained which is likely to be of a novel character or which is likely to be of such a character which has not been tried either in Great Britain or in other countries of the world. And, Mr. Speaker, I beg to refer to the fact that in practically every civilised country of the world to-day barring the Punjab which my friends do not consider to be civilised—

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : On a point of order. May I draw your attention to the fact that while a Bill of great importance is before the House three Honourable Ministers are absent and unless they are present how will they be able to judge the merits of the Bill?

Minister for Development : The Minister in charge is here.

Diwan Chaman Lall : There is nothing to prevent honourable members from vacating their Treasury benches but we on the Opposition realise fully well that this is the attention that they pay to the real needs of the people of the province. (Hear, hear.) When it is a question of their salaries they will sit with whips in their hands and see that the majority are present and not one member leaves the House, but when it is the question of feeding the hungry mouths of the province then they do not care. (Cheers).

My honourable friends do not consider the Punjab civilised and they have no regard for the unemployed of this province. In practically every civilised country in the world there is a provision of this very nature of compulsory insurance or of voluntary insurance. Let me give a list of a few countries: Austria, Germany, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, France, England, Norway, Italy, Switzerland, Great Britain and now many States in the United States of America. You will find that the problem of unemployment is of a very serious and of a very grave nature. It affects every country of the world. There is not only permanent unemployment in our own country but periodic waves of intensified unemployment and all that Government has so far possibly done for the unemployed is to utilise what is known as the Famine Fund for the purpose of relief to those who are without a job. Even that particular Fund, my honourable friends, have raided to the tune of nearly ten lakhs of rupees and there is no provision to-day to give any support to the unemployed in this province of ours. My honourable friends have appointed a committee for the purpose of discussing the question of unemployment. We had a committee in the year 1927 appointed by the Government. Twenty witnesses were examined by this committee and this committee dismissed the question of unemployment amongst the working classes in a paragraph of twenty lines. And the conclusion it came to as far as that question was concerned, was that there really was no important problem of unemployment to be solved. The other attempt that has been made is the attempt that my honourable friends have made through the appointment of a committee. My learned friends may get up and say, why bring in a Bill at this stage since we have appointed a committee? First of all, I want my friends to realise that this Bill was given notice of long before my friends announced the personnel of a committee of unemployment. This Bill was brought in because no question of policy was laid down by the Ministry in any of the statements made on the floor of this House since they took office. Besides, bringing in this measure and asking the House to discuss this measure, asking my honourable friends to allow this measure to go to the public for eliciting its opinion does not tie my honourable friends down to any principle, nor does it tie the Unemployment Committee to any principle underlying this particular measure. I do not know the reason why my honourable friends over there should have opposed this motion with such vigour and persistence. I can only guess the reason for their opposition. It may have been merely this that either they do not understand the measure or possibly there was an arriere pensee in their minds in regard to this particular measure. I do submit to the treasury benches that we have had no other thought in our minds except to try and bring some relief to the unemployed of our province. If my friends over there after public opinion has been elicited or after they have discussed this measure come to the conclusion that they should let the measure rest where it is until such time as they have made up their own minds regarding the provisions of the Bill which they would like to bring forward to solve the problem of the people, nobody would be happier than

I am to make a present of the provisions of this Bill to them. Let them do what they chose with it but let them not sit silently and ignore the important needs of the province in regard to the question of the unemployed. It is not sufficient for them to say that we have appointed a committee who will no doubt report. It is true that you have no statistics to go on. It is perfectly correct that the Government of India and the Government of the Punjab have never attempted to collect statistics although they have been pressed time and again to collect statistics in regard to unemployment. But it is a patent fact, Mr. Speaker, a fact which does not require elucidation by any committee whether there is or there is not any unemployment in this country. What is needed now is that my honourable friend should consider the provisions of this measure with due care and thought and give a guarantee to this House that after he has considered this measure and all the implications of this measure, he will be prepared either to oppose it on merits or support this measure at least the provisions which the Government are willing after consideration to support. This is a sensible view to take. As I explained a little while ago on the occasion when I moved the Weekly Payment of Wages Bill that that measure was sent to the public for eliciting public opinion thereon and it took eleven years for that measure to become the law of the land. If a bureaucratic Government, an irresponsible Government as my honourable friend over there calls the Central Government can do a thing like that, what is there to prevent my honourable friend here to send this Bill to the public to elicit its opinion and wait to take action after the committee that they have appointed reports? That would have been a straightforward policy in the interests of the working classes of this province. That would have been a policy which every public man in the province would have supported, that would have been a policy which would have redounded to their credit. But instead of that a mean and miserable opposition has been set up by honourable members opposite to a problem which requires such elucidation as one can give it, which requires the attention, and the immediate attention of the honourable members of this House. There is one other point left and that is the financial aspect of the question. It is quite possible that my honourable friends opposite may object to this particular measure on the ground of finances. (Interruption.) My honourable friend over there says that is the crux of the matter. Certainly that is the crux of the matter and I have put in that particular matter on the basis of actuarial estimates made in other countries and not one pie more than the actual actuarial estimates made in other countries in regard to the contribution to be made by the State. Even there I am subject to correction. Let them turn down the thing but let them not turn a deaf ear without even having looked into the provisions of this measure. Let them not turn this measure down without considering its implications. I submit they are not tied down to this measure until this measure goes back to the House after public opinion has been elicited and when it goes back to the House my honourable friend over there is at liberty to turn round and say we will not have it, we will not touch it as this measure is not acceptable either from the point of view of policy or from the point of view of finance. The financial provisions in my opinion would not mean more than two annas per week in respect of a very limited number of people in the province.

Minister for Development : What is that number ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : What is that number ? Let the Bill go to the public, let a select committee be appointed on it to take evidence, let this matter be enquired into and then my learned friend will get the number. There is no difficulty in that. But, Mr. Speaker, my learned friend cannot get the number by saying I will not allow a discussion of this Bill or I will turn the Bill down. My honourable friend does not know the number and I confess neither do I. Time and again on the Royal Commission on Labour, I put questions all over India to important employers, to important officials about the number of unemployed in a particular area or a presidency or a province. Time and again I was unable to get correct figures. Approximate figures, yes, which meant nothing at all, but here is a scientific measure which if properly enquired into will give you the scientific estimate of the unemployed in this province and will bring to light the tragedy of a man because he is a citizen of the Punjab dying of starvation merely because there is no unemployed insurance. That is the great tragedy which this Bill will bring to light. This measure does not ask the honourable members to give only doles to the working classes out of the exchequer. It merely says that every workman shall insure himself and pay towards his own insurance with the help of the State and employers and I have not the slightest doubt those employers in this House who have got some regard for their own countrymen will support this measure and support it with all the strength at their command, because it will mean a better Punjab, a happier Punjab, a more peaceful and a more prosperous Punjab (hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved is that—

Leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Unemployment Insurance Bill.

Minister for Development : (The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : I am extremely sorry that I have to oppose leave being granted to the introduction of this Bill.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Why are you sorry ?

Minister for Development : Because so far as the question of helping the unemployed is concerned, I am at one with my honourable friends that it should be done.

Chaudhri Krishna Gopal Dutt : Crocodile tears.

Minister for Development : In the absence of resources which will be required to put any legislation of this kind into effect, it will be useless for us to have this Bill discussed in this House or passed eventually. My friend has said that every civilized country on the face of this earth has enacted a law of this kind. May I, with your permission, invite the attention of the House to the fact that the statement of my honourable friend is entirely wrong unless he confines the designation of civilised countries, only to those 18 countries which he has named. Let me inform the House that not a single Asiatic country, not excepting even Japan, has undertaken any legislation of this kind. Does my friend mean to contend that Japan is not a civilised country ? (A voice : Then give a lead.) We are giving a lead in India, and, what is more, we are giving a lead in matters where that lead ought to be adopted and can be followed by others, with advantage. If any unsalutary suggestion is made we are not going to adopt that suggestion. So far as India is concerned, I am sure that everybody will admit that Bombay is far more advanced industrially than our own province. We cannot seriously maintain that Bombay is in the least less civilised than our own province. Our local patriotism notwithstanding, we shall have to admit that Bombay is, at least, a few paces ahead of us in the matter of civilisation, while, it is miles ahead of the Punjab in respect of industrial growth. That province has not so far thought of undertaking any legislation of the kind which my honourable friend seeks to introduce in this House.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I inform the Honourable Minister that every Congress Ministry is likely to introduce a Bill of this nature and he will be surprised when it is passed into law.

Minister for Development : It does not necessarily follow that we should also undertake a legislation of this kind. If need arises and circumstances permit, we will not shirk our duty to do so.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Minister give an undertaking that if Congress Ministries do so, he will introduce such legislation ?

Minister for Development : I am not going to give any kind of undertaking.

Now, Sir, in 1931, the Royal Commission on Labour came to India and my honourable friend was a member of that Commission. That Commission came to a unanimous conclusion and that conclusion was :—

“ So far as relief of the unemployment is concerned we received some suggestions for the establishment of statutory system of unemployment insurance, but we cannot regard any national system of insurance with which we are familiar, as feasible at present.”

Diwan Chaman Lall : National for the whole of India.

Minister for Development : My friend did not raise any protest against this recommendation. He concurred in that recommendation.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of personal explanation, Sir. The Honourable Minister should know that the term is “ national ” it means that the question of undertaking legislation has been left to the provinces.

Minister for Development : Yes, national. Do I take it, Sir, that under a national system of unemployment insurance the province of the Punjab could have been excluded ? If my honourable friend was going to devise legislation favouring a national system of unemployment insurance, the Punjab would inevitably have been there. My own feeling is that either he had not the courage of his conviction to express his views freely at that time or he has now put forward views, which he does not entertain in fact.

Again, Sir, I may draw the attention of the House to the fact that this Bill covers only certain categories of the population. They are 10 in number. Agricultural population has been entirely left out. (Diwan Chaman Lal : Where ?) Agricultural population, I beg to contend, has been excluded.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Where ? Just read through the Bill and you will find that it is not excluded.

Mr. Speaker : I will request the honourable member not to interrupt the gentleman who is in possession of the House.

Minister for Development: I was submitting, Sir, that agriculturists are not included. Tenants are not here, peasants are not included and agricultural labour is not included. If my honourable friend contends that agricultural tenants, peasants and agricultural labour are all included under the provisions of this Bill, then let me assure the House, that the total annual Bill will run, perhaps, into 40 crores of rupees. Where is this money to come from? Has my honourable friend suggested any way in which we can find money to provide for people falling within even the limited scope which I am inclined to ascribe to this Bill? I think the agricultural population has been cut out. The agricultural population is not in any way suffering less from unemployment than other classes of the population? ("Hear, hear" from the Treasury Benches). The agricultural population has been suffering from neglect on the part of past Government, perhaps, for centuries. Will it be fair to neglect the interest of that agricultural population over again? If, however, the agricultural population is not excluded, or is supposed to fall under the provisions of this Bill the annual Bill of expenditure will, as I have already submitted, run into crores. It may be 10 crores, 15 crores or 20 crores for all I know. I have not made any calculations in this connection. But even if this Bill is confined to the population which I consider to fall under it, the number will not be thousands, but a whole million. Two annas per head per week means Rs. 6-8-0 every year, and the Bill will run into 65 lakhs of rupees. Sir, I can reasonably put a question to the honourable mover of the Bill and his supporters, where is this money to come from? Have they made any suggestions of any kind as to the source from which this money is to come?

Again, my honourable friend suggested that he had given notice of this Bill before the idea of an Unemployment Committee was given out by the party-in-power or by the Honourable Premier. If my memory serves me aright, I think it was on the 1st April that the Honourable Premier made a statement in which he announced his intention to appoint two committees, one to go into the question of retrenchment and fresh revenue, and the other to cope with the problem of unemployment. I am not prepared to accept the statement of my honourable friend that he gave notice of this Bill before the 1st April. Therefore, he cannot claim the credit of having been the first in the field to think of the unemployed. Government had already anticipated this. But Government is not prepared to adopt the precipitate course, which my honourable friend suggests. The Unemployment Committee has been appointed of which my honourable friend is himself a member. That committee will go into the question of unemployment in this province. If he suggests any means of affording relief to the unemployed, and adduces grounds to show that it is possible and feasible to give effect to any proposals which he may put forward in this behalf Government will be perfectly willing to give his proposals a very careful consideration. ("Hear, hear" from the Treasury benches).

I have to say just one word more. My honourable friend and his supporters have made a grievance to the effect that we are refusing even the leave for introduction of this Bill. The reason for this attitude is plain. We are sure that we cannot allow this Bill to be passed into law. Therefore, it would be a sheer waste of time and public money to allow this Bill to get on to the next motion, and it is on this ground that I oppose leave being granted to the introduction of this Bill. (Cheers).

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, before you put the motion, may I be permitted to say one word of personal explanation. My honourable friend, the Minister, stated two things, one in relation to agriculturists' interests not being included in this Bill. He attributed to me a wrong motive. In the first three lines of the Bill it is stated "every manual worker." It does not exclude any manual worker, agricultural or industrial. The second point is—there again my learned friend made a mis-statement—he referred to the Royal Commission on Labour. I ought to know, having been a member of the Royal Commission, what the recommendation was and I did it with my eyes open. One entire scheme for the whole of India was turned down, because of its colossal nature. The provinces were left to legislate for themselves.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Unemployment Insurance Bill.

THE PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (INDIAN PENAL CODE)
AMENDMENT BILL.

Mr. Speaker : Is anybody going to oppose this Bill ?

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I oppose it.

Mr. Speaker : Sardar Hari Singh may move his motion.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural) :
Sir, I beg to move—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Criminal Law (Indian Penal Code)
Amendment Bill.

Sir, I rise to speak in favour of this motion most reluctantly and most un-enthusiastically because I have been told—

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member will speak for 10 minutes only.

Sardar Hari Singh : I would like to speak for one hour.

Mr. Speaker : I cannot give the honourable member more than 15 minutes.

Premier : May I point out that only 15 minutes are left ?

Mr. Speaker : I do not propose to put off the motion.

Sardar Hari Singh : I have come to the conclusion that the fate of this measure will be the same as was the fate of the Bill sought to be moved by my friend Diwan Chaman Lall. The necessity for this measure arises out of the "mighty constitutional changes" that have been inaugurated in this province as in the rest of India. The necessity for the measure arises out of the keen desire on the part of Honourable the Premier to bring about in this province freedom and liberty of the British brand. The object of the measure is to make a feeble effort to approximate the law as it stands in India to the law as it stands in England. Before I address, with your permission, the Honourable the Premier who is in charge of the department of law and order and other members of the House to peep into the history of the law of sedition in India. I should like to institute a contrast between the law in England and the law in India on the subject. In the first place, in England the law of sedition is interpreted like this, that nothing short of direct incitement to disorder and violence is sedition, while in India we know that speeches and writings are held to be causing disaffection or discontent against government whether they incite to violence or not. They are held to be seditious irrespective of their visible effect. In the second place in England the intention of the accused is of the essence of crime and intention is judged by all the environmental circumstances of the case while in India intention is judged from the literal meaning or the internal evidence of the writing or speech. In the third place there is a safeguard in the form of a jury in England. Without the unanimous verdict of the jury the accused cannot be convicted. This is the safeguard in the words of Sir Stephen who was a great authority on criminal law in England who was also a member in the Government of India in the last century. This safeguard is utterly lacking in the case of India. (An honourable member : We have for Europeans).

In the fourth place, coming to the penal part of this law, as regards punishment, in England the maximum punishment is two years and that punishment too is simple imprisonment. Those convicted of sedition are placed in the first division. They are entitled to all facilities and amenities of life which they would enjoy outside the jail. In India as everybody knows, the fate of the ordinary prisoner who is the victim of sedition law is hard labour, rigorous imprisonment, deprivation of all facilities and amenities which ought to be given to a man.

In the next place since the Reforms Act of 1831 this law has been rarely used in England while in India it is one of the most abused, one of the most misused sections of the Indian Penal Code. Allow me, Sir, to take the honourable members of this House just for a peep into the history of this section. The historian tells us that it was originally drafted as section 113 of the Indian Penal Code, but somehow, it is said inadvertently, when the Indian Penal Code was written in the year 1860 this section was left out. However, this omission was repaired ten years later in the year 1870. Sir Stephen said that this measure was enacted to meet the events arising out of what is known as wahabi conspiracy at that time. Sir Stephen gave also a guarantee that this measure would not be used against a person whose speech or utterance did not lead to public disturbance. That was the intention of the honourable mover of that measure. But when once the section found a place in the Indian Penal Code it was wrongly interpreted by the courts. From the Tilak case up to the Bangobasi case in Calcutta, different interpretations were placed in this section till in the year 1898 it was again redrafted in its present form as we have it in the Indian Penal Code. At the time when it was redrafted the British Indian Association, the European Chamber of Commerce, the whole of the educated community, majority of the members of the Calcutta High Court, the whole of the Bar Association of Calcutta were opposed to this measure. The opposition inside the legislature, in the Imperial Legislative Assembly was led by the Maharaja of Dharbanga. This gentleman and others fought tooth and nail according to their own methods in all the stages through which the Bill passed in the legislature. He and his Indian friends in the legislature said, "we want the sedition law in India to be of the same kind, to be of the same character and to have the same scope as the law of sedition in England." What did the sponsors of the measure say? The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal said, "Do you want to have the same law of sedition as the people of England have? Do you not know the difference between the Government in England and the Government in India? In England people are living under a democratic form of Government. Here you are living under a foreign Government. The force behind this Government is the force of the sword. The first duty of the Government here is self-preservation". Sir Griffith Evans also made a speech in the same strain. He said, "if you have the same form of Government here as you have in England then you can have the same law of sedition too". Now, we are living in the year 1937, the year of introduction of provincial autonomy when according to friends opposite we have got a democratic form of government, the power behind the government being the will of the electorate and not the naked sword. The justification with which this measure was introduced in the Indian Penal Code no longer exists. I therefore propose that the law of sedition in India should approximate the law of sedition in England. The measure I have brought forward is a very simple one to attain the object I have just stated. I do not ask for anything more. (Cheers).

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Criminal Law (Indian Penal Code) Amendment Bill.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): I am obliged to my honourable friend the mover of this motion for his very learned discourse and for tracing the history of this particular section of the Indian Penal Code. I am afraid I am not convinced by his argument for the simple reason that by his amendment he seeks merely to reduce the penalty. He does not want to alter the wording of the section or to repeal the section. If he had the courage of conviction of what he said on the floor of this House he would have said that this particular section in the Indian Penal Code should either be repealed or that some other section should be substituted in its place.

THE PUNJAB CRIMINAL LAW (INDIAN PENAL CODE) AMENDMENT 1605 BILL.

Sardar Hari Singh : The Honourable Premier has misunderstood me. I stated at the very beginning that it was just a short step towards approximating the law in India to the law in England.

Premier : What I am saying is endorsed by the objects and reasons given in the Bill itself. He merely wants to have the penalty now prescribed in the Indian Penal Code reduced. He asks for this change merely on the strength of the argument that the new constitution has been ushered in and therefore it is proper that the maximum sentence should be reduced. May I, with your permission, ask my honourable friend whether with the advent of the new constitution he wishes that all these penal sections be abandoned?

Sardar Hari Singh : When did I say that?

Premier : The honourable member has suggested that the sentence should be reduced so far as section 124 (a) of the Indian Penal Code is concerned, because the new constitution has come into being. I put another question to my honourable friend, is this the only section in which he wants the sentence to be reduced because the new constitution has been ushered in?

Sardar Hari Singh : When did I say that?

Premier : The new constitution would require all these laws so that respect for law and order is duly retained—whether it is my government or the Congress government. (Voices : Sadly mistaken). All these penal sections in the Indian Penal Code or any other law cannot necessarily be washed off. They are there to see that if the law is infringed, the Government has in possession a weapon to deal with those offenders who infringe law. The Congress governments in other provinces will have to deal with several cases—not necessarily under section 124 (a)—may be under other sections—but do you want to deprive them of that weapon merely because they happen to form new governments under the new constitution? I do not think it will be logical. (Voice from Opposition benches : Take care of yourself). The honourable member has not advanced any arguments in favour of the reduction of the maximum sentence. Had he said that the Punjab courts have been using or abusing a power given to them under this section, I would have been only too glad to consider his proposal. Let me give you figures of a few cases which I have been able to collect for the benefit of my honourable friends the members of the other side of the House. During the last three years the Punjab Government sanctioned 19 prosecutions under section 124 (a) of the Indian Penal Code. Of these 19 prosecutions 16 cases resulted in convictions as follows :—

| | | | |
|---|----|----|-------------------------------------|
| 2 | .. | .. | 2 years' rigorous imprisonment. |
| 5 | .. | .. | 18 months' rigorous imprisonment. |
| 1 | .. | .. | 16 months' rigorous imprisonment. |
| 2 | .. | .. | One year's rigorous imprisonment. |
| 2 | .. | .. | Nine months' rigorous imprisonment. |
| 4 | .. | .. | Six months' each. | and 3 were bound under section 562 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Now that is the exact position with regard to the application or use of this law by our courts. If the honourable member could have cited one single case where the sentence had been vindictive, or heavy, I would have seen some reason for his argument for getting the maximum sentence reduced. Let me again point out to him that sanction under section 124 (a) for prosecution is given by Government and let me assure him that all these cases are very carefully studied. Let me also assure him that in view of the change in the constitution all those cases will be even more carefully studied in future and no prosecution allowed unless a definitely strong case has been made out. In the circumstances, I beg to submit, there is no logical reason for accepting this Bill.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab Criminal Law (Indian Penal Code) Amendment Bill.

The motion was lost.

THE PUNJAB MUSLIM AUQAF BILL.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood (Amritsar, Muhammadan, Rural) : I beg to move—

The motion was put and carried.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I beg to introduce the Punjab Muslim Auqaf Bill.

THE PUNJAB DISTRICT BOARD (AMENDMENT) BILL.

Sardar Hari Singh : I beg to move—

That leave be granted to introduce the Punjab District Boards (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. Speaker : It is past 5-30 P.M. Has Government any objection to the motion being proceeded with?

Premier : I have no objection.

Mr. Speaker : Does the honourable member wish his motion to be proceeded with now?

Sardar Hari Singh : No.

The Assembly then adjourned till 11 A.M. on Monday, 19th July 1937.

POLICE EXCESSES IN CHAK NO. 98, TAHSIL JARANWALA.

518. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether any complaint by the residents of Chak No. 89, tahsil Jaranwala, district Lyallpur, has reached the Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur, and the Inspector-General of Police, against the alleged police excesses on 29th March, 1937, and a subsequent challan under 107/151, Criminal Procedure Code, against certain residents of the said chak; if so, the result of the inquiry, if any, made in the matter?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : No complaint appears to have been received by the Inspector-General of Police. Government are not aware whether any specific complaint was made to the Deputy Commissioner, but he is in possession of the full facts. Regarding these the honourable member is invited to see the reply given to question 127², put by the honourable member for the Amritsar Sikh Women's Constituency.

ALLEGED THREAT BY MUHAMMADANS TO ATTACK SIKHS OF CHAK
No. 26 OF DISTRICT GUJRAT.

519. Sardar Partab Singh : (i) Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee has sent telegrams to the Premier, Chief Secretary to the Punjab Government, Deputy Commissioner of Gujrat, and Superintendent of Police, Gujrat, that the Muhammadans of surrounding villages are threatening to attack and plunder Sikhs of Chak No. 26, Gobindpur, district Gujrat, in the near future ;

(b) whether a series of similar incidents have taken place in the Gujrat district during the last three years ; if so, the action that has been taken in those cases ; if not, the reasons therefor ;

(ii) (a) whether it is a fact that after the unfortunate incidents of 13th and 14th June last in the Gujrat district, prominent Muslims are holding meetings in some villages of the Gujrat district ;

(b) whether Government is aware that a meeting of the Muslims was recently held in camera at Sufipura (suburb of Mandi Baha-ud-Din) ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (i) (a) Yes, but the statement made in the telegrams was found to be without foundation ;

(b) It is not understood what the honourable member means by "similar incidents" but a number of communal incidents have occurred in the Gujrat district during the last three years. The authorities took prompt and suitable action under the appropriate sections of the law against the members of the contending parties on each occasion ;

(ii) (a) and (b). Government have no information.

REFERENCE TO PUNJAB GOVERNMENT BY KHALSA MISSIONARY COLLEGE, BOMBAY.

520. Sardar Partab Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state :—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Bombay University or Bombay Government has made a reference to the Punjab Government about the Khalsa Missionary College, Bombay ; if so, when this reference was made ;

(b) the nature of that reference ;

(c) if the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, whether the Punjab Government has replied to that reference ;

(d) if the Government has replied to that reference, whether it will place a copy of its reply on the table of the House ;

(e) if no reply to that reference has been given so far, the reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes, the Bombay Government's telegram was received on the 8th June, 1937.

(b) and (d). Government does not consider it to be in the public interest to make public the correspondence with another provincial Government.

(c) Yes.

(e) Does not arise. I might add to allay the anxiety of the honourable member that the Punjab in its reply has, inter alia, said that "it sees no objection to permission being granted for the affiliation of the College to the University of Bombay, but thinks that the question should be decided on the usual principles, such as the resources of the college and its teaching capacity."

VOTERS IN THE ELECTORAL ROLL OF MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, RUPAR.

521. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to lay on the table of the House a list of those persons of wards Nos. 2 and 5 of the Municipal Committee, Rupar, whose names were there in the old list of voters and whose names were not reproduced in the new electoral roll together with the reasons for not reproducing their names and the authority who ordered that the names of such persons be not included in the new electoral roll?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : The attention of the honourable member is invited to the reply given to question No. *465.¹

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister please state how many names were entered in the old lists relating to wards Nos. 2 and 5 which have been omitted in the new lists of 1936? This information has been asked repeatedly. Is the Honourable Minister now in a position to give it?

Minister : I do not carry the whole electoral rolls of the municipality with me but I can collect that information.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it not the very object of the question that the Honourable Minister should point out the difference between the lists?

Minister : The honourable member can buy a list and compare the names to find out the difference.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Has the Honourable Minister enquired from the Rupar Municipal Committee about the difference that lies in the lists of these two wards?

Minister : I have already replied that question.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Can you not enquire from the Municipal Committee?

Mr. Speaker : The reply given by the Honourable Minister is that voters lists are accessible to the honourable members and if any honourable member wants any information he can buy a list and refer to it himself.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : As there is a great difference between the two lists, it is necessary to bring this fact to the notice of the Government.

Mr. Speaker : The requisite information might have been collected first and then this question might have been based on it.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it not the duty of the Government and its Ministers to give information that is asked for in the question ?

Mr. Speaker : No. That is not the duty of the Honourable Ministers. No question can be allowed about information that is available in documents which are accessible to honourable members.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that in 1983 there were 350 voters in ward No. 2 and that in 1986 in the same ward the number of voters was less by 106 ? Is it also a fact that in ward No. 5 the number in 1986 is less by 176 ?

Minister : The honourable member is giving me information.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : I am asking whether it is a fact ?

Minister : Make sure yourself.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : I want to find out whether Government itself knows these things. There are 176 voters less now in ward No. 5 than there were in 1983. I ask the Honourable Minister the reasons for this difference between the number of voters in the present lists and in the old lists ?

Minister : The remedy is there under the rules. They should have put in claims.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that the Revising Officer did not act according to the rules ?

Minister : I have no information on the subject.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Will you ask for the information ?

Minister : If you give me proper notice.

Lala Duni Chand : May I appeal to the Honourable Minister that it is not a reply ? That is a clear evasion.

Mr. Speaker : The Honourable Minister can be expected to collect information which he is bound to collect and not such information as the members can easily obtain themselves.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it a fact that the Revising Officer did not call the names of the claimants by number ?

Minister : I have already stated that if you give me notice I will try to obtain the information.

Lala Duni Chand : Does the Honourable Minister think that this is a glaring omission in the answer ?

Minister : I have no reason to believe so.

FILLING OF TANKS IN HISSAR DISTRICT.

522. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the permission granted by the Irrigation Department to fill the tanks on the rajhbahas in the Hissar district is in most cases ultimately withdrawn and especially so when the tanks are to be filled from the Masudpur rajbaha in the Hansi tahsil ;
- (b) how many times the permission so granted has been ultimately withdrawn, and the reasons for its withdrawal ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) No. Permission has been withdrawn in 89 cases of which one was a private tank and 88 were outside the Irrigation boundary ; of these latter 5 Tanks relate to the Masudpur distributary.

- (b) Once for the reason given in (a).

ASSESSMENT OF LAND REVENUE IN BEIT Ilaqa IN DISTRICT
LUDHIANA.

523. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he is aware of the fact that in Beit ilaqa, particularly in villages vulnerable to burd-baramadgi the land revenue is assessed permanently ;
- (b) the names of the villages in this ilaqa which are likely to undergo the process of burd-baramadgi.
- (c) the number of villages in which land revenue was assessed on baramad lands, stating when it was assessed and at what rates
- (d) at the time of the assessments what crops were sown in those lands ;
- (e) whether the revenue authorities recommended the reduction in the land revenue with the change of crops in these lands ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The land revenue in the villages exposed to river action is liable to vary in accordance with the injury or improvement to land caused by the river action. Attention of the honourable member is invited in this connection to the rules in Appendix II to the Final Settlement Report of the Ludhiana district.

- (b) A statement is laid on the table.

(c) The honourable member has not specified the period for which information is required. During the last two years there has been no such case.

(d) and (e). Do not arise. The procedure for the assessment of baramad lands is, however, explained in the rules referred to in the reply to part (a) above.

ILAQA BEIT IN DISTRICT LUDHIANA.

524. Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he is aware of the condition of the Beit ilaqa in the Ludhiana district and the poverty of its people ;
- (b) what steps Government propose to give relief to the people of this ilaqa ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes. The condition of the residents of the Beit ilaqa of the Ludhiana district is the same as of those of the riverain tracts of other districts.

(b) Relief is always given by Government whenever there is occasion for it.

PICKETING OF HINDU SHOPS AT TANDLIANWALA.

525. Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether his attention has been drawn to a note in the Press that some members of the Ahrar Party are picketing the shops of the Hindus at Tandlianwala, district Lyallpur; if so, the action he has taken or proposes to take to protect the Hindu shopkeepers from the picketers?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : Government have ascertained that the Press report regarding the alleged picketing of Hindu shops by the Ahrar Party at Tandlianwala is incorrect. The actual facts are that some time ago members of the Ahrar Party of Tandlianwala approached some of the Janghi Muhammadan women on the roads outside the town and dissuaded them from going to the mandi, unaccompanied by their men-folk. The women stopped going to the mandi alone and the Ahrar Party stopped their activities in this respect. No picketing of Hindu shops took place at Tandlianwala and no action on the part of the Government was necessary.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : Does the Honourable Premier know that some Muslim villagers, men and women, reported in the Thana that Ahrars abuse them and beat them?

Premier : I have no such information.

Seth Ram Narain Virmani : Does the Honourable Premier know that on the 18th July, 1937, about 1,500 armed Muslims intimidated the citizens of Tandlianwala?

Premier : I have no information on that point.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will you please collect the information?

Premier : This information embodied in the reply to the question was received by me only yesterday, and if there had been anything of the kind mentioned by the honourable member, the local authorities would certainly have given me that information.

PASSPORT APPLICATION BY SARDAR SHER SINGH.

526. Sardar Ajit Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) whether he is aware of the fact that one Sardar Sher Singh, son of Sardar Hukam Singh Kaliana, a landlord of the Montgomery district, applied for a passport for Japan and China in the last week of April last and that the passport has not been granted to him so far;

(b) if the answer to (a) be in the affirmative, the reasons for this delay?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The issue of passports is a Prerogative Function of the Governor-General falling outside the Government of India Act, 1935. This being so, it is suggested that the proper place for questions on this subject would be the Central legislature.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to state whether the attitude of the present Government is in any way different from the attitude of the previous Government with regard to granting passports for foreign countries ?

Minister : That is a matter of opinion.

Lala Duni Chand : Is the Honourable Minister right in saying that it is a matter of opinion ?

Minister : That is what I have stated.

Diwan Chaman Lall : What is the Honourable Minister's opinion ?

TEACHERS OF CLASSICAL LANGUAGES.

527. Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of Oriental teachers in Government service on the grade of Rs. 55—3—70, Subordinate Educational Service Class 4th who were promoted to the grade of Rs. 80—4—100, on the basis of improved qualifications since 1932 ;
- (b) also the number of Oriental teachers, with their qualifications and length of service who are still working in the grade of Rs. 55—3—70, and have not so far been promoted to the next higher grade ;
- (c) whether in consideration of the qualifications and the length of service of the teachers mentioned in (b) it is intended to include them in the list of teachers possessing improved qualifications for purposes of promotion to the next higher grade ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Twelve .

(b) The honourable member is referred to the Departmental List in the Assembly Library.

(c) No.

ELECTRICITY FOR AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES.

528. Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to—

- (a) lay on the table of the House, papers, connected with any scheme for the utilization of electricity for working tube-wells for agricultural purposes ;
- (b) state whether the Government proposes to give any facilities for the use of electricity for agricultural purposes for any area other than the one already touched by the said scheme ; if so, what ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) With the exception to a small scheme near Qadian which Government has sanctioned with a view to ascertaining the zamindars' requirements of water, no scheme so far prepared has reached the final stage of securing the sanction of Government. Government has, however, placed an officer on special duty to investigate schemes of this nature in the Punjab.

(b) The attention of the honourable member is invited to part (b) of the reply to question No. *345.¹

Sardar Sahib Sardar Gurbachan Singh : Will it be possible for the Government to make electric energy available to the agriculturists of Doaba for pumping out water ?

Minister : The Government has placed an officer on special duty to investigate the matter, as I have already said.

Sardar Sahib Sardar Gurbachan Singh : Will that special officer be asked to look into this matter also ?

Minister : He is already looking into this matter.

Chaudhri Jalal-ud-Din Amber : Can that officer be sent to backward areas in the Sialkot district where there is no canal irrigation to find out requirements of electricity for pumping out water ?

Minister : That officer is dealing with the entire province of the Punjab.

HEALTH OF COMRADE RAM KISHAN, A STATE PRISONER.

*529. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that comrade Ram Kishan, a State prisoner is in a bad state of health ;

(b) whether it is a fact that he contracted kidney and liver trouble and tuberculosis after his imprisonment, if so, the action that is proposed to be taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat Khan : In November, 1935, this State prisoner was found to be suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis, and he has since been under treatment therefor. During recent months his health has shown considerable improvement. There has been no kidney or liver trouble while the prisoner has been in confinement.

Lala Duni Chand : Is the Government prepared to release those State prisoners who are suffering from such serious diseases as tuberculosis, etc ?

Premier : It does not arise out of this question.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to consider the release of this particular prisoner in view of his bad state of health ?

Premier : As I have said, his health has shown considerable improvement. He is now in a hospital.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Does not the Honourable Premier think that if he is released, it will help him in his speedy recovery.

Premier : It may or may not. He is receiving first class treatment.

Lala Duni Chand : Does the Government apprehend any danger if this gentleman is released ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Premier where this particular prisoner is confined ?

Premier : I cannot give that information off-hand, I must have notice for that. Very likely he is removed to Ambala Jail.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Premier whether he considers it feasible that if this prisoner is not to be released, he should be confined in a place where he should speedily recover ?

Premier : It is the general policy of the Government to place such prisoners where the chances of recovery are best.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Government send that prisoner to a hill station where he may recover quickly ?

Premier : I can make no such promise. I will examine whether it is necessary to remove him to another jail.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : For how long has he been suffering from this disease ?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot give that information off-hand.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : Does the Honourable Premier know that there is going on an agitation about his release in the country ?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to consider the proposal of consulting a tuberculosis expert ?

Premier : If it is not already done.

Lala Duni Chand : In what stage of consumption is he ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether it is a fact that his case was reviewed recently ?

Premier : I believe he was one of those whose cases were reviewed recently.

COMRADE TIKA RAM SUKHAN.

*530. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Comrade Tika Ram Sukhan was awarded 3 years' imprisonment in July, 1935, under the Arms Act ;

- (b) whether it is a fact that he is being kept in a separate cell since his imprisonment ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that he contracted tuberculosis in the jail and is still suffering from it and that his eyesight has also become weak ;
- (d) if the answer to (c) above be in the affirmative, the action that the Government intends to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) He is kept in a separate cell at night, but is allowed to associate with other prisoners in the day time.

(c) No. Clinically he is suffering from tuberculosis of the lungs but so far as no tubercle bacilli have been found in his sputum. The history of the case shows that weakness was contracted before his admission to jail, not afterwards. He suffers from defective vision, but here again there has been no deterioration since the prisoner came into jail.

(d) The prisoner is receiving the appropriate medical treatment, and no special action is contemplated.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Is it a fact that this prisoner was kept in a solitary cell even during summer nights ?

Premier : I should like to have notice of that question. I cannot give information off-hand.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : In view of his diet difficulties, will it be possible for Government to release him earlier ?

Premier : If his condition is serious and authorities are of this opinion, I shall naturally let him off.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : When no court sentenced him to solitary confinement, why is he treated as a solitary prisoner ?

Premier : How does the honourable member know that the adalat did not do it ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : I can prove that he is confined alone in a cell without any order of a court.

Premier : I am afraid, I should like to have some authority on that point before I answer the question.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Premier make enquiries into the matter ?

Premier : If the honourable member will write to me I will make enquiries.

SPEECH BY MAULANA ZAFAR ALI KHAN AT A MEETING AT AMRITSAR.

*531. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he is aware of the fact that a meeting of Muslims was held in Khair Din's Mosque, Amritsar, under the presidency of Shaikh Muhammad Sadiq, ex-Member of Legislative Council, a week or so ago ;

[Ch. Kartar Singh.]

(b) whether it is a fact that the principal speaker in the meeting was Maulana Zafar Ali Khan of Lahore;

(c) whether it is also a fact that the Maulana made a speech tending to create bad blood among various communities;

(d) what steps he has taken or proposes to take in the matter?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a), (b) and (c).—Maulana Zafar Ali Khan made a speech at a meeting of Muhammadans held inside Khair Din Mosque in Amritsar on the 22nd June, 1937; Shaikh Sadiq Hassan and not Shaikh Mohammad Sadiq presided. The speech contained nothing actionable:

(d) No action on the part of Government seems necessary.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to read the extract from his speech wherein he observed that after 10 years the province will be a Muhammadan province or there will be a Muslim raj?

Premier : He did not say so in this speech to which this question relates. I have got an extract and I can show it to the honourable member if he so wishes.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Is the Honourable Premier aware that some such speech was delivered in Amritsar by Maulana Zafar Ali Khan?

Mr. Speaker : This is irrelevant.

LAND REVENUE ARREARS.

532. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to lay on the table of the House a statement giving the figures of arrears of land revenue in the province district-wise, the names of the zamindars including the members of this House who have defaulted in the payment of land revenue so far, the amount of the land revenue standing against the names of such persons and the steps the Government has taken or proposes to take against such defaulters?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The honourable member's question is vague inasmuch as he has not given any date or period to which the inquiry relates. A statement showing the figures of arrears of land revenue in the Punjab as they stood on the 31st May, 1937, is, however, laid on the table. Details of the names of zamindars including the members of this House who have defaulted in the payment of land revenue are not available, nor would they be worth the trouble of collecting.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : Will he please state whether the Government will be prepared to remit the remaining dues?

Minister : That does not arise out of this question.

SARDAR BHOLA SINGH, BABAR AKALI PRISONER.

533. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Sardar Bhola Singh, a Babar Akali prisoner, confined in the old Multan Jail is not keeping good health and that he has now been put in a solitary cell? If so, what action does he propose to take in the matter?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : The prisoner is in normal health. It is not correct that he is in solitary confinement. He is kept in a separate cell at night but is allowed to associate with other prisoners during the day.

AMOUNT OF RURAL DEBT IN THE PROVINCE.

534. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) the total amount of rural debt at the present time ;
- (b) the amount of such debt as is due to the co-operative societies and banks ;
- (c) the amount of such debt as is due to the money-lenders as far as it can be ascertained ;
- (d) the total amount of interest on the total rural debt as mentioned in (a) above ;
- (e) the total payments annually made by the debtors in respect of principal as well as interest ;
- (f) whether the rural debt is on the increase or decrease and the time it will take under normal circumstances to discharge the above debt ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a), (b) and (c). The honourable member's attention is invited to the reply given to parts (a) and (b) of question No. *57¹ in the present session of the Assembly.

(d) No estimate is available.

(e) No estimate is available for principal. For interest attention is invited to the reply given to part (c) of question No. *145² in the present session of the Assembly.

(f) It is impossible to say on the information available whether rural debt is increasing or decreasing, nor can anyone possibly forecast how long it will take to discharge it.

ACTIVITIES OF THE RURAL RECONSTRUCTION DEPARTMENT.

535. Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state in relation to the activities of the Rural Reconstruction Department during the last twelve months—

- (a) the number of ventilators installed in the villages ;
- (b) the number of bore-hole latrines dug in the villages ;
- (c) the number of manure pits made ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : (a) For the last twelve months, for which figures are available, the total comes to nearly half a million of all kinds, but this figure is far from complete. No new house is now built without some attention being paid to ventilation.

(b) No figures are available but this innovation is proceeding very slowly indeed. Moreover, the department of Public Health deprecates this kind of latrine where the sub-soil water level is high. The problem of the best kind of latrine is not yet solved.

²Page 616 ante.

[Minister for Development.]

(c) Figures are incomplete, both of the number of pits in regular use and of those newly dug or reconditioned. The only figures available show 100,000 new pits and 40,000 old pits reconditioned.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is the Honourable Member aware that the Royal Commission on Labour has reported regarding the best type of bore-hole pits ?

Minister : No, I am not.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Member look into the recommendations ?

Minister : Yes, I will.

PASSPORT OF MIR ABDUL MAJID OF LAHORE.

536. Master Kabul Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Mir Abdul Majid of Majid and Company, Mochi Gate, Lahore, applied for a passport to visit Australia in connection with the business of his firm ;

(b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, whether a passport has been issued to the applicant ; if not, reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The issue of passports is a Prerogative Function of the Governor-General falling outside the Government of India Act, 1935. This being so, it is suggested that the proper place for questions on this subject would be the Central Legislature.

INTERNEES IN THE LAHORE FORT.

537. Master Kabul Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that most of those who return from Argentine, Canada, and the United States of America, are arrested on their arrival and taken to the Lahore Fort, under the Criminal Law Amendment Act ;

(b) the names and the number of those who have been so detained during the last five years and also the names and the number of the present internees inside the said Fort ;

(c) the charges against the internees, if any, and whether the Government proposes to produce them before courts of law to stand their trials ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) No.

(b) It is not in the public interest to give this information.

(c) First part.—Government does not consider it in the public interest to answer this part of the question.

Second part.—No.

Sardar Hari Singh : Can the Government adopt the subterfuge of "public interest" to cover a whole host of sins of omission and commission?

Mr. Speaker : Order, order.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : The Honourable Premier has just given a negative reply to part (a) of the question and to part (b) he says it is not in the public interest to give the information. How can the reply to (a) be in the negative if there is something to be withheld as not being in the public interest in reply to (b)?

Mr. Speaker : That is cross-examination.

Premier : Both the parts are quite separate. Part (b) mentions "detained" and the reply is to that.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : "So detained"—that is the wording.

Sardar Gopal Singh : Is it a fact that one Hazara Singh was arrested and taken to Lahore Fort?

Premier : I should like to have notice of that question.

Sardar Gopal Singh : Was he not serving an imprisonment of 30 years in a cheating case in America?

Premier : I am afraid I have no information.

(Finding that the honourable member who put the question was also standing when the Honourable the Premier was answering the supplementary question.)

Mr. Speaker : After a question has been put by an honourable member, he should resume his seat and rise again if he wants to put another question.

Sardar Gopal Singh : Was he not the editor of paper Kirti of Amritsar for many years?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot answer these questions off-hand. If the honourable member gives me notice, I shall try to give him information.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of order, Sir. Is it proper for an honourable member to make serious charges of this description against an individual who is not on the spot to answer those charges? I wish to draw your attention to the very serious charges made by a member opposite against an individual who is not here to defend himself and questions regarding him put which do not obviously arise out of the questions on the order paper.

Mr. Speaker : Is he a member of the House or an outsider?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Outsider.

Mr. Speaker : As some honourable members do not speak aloud, sometimes I miss their exact words.

Sardar Gopal Singh : I was only trying to get information about that man.

Mr. Speaker : That is a separate matter.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether he has set up any machinery to go into cases of this nature and report as to whether anything can be done ?

Premier : A very suitable machinery and that is that I go into every case myself personally.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Has he gone into the cases of these persons detained for the last five years ?

Premier : If the honourable member would have patience he will probably know to-morrow.

CONFISCATION OF THE SECURITY OF " GURMUKHI KIRTI WEEKLY."

538. Master Kabul Singh: Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that on account of the forfeiture of security of the Dukhi-Dunya Press, Amritsar, the publication of the Gurmukhi Kirti Weekly has been stopped since January, 1937 ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that a security to the amount of Rs. 2,000 was deposited with the Government in the month of August, 1936, by the printer and publisher of the said weekly ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that about two months back the above-mentioned printer and publisher applied for the refund of the said security ;
- (d) whether it is a fact that no response was made to the application mentioned in (c) above ;
- (e) whether it is a fact that the printer and publisher of the said weekly received a notice on or about the 11th June, 1937, informing that the security of Rs. 2,000 had been confiscated on account of an article which appeared in the said weekly in December, 1936 ;
- (f) if the answer to (e) above be in the affirmative why the action was taken after the application mentioned in (c) above was put in ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) No. The last issue of the Gurmukhi Kirti delivered to Government was dated the 15th March, 1937.

(b) and (c) Yes.

(d) As the question of taking action on the article on the basis of which security was forfeited, was still under consideration, no response to the application could be given.

(e) Yes.

(f) Does not arise, in view of the reply given to (d) above.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state if there are any more papers whose security has been so forfeited in the Punjab and the total amount of security that has been asked for from the newspapers recently ?

Premier : I am afraid I cannot give him figures off-hand. But I do not think we have forfeited any security during the last two or three months.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will he consider the cases where security has been deposited and see whether he can refund the security, as has been done by other provinces ?

Premier : I have already given instructions that these cases should be examined and except in the case of those papers which are rabidly communal I think very sympathetic view will be taken.

SUB-REGISTRAR'S OFFICE AT BANGA (DISTRICT JULLUNDUR).

539. Master Kabul Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the inhabitants of village Banga (district Jullundur) and other villages in its neighbourhood made a representation on the 4th November, 1936, requesting that the Sub-Registrar's office at Banga may not be abolished ;

(b) if so, the action taken on it ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes.

(b) No final decision has yet been made about closing the office of Sub-Registrar at Banga. The matter is still under consideration of the local officers from whom a report is awaited.

Sardar Ajit Singh : On a point of order. You have already ruled that no newspapers should be read in the House. At this time many honourable members are looking at a very nice cartoon.

Mr. Speaker : May I request the honourable members not to read newspapers in the Chamber ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : Even if it is intended to bring something to your notice ?

Mian Abdul Aziz : Is it any special cartoon, Sir ?

COMRADE TEJA SINGH M.L.A., A STATE PRISONER.

540. Master Kabul Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether the Government proposes to try Comrade Teja Singh, M.L.A., a State prisoner, in an open court ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : No ; it is not in the public interest to give reasons.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Premier point out the difficulties in the way of Government starting a regular trial against this man ?

Premier : I have already answered that question. It is not in the public interest to give reasons.

Lala Duni Chand : Will he kindly point out precisely what that public interest in this particular case is ?

Premier : It is not in the public interest to point out precisely what that public interest is.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : May I know whether the Honourable Premier has gone personally into this case?

Premier : I regretfully confess that I have gone very carefully into this case and that is one case which is giving me a lot of anxiety and trouble.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Is it a fact that the peace of the province has not been disturbed on account of the release of any political prisoner?

Mr. Speaker : The question is not in order.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Short of trying him in an open court, will the Honourable Premier take an opportunity of seeing the prisoner and verifying from him the information that has come to him?

Premier : I hope what I say now will not go into the press. I have a statement of the prisoner himself on record and it is that which gives me so much anxiety and trouble.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Is he sure that that statement is a genuine one?

Premier : I am certain it is.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Will he save himself a lot of anxiety and trouble by simply releasing this gentleman?

Premier : No. My anxiety is because of his own statement.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Take a plunge.

Premier : I might be able to do that later on if the atmosphere changes.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier take the Leader of the Opposition into his confidence so far as this case is concerned?

Premier : I might be prepared to take this House into my confidence, but then it will have to be a secret session of the House. If my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition wants to see his statement I am prepared to show it to him. I can assure the House that I have looked into it very carefully and have examined various aspects of the case. I am still unable to see my way to take any other decision except what I have already taken.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Will the Honourable the Premier think it advisable to consult the Prime Minister of the United Provinces regarding Sardar Teja Singh?

Premier : I do not know if the Chief Minister of the United Provinces had close intimate connection with Sardar Teja Singh.

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Lahore is the only Municipal Committee (now under supersession) where the Indian-Christians have the right to send an elected representative on the basis of separate electorate. - (a) whether it is a fact that in connection with the Haveli Project, which is about to be undertaken, nearly five hundred and forty-three new vacancies are to be filled in the near future ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the number of Muslims at present in the Irrigation Department is very small ; if so, whether it is intended to make up this deficiency at the time of filling the vacancies mentioned in (a) above ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) About 400 vacancies will be created excluding menial establishment.

(b) Yes. Endeavours will be made to make up the deficiencies in case of communities which are not properly represented at present; but this depends, however, on suitable candidates being available from those communities.

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : I regret that the answer to this question is not ready.

- (b) whether it is a fact that the said lambardar refused to receive the land revenue so remitted; if so, the action that Government propose to take in the matter?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Sardar Harjab Singh, M.L.A., did send a money order to the lambardar, but no money order is reported to have been received by the lambardar from S. Gurbachan Singh.

(b) The lambardar is reported to have refused the money order sent by Sardar Harjab Singh, because the amount was less than the demand for rabi 1937. As the amount due to Government was paid into the treasury by the lambardar no action is required.

Minister : This answer will be published.

(b) A statement is laid on the table. The names of the villages given in this are those of the villages in the Beit area visited by the several magistrates. The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : It is not in the public interest to give the information.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier please state if he has held any consultations with the Inspector-General of Police since the inauguration of the so-called provincial autonomy and told him to take note of the changed conditions and to alter the practice that has so far been observed in this province ?

Premier : He has taken note of the changed conditions.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it in the public interest not to disclose the names of the honourable members who are under police surveillance ?

Premier : Yes, if there are any ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do I understand that the Honourable Premier thinks that there are no honourable members who are under police surveillance ?

Premier : I hope the honourable member will forgive me if I refuse to be drawn into the controversy.

Diwan Chaman Lall : As one deeply interested in the matter and as one subject to police surveillance, I ask whether there are members of this House who are under police surveillance. The surveillance extends to this extent that their letters are being opened by the police before they are delivered to the addressees. May I show the Honourable Premier some of such letters ?

Premier : How does the honourable member know that they are opened by the police ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Honourable Premier can go to the General Post Office at Lahore and satisfy himself that these letters are being opened by the police. What is the basis of this surveillance ? Has the Honourable Premier satisfied himself that there is no reason for this surveillance ? Will he please issue orders that this surveillance should cease ?

(b) Not specifically ; but they come under 40 per cent. seats reserved for "Others".

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that the fixing of communal representation in the King Edward Medical College has led to the deterioration of the medical graduates of the college ?

Minister : No, Sir.

Lala Duni Chand : Has the efficiency increased thereby ?

Minister : Certainly. (Laughter).

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it not desirable that as many vacancies as are required by all communities should be provided for in the college ?

Minister : That will require money. As soon as money becomes available I shall be glad to comply with the wishes of the honourable member.

Lala Duni Chand : Are we to understand that communal representation in educational institutions will lead to efficiency of those who receive education in those colleges ?

Minister : We cannot shut our eyes to stern realities that face us in the province.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it not a stern reality of the country that we should give the best education to our best young men ?

Minister : That is what we are trying to do for all communities. (Hear, hear).

Seth Ram Narain Virmani (Urdu) : How many seats have been reserved for the untouchables ?

(b) In view of the reply to the latter portion of part (a) the information is not available at present.

(c) A copy of the reply to question No. 128¹ is placed on the table.

Sayed Mubarik Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state the number community-wise of clerks to be taken from the present staff of the Irrigation Department for the Haveli Project and also the communal proportions, if any, to be observed while replacing these clerks ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The following is the approximate number of clerks that will be transferred from the existing permanent staff to the Haveli Project :—

| | | | | | |

These clerks will be replaced in the circles from which they are transferred ; communal proportions being kept in view.

(b) Rs. 448 lakhs (October, 1925).

(c) The honourable member will realise that for such an extensive project comprising innumerable sub-works it could not be possible to assess the position every year. Important stages in the course of each assessment given below—

563. Sayed Mubarik Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that instructions were issued by the Honourable Revenue Member a few years back to the Central Irrigation Office and all the Superintending Engineers to the effect that the Muslim employees of the Irrigation Department should be saved from retrenchment in order to secure for them their due representation in the Department ;
- (b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, whether the Government proposes to lay a copy of the same on the table of the House ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes, so long as the Muslims retained were duly qualified and had satisfactory records of service.

(b) The honourable member is referred to the answer given to question No. *1864¹, dated 28th April, 1932.

RE-EMPLOYMENT OF RETRENCHED MUSLIM EMPLOYEES OF THE IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

564. Sayed Mubarik Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that on an inquiry being made regarding the number and the names of the retrenched employees of the Irrigation Department for purposes of re-employing them in connection with the Haveli Project only the names of non-Muslims were sent up by the clerk concerned in the Punjab Irrigation Secretariat ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that no Muslim employee of the Irrigation Department was retrenched during 1930—34 ;
- (c) if the answer to (b) above be in the affirmative, why their names were not sent up for re-employment on the occasion of recruitment in connection with the Haveli Project ; and whether the Government is prepared to consider the cases of the retrenched Muslim employees of the Irrigation Department in this respect ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) No, the honourable member has been misinformed.

(b) No.

(c) Part one does not arise. Appointments of retrenched clerks are being made by Superintending Engineer, Haveli, community-wise. Due proportion of each community is being kept in mind.

REPRESENTATION OF MUSLIMS IN SIRSA MUNICIPALITY.

565. Khawaja Ghulam Samad: Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Muslims at present hold only three seats out of the 9 elected seats in Sirsa Municipal Committee and that the two nominated seats in that committee have been allotted to non-Muslims ;
- (b) whether he is aware of the fact that one seat out of these two has always been given to Muslims in the past ;
- (c) the circumstances which led the Commissioner, Ambala division, to allot both the nominated seats to non-Muslims this time ;
- (d) whether he is also aware of a circular having been issued by the Commissioner, Ambala division, in 1914 directing that nominated seats should always be given to the community which is in a minority, if by so doing the majority is not converted into a minority ;
- (e) if the answers to the above parts be in the affirmative, the action, if any, that is proposed to be taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) It is a fact that the Muslims hold only 3 of the 9 elected seats. Of the two nominated seats one has been allotted to a non-Muslim and the other to the Assistant Surgeon, Sirsa, who at present happens to be a non-Muslim.

(b) Yes.

(c) According to the formula of population and voting strength Muslims are entitled to only 3 seats on the Municipal Committee ; hence the nominated seats were allotted to non-Muslims.

(d) No such circular is traceable.

(e) It is not proposed to take any action.

NUMBER OF CUSECS PER 1,000 ACRES FOR IRRIGATION.

566. Professor W. Roberts : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) the basis on which water is supplied, i.e., the number of cusecs per 1,000 acres in the Lower Chenab Canal, Lower Bari Doab Canal and Sutlej Valley Project ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that these figures have been changed during the last 15 years ;
- (c) if the answer to (b) above be in the affirmative, the dates when the changes were made with the details regarding those changes ;
- (d) whether these changes in the figures were submitted to the Council or Assembly for sanction ; if not, reasons for the same ;
- (e) if the answer to (d) be in the negative, whether Government are prepared to give an undertaking that in future the rights of zamindars will not be short-circuited in this manner ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The authorized full supply at outlet heads for the following canals are :—

| | | |
|--------------------|----|---|
| Lower Chenab Canal | .. | } 2·84 cusecs per 1,000 acres of culturable- Lower Jhelum Canal .. } commanded area. |
| Lower Jhelum Canal | .. | |

Lower Bari Doab Canal .. Information called for from local officers.

The figures quoted above apply to new colony villages ; the supply given to old proprietary area usually situated in Khadir land is smaller.

The supply to be provided was decided originally, on the assumption that 75 per cent. of the culturable commanded area of the Colony area of the Lower Chenab Canal and Lower Jhelum Canal, and 66·6 per cent. on the Lower Bari Doab Canal area would be irrigated annually. The percentage for old proprietary area of the Lower Jhelum Canal and Lower Chenab Canal was 50 per cent. A further assumption made was that 1 cusec could irrigate satisfactorily a certain area per annum. From these assumptions the discharge for 1,000 acres was computed for each canal. The idea underlying such a water-supply is to provide a certain intensity of irrigation.

The figures of supply quoted above do not apply to some of the areas to which irrigation was latterly extended.

On the Sutlej Valley Canals the authorized discharges at heads of distributaries are as follows :—

Perennial areas .. 3·19 cusecs per 1,000 acres.

Non-Perennial areas .. 3·80 cusecs per 1,000 acres share supply.

Non-Perennial areas .. 5·0 cusecs per 1,000 acres maximum supply.

(b) There have been no reductions during the last 15 years in Lower Chenab Canal, Lower Jhelum Canal and Sutlej Valley Canals.

(c) and (d). Do not arise.

(e) Government is prepared to take the Assembly into its confidence through the Standing Canal Committee if and when it is proposed to alter the authorized full supply discharge per 1,000 acres.

COMPENSATION TO INHABITANTS OF VILLAGES WASHED AWAY BY RIVER SUTLEJ.

567. Sayed Amjad Ali Shah : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that certain villages in tahsil Zira situated on the banks of the river Sutlej have recently been washed away ;

(b) whether it is a fact that some inhabitants of these villages have been granted compensation, while others have not been granted any compensation ; if so, reasons for the differential treatment and whether the Government is prepared to grant compensation to the latter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Only one village Fatehpur Bhagwan was washed away by flood in the river Sutlej in 1936.

[Minister for Revenue.]

(b) No "compensation" was granted to the inhabitants of that village, but certain persons who were destitute and homeless were given gratuitous relief which amounted to Rs. 2,920. No question of differential treatment or further grant of "compensation", therefore, arises.

SIKH SUPERINTENDENT FOR THE BUILDINGS AND ROADS BRANCH OF THE PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT SECRETARIAT.

568. Sardar Uttam Singh Dugal : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether there has ever been a Sikh superintendent in the Buildings and Roads Branch of the Public Works Department Secretariat ; if not the reasons for the same ;
- (b) whether there is a likelihood of a Sikh being appointed as superintendent in the near future by the ordinary process of promotion from lower ranks ;
- (c) the name of the senior most Sikh in the Branch, and in how many years he will become the superintendent ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) The reply is in the negative, the reasons being that there were no Sikhs in the office available for promotion.

(b) The reply is in the negative.

(c) No public purpose will be served by the disclosure of names, nor is it possible to reply to the concluding portion of the question.

SIKH REPRESENTATION IN PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT SECRETARIAT.

569. Sardar Uttam Singh Dugal : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether there are any Sikh clerks in the Buildings and Roads Branch of the Public Works Department Secretariat ; if not, reasons for the same ;
- (b) whether at any time efforts were made to secure their representation in the said Branch of the Public Works Department Secretariat ; if not, what steps the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) The reply is in the affirmative.

(b) Does not arise.

PURCHASE OF LAND BY MIRZA BASHIR-UD-DIN MAHMUD AHMAD.

570. Malik Barkat Ali : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that a considerable portion of the estate of village Qadian, tahsil Batala, district Gurdaspur was purchased on 21st June, 1920, in the name of Mirza Bashir-ud-Din Mahmud Ahmad, and his brothers from one Mirza Akram Beg and his mother who are statutory agriculturists ;

- (b) whether it is also a fact that $\frac{2}{3}$ th of the sale price was in fact paid by the Nazarat-i-Ammor-i-Ama and only $\frac{1}{3}$ th price was paid by the nominal purchasers and that $\frac{2}{3}$ th of the land so purchased is now in possession of the different members of the Ahmadiya community on whose behalf the Nazarat had paid $\frac{2}{3}$ th of the total price ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that nearly all these members who are now in possession of that land do not belong to any of the statutory agricultural tribes in the said district ;
- (d) whether it is a fact that this evasion of the provisions of the Alienation of Land Act was brought to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner, Gurdaspur, and the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (Revenue), by means of a communication, dated 18th April, 1937 ;
- (e) whether it is also a fact that the said Deputy Commissioner and the Financial Commissioner have so far taken no action on the communication made to them and mentioned in part (d) above ;
- (f) if answers to the above parts be in the affirmative, the action, if any, that the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : I regret that the reply to this question is not ready.

A AND B CLASS AGRICULTURAL TRIBES AND THE ALIENATION OF LAND ACT.

571. Malik Barkat Ali : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state whether any "B" Class agricultural tribe has, since the passing of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act, been promoted to "A" Class, and if so, the name of such tribe ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The honourable member presumably refers to the division of statutory agriculturists in every district into a "general group", for convenience sake marked 'A' and "special groups" for convenience sake marked 'B' in official lists. These divisions merely indicate separate socio-economic bodies of persons of varying economic strength notified as "agricultural tribes"; or "groups of agricultural tribes" under section 4 of the Punjab Alienation of Land Act. The members of each one of these "agricultural tribes" or "groups of agricultural tribes" thus separately notified are regarded as non-agriculturists vis-a-vis members of other "agricultural tribes" or "groups of agricultural tribes". Thus a member of what the honourable member calls an 'A' class "agricultural tribe" cannot buy the land of a member of one of the 'B' class "agricultural tribe" and vice versa. No question of superiority or inferiority, therefore, arises, nor of "promotion" from one class to another.

2. There has been no instance of any group of persons being transferred from one "agricultural tribe" or "group of agricultural tribes" into another "agricultural tribe" or "group of agricultural tribes" for the purposes of Punjab Alienation of Land Act.

TRAFFIC BRANCH AND MONOPOLY OF ANGLO-INDIAN INSPECTORS.

572. Malik Barkat Ali : Will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the traffic branch of the Police Department is virtually the monopoly of Anglo-Indian Inspectors, and that not a single Cantonment and Civil Lines police station in the Punjab is in charge of an Indian Inspector ; if so, the reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : If the first part of the question relates to the staff employed for the examination of motor vehicles and to the motor patrols, it is a fact that the inspectors employed are all Europeans or Anglo-Indians. These officers have generally been found more suitable for work of this kind. It is also correct that all those Cantonment police stations and Civil Lines police stations where inspectors are posted—actually there are only two Civil Lines stations in the category—are in the charge of European or Anglo-Indian officers. This is due to the fact that in these particular cantonments and towns there is a large European and Anglo-Indian population to be dealt with.

ANGLO-INDIAN AND INDIAN POLICE OFFICERS AT PHILLAUR.

573. Malik Barkat Ali : Will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Indian inspectors, sub-inspectors and assistant sub-inspectors, when at Phillaur for training, are required to live in the dingy rooms of the Fort and are not allowed to go outside the Fort without permission and that Anglo-Indian inspectors and sergeants live outside the Fort in much better quarters ;
- (b) whether it is also a fact that Indian inspectors, sub-inspectors, and assistant sub-inspectors while undergoing training at Phillaur, are not allowed to keep servants and are supposed to do their work themselves such as cleaning shoes, boots belts, etc., and that Anglo-Indian inspectors and sergeants are allowed to keep servants and bearers : if so, the reasons for this distinction ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Sub-inspectors and assistant sub-inspectors under training in the Phillaur School are required to live in quarters inside the Fort. There is no prohibition on their going outside when off duty. Inspectors (both European and Indian) and sergeants have quarters outside the Fort.

(b) There is no distinction of the kind the honourable member seems to have in mind. Inspectors (both European and Indian) and sergeants are permitted to keep servants. Sub-inspectors and assistant sub-inspectors are not.

CYCLING ON CANAL ROADS.

574. Sardar Partab Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (b) whether he is also aware of the fact that the Sub-Divisional Officer and his men remove the nuts of the cycles belonging to persons using that road ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that Sir Fazl-i-Hussain, the late Minister for Revenue, in reply to Sardar Hira Singh Narli Member, Legislative Council's question No. 2907¹ stated that no rule or regulation had been made prohibiting the cyclists from using the canal roads ;
- (d) if the answer to (a), (b) and (c) above be in the affirmative, the grounds for imposing these restrictions on the cyclists using the road in question ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Yes.

(d) The honourable member is referred to my reply to part (c) of question No. 860² asked by Dr. Sant Ram Seth.

- (d) whether they have demanded the appointment of an impartial officer from outside the district for investigating this matter ;
- (e) what steps the Government proposes to take in this connection ?

(e) The matter is under consideration.

Crown against Tirllok Singh, son of Mangal Singh, of village Ghanshyampur, tahsil Amritsar and Hari Singh, son of Janda Singh Jat of village Sherpur, thana Lopoke, district Amritsar, under sections 394/397, Indian Penal Code ;

- (b) how long this case remained pending in the court and whether the culprits were let off on bail and later on acquitted ;
- (c) if the answer to (b) above be in the affirmative, whether he is prepared to lay on the table the judgment of the magistrate ;
- (d) whether the magistrate made any remarks regarding the forgery of a receipt ;
- (e) whether the magistrate made any remarks regarding the Sub-Inspector of Police, Pandit Kishan Gopal's connivance at it ;
- (f) if the answers to (d) and (e) above be in the affirmative, what were these remarks ;
- (g) whether the Government proposes to take any action against the said Sub-Inspector ; if so, what ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) From the 1st July, 1986 to the 30th October, 1986. The accused persons remained in the judicial lock-up throughout until they were acquitted on the 30th October, 1986.

(c) A copy of the judgment¹ is laid on the table.

(d) Yes.

(e) Yes.

(f) The remarks will be found in the concluding paragraph of the judgment.

(g) The judgment was considered by the District Magistrate in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Punjab Police Rules. He did not agree with the magistrate's view of the case and decided, as he was entitled to do, that no further proceedings were necessary.

RAILWAY DISASTER NEAR PATNA.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan) : Sir, the distressing news of the terrible train tragedy near Patna has shocked the whole country. The disaster was unfortunately one of the worst of its kind which has happened in this country and the sympathy of the whole country goes to the victims of the disaster and to the dependents of those unfortunate people who have lost their lives in this calamity. I thought that this House would naturally like to express their quota of sympathy to those unfortunate victims, and I, as Leader and Representative of this House, and not as Premier, should like to move, with your permission, a resolution of sympathy with those who have lost their lives and their dependents and also request the Government to look into the question of granting relief to the dependents of those who belonged to this province and lost their lives in this disaster (loud cheers). With your permission I would now read the Resolution—

This Assembly expresses its deep regret at the appalling railway disaster which happened on Saturday the 17th July resulting in the death of over 100 persons and causing injuries to over 200 and offer its sympathies to the relations of those killed and requests Government to enquire into the extent to which the dependents of the deceased belonging to this province require help and to make adequate provisions for giving the necessary assistance.

(Hear, hear).

I hope, Sir, that the whole House will join with me and support the resolution. (Voices : Yes, yes).

Mr. Speaker : The motion moved is—

This Assembly expresses its deep regret at the appalling railway disaster which happened on Saturday the 17th July resulting in the death of over 100 persons and causing injuries to over 200 and offer its sympathies to the relations of those killed and requests Government to enquire into the extent to which the dependents of the deceased belonging to this province require help and to make adequate provisions for giving the necessary assistance.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Leader of the Opposition) : Sir, I rise to support the motion which has been moved by the Leader of the House and I also wish to convey the thanks of members on this side of the House to him, for the action he has taken (hear, hear). I have to make only one suggestion and it is that if the Honourable Premier were to depute an officer to go there and make proper personal enquiries into these cases and then decide about the help to be given to the dependents, that would go a long way towards relieving the anxiety. Our experience in the past was that no notice was actually taken of those who fell victims to such disasters. Therefore I think he will agree to my request and depute some officer for the aforesaid purpose.

Premier : I have no hesitation in accepting the proposal put forward by my honourable friend opposite and I am thankful to him for making that suggestion (hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

The motion was unanimously carried.

The responsibility for all loss or damage to the Government which may result from any act or negligence or omission of the Bank or its agents in conducting the business of the public debt aforesaid or the payment of interest or discharge value thereon or the renewal, conversion, consolidation, sub-division or cancellation of any Government security shall rest with and be borne by the Bank provided, however, that it shall not be incumbent on the Bank to verify signatures and endorsements on Government securities which prima facie appear to be in order and in the acceptance of which the Bank shall not be guilty of any negligence and in such cases no liability shall be incurred by the Bank in respect thereto PROVIDED ALSO that in regard to the ordinary banking business at the offices, branches and agencies of the Bank of receiving and realising money and securities for money on account of the Government and paying cheques, orders, draft bills and other documents whether negotiable or not in the Bank's capacity of bankers for the Government and whether such business be done by the Bank or by agencies on its behalf the responsibility to the Government shall be that of the Bank and such responsibility shall be that of a banker to an ordinary customer.

12. The Bank shall remit on account of the Government between India and London such amounts as may be required by it from time to time at the market rate of the day for telegraphic transfers, subject to the proviso that if a large transfer has to be effected in connection with the flotation or repayment of a sterling loan or analogous operation, and if it is considered by either party to be inappropriate to apply the rate of a single day, an average rate based on a longer period may be fixed by agreement between the two parties.

[Minister for Finance.]

13. This agreement may be determined by either party giving to the other party one year's notice in writing expiring on the 31st day of March in any year, such notice if given by or on behalf of the Government to be addressed to the Governor of the Bank and to be served by leaving the same with the Head Office of the Bank or addressing the same to him at the Head Office of the Bank by registered post, and if given by the Bank to be served by leaving the same with or addressing the same by registered post to the Secretary to the Government in the Finance Department, and immediately upon the expiration of such notice this agreement shall absolutely cease and determine save as to rights or liabilities acquired or incurred prior to such termination.

In the event of any dispute arising as to the terms and conditions of this agreement or as to the rights or obligations of the parties hereto such dispute or difference of opinion shall, in the event of the parties hereto failing to reach an agreement, be referred to the Governor-General whose decision shall be final and binding as between the parties hereto.

15. Nothing in this agreement shall operate to affect in any way the obligations imposed either on the Government or on the Bank by or under the Act or any subsequent amendment or amendments of the Act.

16. The Bank shall be entitled to perform all or any of the matters contained in this agreement through such agency or agencies as may be prescribed by the Act or any amendment thereof or as may be approved by the Government.

SUPPLEMENTARY DEMANDS FOR GRANTS.

SCIENTIFIC DEPARTMENTS.

Minister for Finance (The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal) : I beg to move—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 6,180 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Scientific Departments.

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved is—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 6,190 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Scientific Departments.

Dr. C. L. Fabri of the Central Museum, Lahore.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban) : I beg to move—

That the demand be reduced by Rs. 100.

Sir, I move this cut motion in order to discuss the desirability of extending the period of service of the officer concerned. It will look very peculiar to find me standing up opposing a demand when it concerns the appointment of an individual. I have been always criticising the policy of the Government so far as the budget discussions were concerned. In this case also, I only want to discuss a principle and not the merits of the individual in question. It was considered desirable to appoint another man to help the Curator of the Museum in re-cataloguing the articles in the Museum and a certain gentleman was appointed to do this task. The proposal was that the job, on which the gentleman concerned was appointed, would finish in a few months' time. Therefore, the gentleman was appointed for a few months, but now we find that his services have been extended for about one year more. I beg to invite the attention of the Honourable Minister in charge to the fact that now the time has come when we should give preference to the Indians provided they are of the same ability and qualification. I do not know how far my information is correct, but as far as my information goes, the gentleman, whose services have been extended, was employed in the Archaeological Department of India where he was drawing a salary of Rs. 300 a month. We engaged him on Rs. 500 a month and thus gave him a lift of Rs. 200 a month. Now we are increasing his pay by Rs. 30 more after he has completed one year of service. Though not an expert, yet I beg to draw your attention to certain articles written on the subject of cataloguing of articles in the Museum in the Tribune. An article was printed on 18th January, 1937 and another appeared in its issue of 4th February, 1937, and, if I am correctly informed, there are other articles also printed in several issues of papers criticising the re-cataloguing of the articles in the Museum. As far as my knowledge goes, the present incumbent, whose services we are going to extend, has not given any reply to this criticism and, therefore, when no reply is forthcoming I can draw only one conclusion that whatever criticism has been made against his method of working is correct. Therefore, if that is correct, I think we should not extend the period of his service.

Then, Sir, as far as my knowledge goes, the present Curator is a very highly qualified man. He is an M.A., Ph.D. He has re-catalogued the Amraoti articles in the British Museum, he has re-catalogued the Indian collection in the Buckingham Palace and the Windsor Palace and he visited and advised and worked in most of the Museums in Great Britain and Ireland. Therefore, Sir, I think that this work of re-cataloguing should be given to the permanent man rather than to a temporary hand and, therefore, his services should not be extended.

If the Honourable Minister in charge is satisfied that it is absolutely necessary for him to keep the man and to continue the services of this officer, then I would suggest that his work should be supervised by the permanent man and this man should not be placed over his head.

With these words I commend this proposition to you.

Mr. Speaker : Demand under consideration, motion moved—

That the demand be reduced by Rs. 100.

Minister for Education (The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye) : I have no hesitation in giving this assurance to the honourable members that if a suitable Indian is available for any appointment he shall be given preference (hear, hear). But here in this case the honourable members will realise the difficult position in which I was placed. There was an occasion when I looked at this question, from the point of view of a layman and this is perhaps what is now being done by the honourable leader of the Opposition. The facts are that in September last the Punjab Government decided to have the services of Dr. Fabri to re-label and re-arrange and re-catalogue the galleries of the Museum. The permanent Curator was there. If the permanent Curator had been in a position to execute this work satisfactorily, the Punjab Government would not have requisitioned the services of Dr. Fabri. It is true that previously Dr. Fabri was serving under the Government of India. I am not aware of the salary that he was getting, but the reports are that he did useful work there and there was an intention to give him permanent appointment under the Government of India but perhaps his nationality stood in the way and, therefore, a permanent job could not be given to him. Just at that time the Punjab Government required an expert. They had moved in this matter previous to that and they were thinking of organising the galleries of the Museum, and they obtained the services of Dr. Fabri. What worried me in this case was this. When the case came before me, the facts that were disclosed were that originally Dr. Fabri was engaged for a period of eight months and that he had agreed to finish the work in eight months and now he was asking for an extension of eighteen months. As a layman I took strong objection to that and I proposed to adopt a strong line of action. But this was a question of a very important and valuable institution. The work was not completed, only one-third of the work was done and I had a great responsibility in this matter. The only course open for me was to seek the advice of an expert. I invited the Director-General of Archaeology in India to come over to Lahore and inspect the Museum and advise me regarding the work that has already been completed and the future plans of Dr. Fabri. That gentleman, the Director-General of Archaeology in India, is an Indian and in the report submitted by him he commended the work done by Dr. Fabri. Of course he made a slight criticism also and he recommended that it was absolutely essential that at least one year's extension be granted. It was in the interests of the Museum that I had to accept his advice.

As regards the criticism that has appeared in the papers, I have noticed that there have been propaganda and counter-propaganda. Unfortunately ever since the time that Dr. Fabri's services were engaged the permanent Curator and Dr. Fabri have not been seeing eye to eye with one another and it was a matter of extreme regret for me that during the eight months that Dr. Fabri had been at his work in the Central Museum, the permanent Curator has not been helping him and has been sitting idle. While accepting the recommendation of the Director-General I made these two officers understand that they have got to co-operate in future and the permanent Curator also readily agreed. As regards the criticism, referred to by the honourable leader of the Opposition, in the Tribune I may only say that there is another side of the picture and there have been several articles in the Civil and Military Gazette. I have stopped that propaganda and counter-propaganda and the Director-General having commended his work there was no course open to the Government but to extend the period of Dr. Fabri's appointment.

Mian Abdul Aziz : May I suggest one thing to the Honourable Minister? It may not be as is usually done that this one year's extension may again be extended. He should tell both these gentlemen definitely that the period will not be further extended.

Minister for Education : The Ministry of Education have laid very strict conditions and those conditions were revised by the Honourable Minister for Finance and he added further conditions. Both the Ministers are very closely watching the progress of work and we have ordered that quarterly reports be submitted to the Government and the first report is expected early next month. The Government will see that the work is finished within this period and that no further extension is granted to Dr. Fabri.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : I had no intention of intervening in this debate but since the debate has taken on a particular aspect it is necessary that I should say a word or two. I did not need to hear the sentiments of the Education Minister in regard to the appointment of Dr. Fabri and the expenditure required for that particular purpose ; I did not need to hear the very unseemly controversy that has been going on in the Press in regard to this particular appointment, to say that I am rather at a loss to understand why the services of an expert if they are required for a purpose of this nature—a cultural purpose—should not be taken on by the Punjab Government irrespective of the nationality of that particular individual. It is an absurd state of affairs that in cultural matters we must be tied down to the appointment of a particular individual, merely because he happens to be a Punjabi or an Indian or a Hungarian or a Muslim or a Hindu or a member of any other community. If a man is available and he is doing good work—according to the Minister he has got a report of the Director-General of his good work—Rs. 500 a month is not an extravagant amount for that post, seeing that my friends are going to pay Rs. 500 a month to a secretary,—a secretary who will merely be an ornamental figurehead on the Treasury benches—

Mr. Speaker : That is not the subject under discussion.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am only giving an example. If Rs. 500 paid to a secretary is not a waste of money—

Mr. Speaker : As a rule no member should allude to the previous debates of the same session in connection with any question or Bill not under discussion, except under special circumstances and even then with the approval of the House and the Chair.

Diwan Chaman Lall : There is some misapprehension. I am not criticising the action taken by the House. I have no intention of doing so. Under the rules I cannot criticise the action taken by the House. All that I am submitting is a parallel example. I might easily have turned round and said for instances that Jesus Christ had 12 disciples but he did not pay any salary to them and yet they did wonderful good work for Christianity. I might have given that as a good example. But we need not consider the nationality of the 12 disciples and what I am saying is this. In a cultural matter let us not confine our attention to a narrow point of view and let us not say merely because a man is a Hungarian or a Russian we shall not require his services. I do hope my honourable friend the Minister for Education is not going to be tied down to the limit so that if Dr. Fabri's work is not finished within a year he will have to go. I would submit that if he thinks that Dr. Fabri is an able man a desirable man he should try to retain his services permanently for the purpose of the Museum at Lahore, irrespective of the fact whether Dr. Fabri is a Punjabi or not. He is not a Punjabi and I do submit that this principle if once accepted by the Department is likely to injure the cultural development of my province rather than help its advancement.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang (West Lahore Division, General-Rural) : I happen to know something about this matter and for the benefit of the Education Minister I would like to say a few words. I know both the gentlemen concerned, and I have a very high opinion about the ability of both of them. When the matter came up before the Finance Committee, I was one of those who strongly supported the proposal of the Finance Department and I have no reason to believe that Dr. Fabri has not done useful work (hear, hear). But the trouble is in respect of other matters. One was that Dr. Fabri started writing articles in the Civil and Military Gazette over the alleged defects in the cataloguing of certain exhibits. This matter was brought to the notice of Government and I am glad that the Government did take notice of it and stopped him from going to the Press and I hope he has accepted that suggestion and no more articles have been written by him to the Civil and Military Gazette or any other paper. That was only an indiscretion and it was brought to his notice in proper time. That was, however, a secondary matter. The difficulty about the case is that as both are experts and both are really able men, there is very often a difference of opinion as to what period a certain exhibit should be ascribed. That is not a mere matter of cataloguing, but exhibits have to be classified by ascribing them to a certain period. On these points differences have arisen and I would suggest to the Honourable Education Minister that both these gentlemen may be advised that both of them should act in agreement and co-operation with one another and I am glad that they have agreed to do so.

Minister for Education : I have already said that.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : What I am going to point out is this. Where there is a difference of opinion, none should try to thrust his opinion on the other. They should be noted down in a separate note-book and these exhibits should go uncatalogued for the time being until a third authority has been consulted. That is not only in the interests of peace and harmony between those two experts but also in the interests of history and archaeology and I hope the Honourable Minister would act upon this suggestion.

Minister for Education : In view of the speech made by Diwan Chaman Lall, I would like to make one thing clear. The Government have brought it home to Dr. Fabri that there shall be no further extension and we are going to stick to that decision. We have taken an undertaking from Dr. Fabri that during this period he shall truly and well lay the foundations of the Central Museum and further detailed work shall be left to the permanent Curator.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I want to assure my friend Diwan Chaman Lall that I never said that in educational institutions people who are experts belonging to any nationality cannot be taken. I never said that an Indian who is not an expert shall be given preference over an expert who is a foreigner or belongs to any other nationality. What I said was that if we have got two people equally expert then preference shall be given to an Indian and not to any other.

Minister for Education : You have that assurance from the Government. Why worry about Diwan Chaman Lall ?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : In view of the assurance given by the Honourable Minister for Education, I do not wish to press my amendment.

The motion was by leave withdrawn.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 6,180 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Scientific Departments.

The motion was carried.

AGRICULTURE.

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,150 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Agriculture.

Mr. Speaker : Motion moved is—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,150 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Agriculture.

Yusafwala Cattle Farm.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : There are two points in regard to this demand that I want to bring to the notice of the treasury benches. The first point is in regard to the demand itself. I want to ask the treasury benches and the Finance Minister in particular to let me know as to why this particular demand was not included in the budget. Why are these demands now being brought forward as supplementary grants when the information regarding these particular grants must have been available to the department at the time when the budget was presented to us ? It cannot be said that Government came to the conclusion after the budget was prepared that a part of this particular farm was going to be run by the Agricultural Department and the rest otherwise. They must have known it earlier and I do submit that it is a matter of policy and it is incumbent upon the treasury benches to see to it that such supplementary grants are not made available for the decision of the House so soon after the budget has been presented. If there had been an urgency of a nature unforeseen, I could have understood the difficulty of the Honourable Minister in bringing in this supplementary demand. But I cannot understand why this supplementary demand was not included in the budget. The second point that I wish to raise is this. This particular demand refers to a farm of 3,000 acres. The land has been resumed by the Government and the Government are desirous of offering half of this area as a seed farm. As far as the other half of 1,500 acres is concerned they want to split these 1,500 acres into units of 5 squares and hand them over to private individuals for the purposes of seed farm grants. I do not want my honourable friend to consider that this House is tying itself down to the principle and policy underlying this particular grant. The principle and policy are that the Government by their own sweet will can give away 1,500 acres of land on the ground that it is required for the purposes of seed farming. The reason why they say that they have not given it away is that they have not been able to find suitable persons to whom they can make these grants. I submit there is no necessity for making these grants. I submit that it will lead to a great deal of jobbery on the part of the department concerned. When people know that 5 squares of land are available for the mere asking, there will be hundreds and thousands of applicants for grants of this nature and the Government will be in a position to distribute their largess all round, to people whom they chose. There is always this grave fear that this sort of thing might lead to jobbery on the part of the administrative department and I do submit that if the Honourable Minister gives us an undertaking that this matter of handing over of land for the purpose of seed farm is not to be followed unless the whole question underlying such grants has been carefully considered by the Honourable Minister in charge and the decisions taken will be brought before the House, I have no objection to this grant. But I do submit that in the matter of policy of this nature, Government having taken charge of these departments under provincial autonomy, they should be very careful indeed in laying down principles which may not be accepted by this House and this is one of the most important principles which should be discussed on the floor of the House. Such a large scale distribution of land of this province merely on the sweet will of the administrative departments should not be permitted. It means that 1,500 acres will be distributed by the Government without any hitch. If this can be done, why not 3,000 acres? It is not a series of farms disconnected, it is a unit of three thousand acres and if Government can set up a farm of 1,500 acres, why cannot they set up a farm for the rest of it? I do hope the Honourable Minister when he gets up will throw some light on this particular subject and assure the House that the House will not be tied down to the principle underlying this particular grant.

Minister for Finance (The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal) : Sir, I want to say only a few words so far as it concerns the Finance Department. You will see that the demand itself does not offend against the principles under which supplementary estimates are presented. But while that is so, I am in a position to assure the House that we have already taken steps to discourage and strongly discourage supplementary grants so far as possible. I have more than once pointed out to the departments concerned that they will have to make out a very strong case before they ask me, as Finance Minister, to place any supplementary demand before this House. As far as the question of merits of this particular grant is concerned, the Honourable Minister for Development will speak about it.

Minister for Development (The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram) : Sir, in the absence of my honourable colleague, who is in charge of the Department of Revenue, I may say a few words with regard to the policy of distributing 1,500 acres of land in units of 5 rectangles each to individuals who will have to be selected by the Department of Revenue. Many members probably do not know that so far as distribution of these squares or rectangles is concerned, the subject is not mine. Distribution rests with the Department of Revenue. But as the Honourable Revenue Minister is away, I may inform the House on his behalf that the question of ear-marking 1,500 acres for distribution had already been decided before the Honourable Minister for Revenue took over charge of his office. Possibly the question was decided as long ago as 18 months. Therefore, he is not responsible for the policy which underlies the reservation of 1,500 acres of land for distribution to individuals for seed producing purposes.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it from the Honourable Minister's speech that this particular grant has not been made so far and the reason why the Honourable Ministers are asking for that special grant is that they are not at the present moment in a position to make this grant to various people? if so, the position can be easily reversed if the Honourable Minister wishes to do so.

Minister for Development : I am absolutely sure that no part of this land has been given away to anybody so far. If any portion of this land had been distributed, then I would not have had to come to the House for the grant of a portion of the money comprised in this demand in order to entertain establishment. The House may take it that the land is still there and selection of individuals will take place probably next winter. But the policy of setting this land apart for distribution to individual seed growers was decided long ago. It does not rest with me to give an assurance to the House that this policy will be re-examined. I can only convey the desire of my honourable friend to my colleague. I am sure that his suggestion will receive careful attention.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan (Pind Dadan Khan, Muhammadan, Rural) : Sir, I want to say a few words. I would request the Government, while deciding this question whether departmental farms should be started or allotments should be made to private individuals, they should bear in mind that one of the objects of the Government should be to encourage private enterprises. Considering the experience that we have of these farms being run departmentally, I am afraid it costs Government more than the income. Well, if this work is given to private individuals, it will not be a burden on the state but will bring in extra income. I would request the Government to try an experiment by giving 1,500 acres to individuals and managing 1,500 acres departmentally and then to find out at the end of one or two years whether the former is profitable or not. I hope that the Government will take this point into consideration. I would further request the Government not to bind themselves down to this allotment of 5 squares or rectangles to one individual, for producing seeds. If he is to produce the best seeds, naturally a small holder will not be able to invest money and run the farm scientifically. Therefore, it will be better if the allotted land should consist of more than 5 squares. I hope the Government will consider this point also.

Mian Abdul Aziz (Outer Lahore, Muhammadan, Urban) : Sir, I really do not see the usefulness of splitting up this land into two parts, half to be kept by the Government, and the other half to be distributed to various people. It appears, Sir, that out of these 120 rectangles 60 are now to be kept by the Government and 60 are to be distributed, at the rate of 5 rectangles per individual. It means that it will be distributed between 12 other persons. The first thing which I would submit is that I do not know how this distribution is going to take place. If this distribution is going to take place to a certain extent, as it is observed in various cases, to persons who are in the good books of Government, not only in the good books of Government, but those who are really not entitled, then I certainly strongly object to it. I would submit that splitting of this land into two portions is certainly very bad. The other day we were discussing a certain other question regarding the agricultural department that it would be better if the Government takes the whole of the land. They have already got mukaddams and several other people. They can add to their number and they should help other public people by producing seeds themselves.

The other thing which I would submit is, as the Honourable Minister has said, that this decision was arrived at some 18 months ago. It was known to the Treasury benches that this arrangement was going to take place. I can merely endorse the remarks made by my honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall as to why such things were not brought in the budget. Why has this been brought as a supplementary grant? Am I to understand—as one day the Honourable Finance Minister remarked that I had something in my bosom but did not want to disclose it—would that apply in the same spirit to the Honourable Finance Minister? Has he something in his bosom but wants to keep it as a secret?

The other thing which I would submit is that it is just like the several branches of the Public Works Department, where construction is going on and the repairs bill comes beforehand. In the same way supplementary demands have come in, though only a few days ago we have passed the budget.

I would request the Honourable Minister in charge of Development that he would certainly go into the question and see that the whole property of this land is kept by the Government for the purpose for which it is meant instead of distributing it into half and half.

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali (Hafizabad, Muhammadan, Rural): I had no mind to take part in the discussion, but there have been one or two points which have been brought forward in the debate on which I also want to express my feeling. So far as the question of presenting the supplementary demands is concerned, I feel Mian Sahib and Diwan Chaman Lall are right when they express their opinion that so soon after the budget we should not bring in these things. The reply which has been given by the Finance Minister that he always discourages such supplementary demands and that his policy is that such things should as far as possible be avoided, is a sufficient assurance that we shall not be bothered any further with such demands.

[K. S. Ch. Riasat Ali.]

As to the distribution of land between private enterprisers and maintaining the farms at the instance of the Government, I want to say one or two words. There was a farm in my district known as the Chakkanwali farm, formed by the Government by taking possession of three villages and after spending a huge capital, the Government felt that it was nothing but a white elephant on the provincial revenues and what has been the result? The result has been that the farm has been discontinued now after a volley of questions from myself and from other members and a lot of criticism from all sides. Now that land is again going to be distributed between private enterprisers I submit that the policy of retaining huge tracts of land for Government agricultural farms is not as much beneficial to the interests of the province as that of its distribution among private individuals. (An honourable member : Distribute the whole ?) Yes, if possible the whole might be distributed.

Sardar Ajit Singh : Will it be allotted permanently ?

Khan Bahadur Nawab Muzaffar Khan : Not permanently. It is clear from the note. A very wrong impression is being created. The land will be given out on temporary leases.

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali : It is for the Honourable Revenue Minister to say. But I submit that it is better if it is given on lease for a particular number of years and if the lessee is found to have fulfilled the conditions on which the lease has been given, the lease may further be extended. The honourable Mian Abdul Aziz has also raised an objection so far as the distribution of the land is concerned. I want to reply to that in one word. The land should be distributed not as gentry grant. It should not be given to people in lieu of their good services. The object in view should be to give it to those people who can most efficiently produce the best seed for the purposes of poor zamindars who could augment his income by the use of that seed. Land has been similarly given for horse breeding and cattle breeding purposes and in all these cases the elementary thing which is wanted is whether the particular grantee has fulfilled satisfactorily the conditions on which the land was originally given. I would submit that in this respect also the land should be given only to those people who are most suitable and who would efficiently fulfill the object for which this distribution is being made. The land should be given to co-operators not in the sense in which the word is used as a political term, but those people who are ready to obey the directions and who would co-operate with the Government in carrying out the object for which this land is being distributed. This is not a scheme which is primarily intended to remove unemployment and this land should only be given as I have said to the people who are in a position to produce the best seed for the cultivators of the province.

There is no harm if it is given to people who are unemployed, but the criterion should be the attainment of the object and not the status or the personality of the proposed grantee.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Favouritism may play a part.

Minister for Revenue : How do you know. (An honourable member : From past experience). As long as I am sitting here I will see that this does not happen.

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali: It will be very useful if this land is divided into small plots and given to private individuals and not in big rectangles to be given to people who do not want these things and whose purse is always full.

Minister for Revenue (The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia): May I at this stage of the discussion intervene? I am sorry that I was absent from the Assembly Chamber as I had to meet a deputation of some of my honourable friends from Doaba. I think the idea of some of the members of the opposite side is that this land is going to be distributed to well-to-do people. That is not the idea. First of all out of the 3,000 acres, we are handing over 1,500 acres to the Agricultural Department for the purpose of producing good seed for distribution to people. As regards the remaining 1,500 acres we have not yet come to any decision. Consequently we are leaving this area also with the Agricultural Department. Our idea is to start a sort of competition between the Agricultural Department and those private people who get land for cultivation and produce seed of the best quality. They will be required to cultivate this land according to the instructions of the Agricultural Department so that they may not produce inferior or bad seed. We are introducing this sort of competition between the Agricultural Department and the outside people to see whether they cannot also produce good seed. The idea underlying is that we will not give this land as a grant to them permanently but only for a certain period of time, to see that good seed is produced and if the men to whom the land is given show good results then the lease will be extended.

Sardar Ajit Singh: What will be the form of distribution of this land?

Minister for Revenue: If the honourable member had heard what I have said, he will understand that I have not come to any conclusion on the subject. We are considering that question.

Sardar Ajit Singh: Will that be done according to the advice of this House?

Minister for Revenue: No, Sir.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain (Multan Division Towns, Muhammadan, Urban): The Honourable Minister was not present when objection was taken to the distribution of the land. The objection precisely was that such distribution is likely to lead to jobbery. The lease may be in the hands of the Honourable Minister here but the distribution, as it is proposed to give 5 rectangles each presumably for the purpose of seed farming, can easily be done as is suggested by Chaudhri Riasat Ali. According to the present proposal only 12 persons will benefit by the grant but if half a square or one square is given to each, then 120 poor peasants will benefit and the similar conditions as proposed by the honourable member can be imposed upon those very people. I would, therefore, suggest that in the interest of better seed farming and in order to benefit a greater number of peasants the land should be so distributed that one or half square should be given to each tenant.

Minister for Revenue: That is not possible.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood (Amritsar, Muhammadan, Rural): So far as I am aware the purpose of this lease is to ensure a system of getting better seeds for the province. It is a beginning towards that end. With your permission I will take the House into my confidence and say that among other things I had the fortune or the misfortune while graduating at the Oxford University of digging potatoes and milking cows. One of the things I had was to specialise in seed farming. That being the position I speak on the question with something of practical experience. I would submit that the Honourable the Revenue Minister said that Government has not finally made up its mind as to the exact form which they would give to the distribution of these seeds. My submission is that the experience of other countries leads one to the conclusion that the best way to have better seed farming is to make the double barrelled effort. On the one side we should give small plots on economic holding basis to the farmers, i.e., on co-operative basis, under which they would be limited to carry on not only the directions but also the distribution of seeds on certain basis which may be agreed upon. On the other hand, though I am not a believer in capitalistic farming, I believe that so far as scientific farming is concerned, there should be encouragement in scientific seed growing so that both might give a better service to the province.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Southern towns, General, Urban) (Urdu) : Sir, I would like to say a few words regarding this supplementary demand. It is generally feared that the Government always sides with big landlords. Again, when during the discussions on the budget, the demand for agriculture was submitted before the House no mention was made of this supplementary demand. What is still more strange is this, that these 3,000 acres of land will be divided into two halves. One half will be made over to the Department of Agriculture for the production of good seeds and the other half will be divided into parts of five squares each which will be allotted to the zamindars for the same purpose.

I would like to amend this proposal and suggest that instead of giving five squares of land to big landlords, one square or half a square each may be given to small landholders.

Mr. Speaker : Repetition is not permissible.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : At least 50 members of this House have not followed the arguments advanced by the English speaking members.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not entitled to translate.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : I submit that the Government has always laid claim to the fact that they have every sympathy with the small land-holder. Now is the time when they can give a practical proof of it. Moreover it is not desirable that lands should be distributed among the people at large for the production of good seeds, because they do not possess the facilities which are within easy reach of the Department of Agriculture. Once again I submit that the Government should distribute this land among the small land-holders and not among the big landlords just for the sake of winning their sympathy and their votes.

Minister for Revenue The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : Sir, I repeat an old Punjabi proverb— جس دن گھنہ پر جس نہن لکھا— My friends have got something in their minds. They are always putting forward suggestions and have no belief in the good intentions of Government. I can only say that the suggestions made in this House would be fully borne in mind in deciding this question.

Diwan Chaman Lall: May I draw attention to the fact that a large number of members are interested in this question? Probably all that we have heard from the honourable members opposite—

Mr. Speaker: Is the honourable member entitled to make a second speech?

Diwan Chaman Lall: I am not making a speech: I may only making a suggestion to the honourable Minister—

Mr. Speaker: I think the matter has been discussed at length and the question may now be put.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew (Amritsar City, Muhammadan, Urban): Sir, before you finally decide to put the motion to the House for vote, may I with your permission just say one or two words. I will not take too much time of the House unnecessarily. I am a layman. I am not an agriculturist and I do not understand these things. I want to understand the matter exactly as it stands before I am called upon to vote correctly on the subject. With that idea I would like in a few words to put one or two questions to my friend opposite. In the speeches it has been said, Sir, that there should be a kind of competition between a private individual on the one hand and the Government institution on the other. But the learned speakers opposite have not been pleased to explain yet as to how on earth an individual getting only a few squares of land for the purpose of experiment will be able to compete financially or otherwise with the Government. The Government has got extensive resources at its back. The Government can certainly put down the experiment in no time and make the life of the particular individual, who has been given a few squares of land, not worth living, and the experiment would fail. Do I understand that Government, for instance if this experiment fails, wants to monopolise the whole land? If that be the position I can understand it. Otherwise as a layman myself I have not yet been able to understand the explanation placed before the House from the side opposite. There is another point and that is this; my friends on this side of the House of course have made some suggestions and they want information from the side opposite. Eighteen months ago, it has been said, these things were known to the Treasury benches or to the Government which was in power at that time (Honourable Minister for Revenue: When we were not here). But your predecessors in office knew that and they have left this heritage to you—it may be a good or bad heritage—I do not know, but it is a sort of heritage. You knew that when you came to office and you knew certainly when the budget was being prepared. Nobody can deny that. If the Minister in charge says that he had no knowledge when the budget was prepared, that 18 months ago this thing was discussed by the Government, I will not take his word for it. It is a matter of principle. I agree with the members opposite when they say that ordinarily these supplementary demands should not be introduced in this haphazard manner. It is the duty of the Government to explain its position on these two points to this side of the House. I should like to have information on these two points before I am in a position to vote.

1 P.M.

Mr. Speaker: The question is—

That the question be now put.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

“That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 12,150 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of Agriculture.”

The Assembly divided : Ayes 89 : Noes 29.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2-15 P.M. Mr. Deputy Speaker in the chair.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC SCHEMES.

Finance Minister (The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal): Sir, I beg to move—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 38,300 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March 1938, in respect of capital outlay on Hydro-Electric Schemes.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: Demand moved—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 38,300 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March 1938, in respect of capital outlay on Hydro-Electric Schemes.

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour): May I request you to ask the Honourable Minister in charge to let us know something about this supplementary demand. As it is, it is necessary that we should have some sort of an explanation from the Government and the explanation I might indicate, should certainly cover the necessity for this particular demand now at this stage.

Minister for Public Works : If the honourable member will look up page 5 of the Supplementary Estimates, he will find there the explanation he wants.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am afraid the Minister for Public Works is not a lawyer, and that is the reason why he was so eager to get up and say something which he should not have said. The point that I want to refer to him is a legal one. The question that I want to raise, Mr. Deputy Speaker, is this. Was this expenditure incurred before the budget was prepared? If so, why was it not included in the budget? Is it legal now when an opportunity did arise to include it in the budget and it was not included in the budget, is it legal to bring it forward as a supplementary demand? That is the point I wanted to refer to. I want your ruling also after my friend has given his explanation. May I refer to Durrell's Parliamentary Grants? On page 50 it says:—

“Since no expenditure can legally be incurred for which parliamentary provision has not been made, the taking of a supplementary estimate should in theory precede all excess expenditure on a civil vote or on the gross army and navy votes respectively. In practice this is not always possible. It is, however, eminently desirable to do so whenever practicable.”

—and I submit that it was practicable for my honourable friend to do so when the budget was presented to the House—

“As, when once the payment has been made, or the department committed to payment, Parliament is obviously hampered in its decision as to the expediency of such payment. Expenditure so incurred is invalid; but the granting of the supplementary vote and the passing of the Appropriation Act may be held to have a retrospective effect and to cure such invalidity. Though the Appropriation Act embodying a supplementary vote need not be passed within the financial year the supplementary estimates must be passed before the end of the year in order to give legal effect to the expenditure which they authorize. Further, if presented in a subsequent session to that in which the annual estimates were passed they must be followed by a Consolidated Fund Bill, for no issues from the exchequer authorized in a previous session, although for the same financial year, are legally available for grants made in a subsequent session.”

I take it that it is most extraordinary procedure that this item was not included in the budget when it was presented to this House, in view of the fact that he must have known the facts relating to this grant when the budget was prepared. Does it mean that legally my friend can come forward with it now? Is it the fault of my friend's department that this matter was not brought to the notice of my honourable friend when preparing his budget? Is it correct that the facts were not within the knowledge of my honourable friend the Minister for Finance when he presented the budget to this House? These are questions which my learned friend should answer.

May I further draw your attention to the fact—

“The legal appropriation may be effected later, however, and is normally embodied in the Appropriation Act of the financial year following that to which the supplementary estimates relate.”

But further on page 49, Durrell says—

“The fact that circumstances often unexpectedly increase the revenue since the estimates were made does not in itself justify supplementary estimates.”

But it is not a question here of an increase of revenue, it is a question of asking for a supplementary demand which was within the knowledge of the Honourable Member at the time when he presented the budget. The principle underlying the supplementary grants is a very important one, Mr. Deputy Speaker. It has been laid down in parliament—

“To render Parliamentary control effectual it is necessary that the House of Commons should have the money transactions of the year presented to it in one mass and in one account.”

What I am suggesting to my friends is this that when they had the knowledge of this expenditure, why did they not present this expenditure in one mass and in one account when they prepared the budget?

I want to ask your ruling, Mr. Deputy Speaker, in regard to this particular matter, whether it is competent now for my honourable friend to come forward in this particular manner and present a supplementary demand when the occasion for presenting that demand was necessarily at the time the budget was presented, because there is not a figure which was not available and within the knowledge of the Department, if not within the knowledge of my honourable friend at the time when the budget was prepared.

You will notice on page 500 of May's Parliamentary Practice where this matter is again dealt with and where it is stated—

“Supplementary estimates for the army and navy services have been presented to meet increased expenditure caused by military operations, and to provide for an increase of the numbers of the navy, army and air force. This method of placing before Parliament the demand for increased expenditure created by such an occasion, has been adopted in preference to a vote of credit, when a fairly definite estimate could be formed of the amount that would be required, and of the general heads under which that expenditure would fall.”

Then again—

“A supplementary estimate may be presented either for a further grant to a service already sanctioned by Parliament, in addition to the sum already demanded for the current financial year, or for a grant caused by a fresh occasion for expenditure that has arisen since the presentation of the sessional estimates....”

I submit before you, is it the proposition which my learned friends opposite want to lay down that a fresh occasion for expenditure has arisen since the presentation of the sessional estimates? Is that the proposition? If that is so, then they would be within their rights, but I do submit that the facts are otherwise, that it is not a question of a fresh expenditure since the sessional estimates were prepared. In fact the knowledge of this expenditure was within the ken of my honourable friends opposite when the budget was prepared. They knew all about it. In fact my learned friend said this morning that eighteen months ago this policy had been decided upon.

Minister for Public Works : Not this demand. The honourable member is referring to another demand.

Diwan Chaman Lal : I am bringing that particular matter to the notice of the Deputy Speaker also and am examining the matter of policy involved in this matter. Had you or had you not the knowledge? This is what I want to ask the honourable member opposite, through you. Did you or did you not have the knowledge of the expenditure at the time when you prepared the estimate and presented the sessional estimate and presented them at the time of the budget? If you had the knowledge why did you not come forward with these estimates along with the budget? Is it legal or proper now to come forward with this supplementary demand?

Minister for Finance (The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal) : You will see in the note that the name of the work for which the demand is required is Supply of Power to the Steel and General Mills Company, Limited. I am in a position to inform the honourable member who has just sat down and raised this point that the Government was not able to come to any decision till very late and long after the budget had been prepared, so far as this additional demand is concerned. There was a proposal on behalf of the Company for the use of electricity and the Government considered it at some length and as it was very late when the decision was arrived at, and it could not be earlier, to accept the terms on which it would be possible to supply electricity to the company, it was not possible to include it in the budget. So far as that question is concerned, I have no more to add. Reference has also been made to page 50 of Durrell for the principles on which supplementary demands may be asked. I had an occasion this morning to inform the House that so far as the particular demand then under consideration was concerned, the Government had not in any manner gone against the principles on which supplementary demands are based. I had also occasion to inform the honourable members of this House that we are strongly discouraging supplementary demands. If the honourable members will refer to these demands last year during the session in which the budget was discussed, they will find that the book containing these supplementary demands then was a large one. We have now cut down these demands to barely three. One was a small matter of Dr. Fabri's appointment—I do not wish to refer to these demands in any detail—and the other one has already been debated at great length. The first one could not have been included in the budget in any case, nor could this particular demand have been included in the budget. The general principle if I may say so, it is not really necessary to examine. We are distinctly discouraging these demands, and this is apparent from the fact that we have cut the big book that it used to be to a small affair this year. The general principle that we get from parliamentary literature on these supplementary demands is really not at page 50 of Durrell but at page 47. The general principle is—

[Minister for Finance.]

“Supplementary estimates, when treated as customary and as a matter of course, instead of being restricted to occasions of unforeseen contingencies, do more to destroy effectual parliamentary control than any other indirect method that could be devised.”

We are perfectly conscious of that general principle.

“They are, however, for one service or another annually recurring necessities.”

That cannot be avoided.

“They may be presented either—

- (i) for a further grant to a service occasion sanctioned and voted for, or
- (ii) for a grant for a further occasion of expenditure arising since the estimates were presented :—
 - (a) for expenditure newly imposed on the executive by statute.
 - (b) to meet an unexpected emergency.

Whether you call it unexpected emergency or whether you call it unforeseen contingency, so far as this particular demand is concerned, it did not arise till after our budget stood compiled. The only other circumstance that need concern us is this that if we had not come up to this House for this particular demand, what would have happened is that we would have lost this custom for the Hydro-Electric Department which we are now getting and the net result of that would have been loss of so much revenue. This company is taking an amount of supply which is a welcome amount so far as the Hydro-Electric Department is concerned. Therefore whether you look at the matter on merits or whether you look at the matter from the extremely technical point of financial procedure, there is nothing that is open to any kind of objection. The service exists and to that service we have got to add so much. Of course it would have been quite possible just as the budget had been printed there and then to add an appendix to it, but the budget stood printed with all the facts duly worked out and it was only subsequently that we were distinctly in a position to say that this supply of electric energy can be given as it will bring a profit to us. We are not encouraging supplementary grants. My honourable friend need not for a moment think that this is a sort of thing which the treasury benches are going to encourage at all. We are distinctly and strongly discouraging them, and I feel quite confident that there is nothing in principle which excludes the propriety of the inclusion of a grant of this kind.

Diwan Chaman Lall: May I before you give your ruling on this point draw your attention to—

Mr. Deputy Speaker : There is hardly anything to give a ruling on.

Diwan Chaman Lall: The point is this. My learned friend has not dealt with the main problem, namely the difference between an excess grant and a supplementary grant. An excess grant is a grant regarding expenditure already incurred and a supplementary grant is a grant for expenditure to be incurred. This has been brought forward in regard to an expenditure which has already been incurred. Therefore it is not a supplementary grant, but it should be brought in the form of an excess grant. I refer you, Mr. Speaker, to the ruling given in the Central Legislature.

Sardar Sahib Sardar Ujjal Singh : This expenditure has not been incurred.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Thirty thousand has been incurred already.

Pandit Muni Lal Kalia : This kind of demand is only an additional demand. If you see the definition which is given in the Budget Manual of the Supplementary and Additional grants you will see that—

“A Supplementary grant is a grant voted by the Council when the amount voted in the budget of a grant is found to be insufficient for the purposes of the current year.”

In this case as a matter of fact this item was not at all mentioned in the budget, and it should have been an additional grant. The definition of additional grant is—

“Additional Grant is a grant voted by the Council when a need arises during the current year for expenditure for which the vote of the Council is necessary upon some new service not contemplated in the budget for that year.”

My submission is that as has been explained by Mr. Manohar Lal in this case, the explanation in the Memorandum is not sufficient and does not show at what time the application was made by the company for the contract to be included and what were the terms in regard to the contract. I do not know for what reasons that information has been withheld from the House. Any other name than the supplementary grant should have been given to it.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : Considering the circumstances in which the supplementary demand for grant has been asked the demand is perfectly in order. ("Hear, hear" from Ministerial benches).

Diwan Chaman Lall : I wish to oppose the demand both from the legal point of view and on merits. (Interruptions). My honourable friends will exercise a little patience in regard to this matter. They are very anxious to anticipate my arguments which they have not heard. That seems to be a habit with them. The argument which I wish to advance is merely this. It is a very illegal thing that my honourable friends have done in regard to bringing this demand before the House.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : So far as the legal aspect of this matter is concerned, that discussion is closed.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Deputy Speaker, I am not attacking your legal point, the legal point that you were pleased to discuss a little while ago. If you will kindly be patient and listen to my argument, you will be convinced that I am not, in any way, challenging your ruling, or questioning the validity of your ruling or discussing your ruling. What I am referring to is something quite different and that is this that there is no provision, as far as I know, of the law which enables honourable members opposite to appropriate the surplus amount in the manner in which they have done, in regard to this particular item. There are two items. One which we are called upon to pass and the other which the House has not been called upon to pass. I am referring to the procedure adopted in regard to that particular point. It is a matter of grave legal importance. What the honourable members opposite have done is this. You are perfectly right when, as far as this particular demand is concerned you have ruled that it is subject to discussion in this House and that they are perfectly within their rights in bringing this demand. What I want to draw the attention of the House to is this—

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The honourable member is not speaking to the motion. Is it a new point of order that the honourable member is raising?

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am speaking to the motion. If you will be kind enough to read the note appended to page 5 of Supplementary Estimates, you will see that I am well within my right in criticising the note appended to this demand. I cannot be prevented from expressing my opinion as to the feasibility of this note, nicety of this note, legality of this note and validity of this note. What I mean to suggest at the present moment is this. I will read it to you. It says—

"The Steel and General Mills Co., Ltd.—"

I think this Company is owned by my friend sitting on my left (Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang).

Minister for Finance : Is it owned by him?

Diwan Chaman Lall : At any rate he is controlling it.

"—Lahore have applied for power at 11,000 volts to supply their works, situated about two miles from the Shalamar Receiving Station. The Mill consists of an electric furnace, rolling mills and workshops and is capable of an output of 25 tons of finished steel per day.

The connected load will be 1,800 kw. with a maximum demand of 1,500 kw. The annual revenue has been estimated at Rs. 1,29,312 yielding a net return of Rs. 1,20,474 to the Hydro-Electric Scheme."

This is the important portion to which I would draw your attention.

"The Company having completed the installation of their plant were anxious for a supply of energy as early as possible; and in order to avoid their plant lying idle and also to earn revenue for the Hydro-Electric Scheme, an expenditure of Rs. 5,000 was authorized by His Excellency the Governor for the first four months of the year.—"

Perfectly correct. His Excellency the Governor was within his right to do so.

"This sum, with Rs. 25,000, which was found from savings in the 4 months' figures.—"

Minister for Finance : May I inform the honourable member that this refers to 1937-38? It does not refer to the previous year.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the sum of Rs. 25,000 refer to previous year? The point to which I am coming is contained in the last paragraph—

"This sum, with Rs. 25,000, which was found from savings in the 4 months figures, has been utilized to give a temporary connection to the Mills. The Works will now be made permanent and an additional expenditure of Rs. 38,300 is required."

Minister for Finance : It is all for current year.

Diwan Chaman Lall : True. The point is this. The sum of Rs. 25,000 that has been saved has been spent before the Government has asked for this demand.

Minister for Finance : By the time that the Government was able to come to a decision that we might supply energy to this Company, which will cost us so much, certain amount had to be spent immediately after the budget, but still within the 4 months' period, for which under the Government of India Act and the transitory rules it is for the Governor to sanction the amount for 4 months. It is out of that amount sanctioned by the Governor that Rs. 5,000 were actually spent. The further Rs. 25,000 the department proposes to spend out of savings within the first four months of 1937-38 and therefore they are asking for so much less. It is nothing spent last year. It relates to the current year, and expenditure has not been made yet.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I take it that the decision is that Rs. 5,000 sanctioned by the Governor was the only sum spent and no more has been spent up to to-day.

Minister for Finance : Yes. The total so sanctioned was Rs. 5,000. Rs. 25,000 is to be met from savings during the first quarter of the current year.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Up till to-day at 40 minutes past 2 o'clock, not more than 5 thousand has been spent in regard to this matter. If this is the position I have nothing to say in regard to this particular legal aspect of the question except to draw the attention of the honourable members on the Treasury benches to the procedure that is adopted in regard to surplus amount, knowing that in future no such procedure should be adopted by them, that is, appropriating certain amounts without any definite intimation given to the House regarding the purpose for which that surplus amount is to be utilised. Ordinary checks for the expenditure of this money available in other Parliaments, are not available to us here in this House. There are no such ways and means committees or finance committees here which can go into this matter. All these checks are not available here.

[D. Chaman Lall.

I do submit that the greatest care has to be exercised by the Finance Department in appropriating certain amounts which may be excess amount from a department for certain specific purposes which are not mentioned before the House either at the budget time or before or after.

Premier: Sir, I am afraid there is much confusion over the technicalities of this demand, and I am not surprised because of technical procedural formalities. My honourable friend opposite is confusing excess vote with supplementary demands. If he had appreciated the difference between the two, I am sure he would not have taken the time of the House, as it is clear from the note that Rs. 25,000 had been spent on temporary installation out of the savings already realised in the current year. The whole permanent installation will cost altogether Rs. 68,000. So Rs. 38,000 more is required. Rs. 25,000 has been found from the savings on the working of Hydro-Electric Scheme in 1937-38 and for the first 4 months an extra Rs. 5,000 has been sanctioned by the Governor. Very likely, when the department concerned put forward their proposal for expenditure on temporary lines, they must have said: We have so much money in our budget for certain purposes, we can perhaps avoid spending money on such and such proposals till next year or till later and therefore, we can appropriate that particular amount of Rs. 25,000 and if we are given Rs. 5,000 more during these 4 months, we will be able to start this scheme, though the cost of the whole scheme would eventually be Rs. 68,000 and therefore we have to ask this House for an additional Rs. 38,000 before the project can be completed. It is for that reason that we have come forward to ask the House to grant the extra Rs. 38,000. That 30,000 has been found from their own budget not from outside. The sanction of this House for this Rs. 38,000 is necessary and we have come up to the House for it, and my honourable friend has no occasion to challenge the action of the Government or the Finance Department. Rs. 30,000 have been spent with the approval of the Government by the department concerned out of its own budget. Twenty-five thousand rupees were provided out of the savings in their budget in the first quarter, and Rs. 5,000 was sanctioned by His Excellency the Governor under his special powers. For the remaining Rs. 38,000, which we have to spend, we have to come to the House. That is the position put in a nutshell, and I hope it will be now easily understood. An excess demand is a demand which relates to the previous year. If the amount sanctioned in any year by this House is exceeded then we have to come to the House with an excess demand. If we do not exceed that demand it is not necessary for us to come to this House. That question of an excess demand does not arise here. The total amount hitherto provided is out of the current year's sanctioned budget and we have come up with a supplementary demand for what cannot be so provided.

Mr. Deputy Speaker: The question is—

That a supplementary sum not exceeding Rs. 38,300 be granted to the Governor to defray the charges that will come in course of payment for the year ending 31st March, 1938, in respect of capital outlay on Hydro-Electric Schemes.

The motion was carried.

The Assembly then adjourned till 11 A.M., on Tuesday, 20th July, 1937.

ELECTORAL ROLLS OF MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, RUPAR.

581. Pandit Shri Ram Sharma : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that on a resolution passed by the Municipal Committee, Rupar, drawing therein the attention of the Deputy Commissioner, Ambala, to the general complaint of the public in regard to the electoral rolls prepared in connection with the ensuing elections to the said Committee, the Tahsildar, Rupar, was directed to check these electoral rolls ;
- (b) whether it is also a fact that on checking these rolls for many days the said Tahsildar found many important names missing from these ; if so, the reasons for the omission ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) A resolution on the subject was passed by the Committee, but it was not forwarded to the Deputy Commissioner as it should have been. The resolution came to the Deputy Commissioner's notice in the proceedings of the Committee as all such proceedings have to be submitted to him. As the aggrieved persons could file claims and objections the Deputy Commissioner did not take any action in the matter nor did he issue any orders to the Tahsildar.

- (b) Does not arise.

- (g) the copies of the list of voters who applied for minor corrections in the electoral rolls with their names and addresses and also the dates fixed for hearing such applications ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : It is not in the public interest to collect this information which would involve a considerable amount of labour. Some of the documents required can be seen free of charge in Municipal Committee office and others obtained on payment from the Deputy Commissioner's or Sub-Divisional Officer's office.

Lala Duni Chand : The question deals with the request regarding certain documents being placed on the table. So, what objection is there to the putting of these documents on the table ?

Minister : My reply is clear, Sir.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Has the Honourable Minister satisfied himself about these documents ?

Minister : I have stated that the documents can be obtained on payment from the Divisional Officer's or Sub-Divisional Officer's offices.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : Is it not necessary to bring them to the notice of the Government ?

Minister : The honourable member can buy them and satisfy himself.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I know whether the Honourable Minister has read this question and whether it is a fact that he cannot buy the documents mentioned in part (c) of the question ?

Minister : You can see them free of charge in the municipal office.

Pandit Shri Ram Sharma (Urdu) : What difficulty is confronting the Government? What particular public interest is involved therein?

Minister : It involves a considerable amount of labour for nothing.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Minister as to what considerable amount of labour is involved by merely writing a letter to the authorities concerned? You can get all the documents and place them here.

Minister : Why does not the honourable member himself adopt that course? (Hear, hear.)

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I draw the attention of the Honourable Minister to the fact that 175 members would be waiting to do the same and the method suggested by me is more expeditious? Is this a fact?

(No answer.)

BORING CHARGES.

(a) the reasons which necessitated the re-introduction of overhead charges at the rate of annas 12 per foot for the boring done by the Boring department in the wells of the zamindars ;

(b) whether the Government is prepared to reconsider its decision ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : (a) Overhead charges have not been levied on unsuccessful borings since the middle of 1935. Towards the end of 1935, Government placed at the disposal of the Agricultural Department a sum of approximately Rs. 25,000 to defray the boring charges on successful bores, with the proviso that the owners of wells should be relieved thereby from paying the overhead charges for two years or until the grant had been exhausted. This grant allowed overhead charges to be foregone from the beginning of November, 1935, to the end of April, 1937. Since then, therefore, boring charges have had to be paid by the owners of the wells.

(b) The provision of a further sum for the purpose is even now under consideration.

Mr. Speaker : What is that reply ?

Lala Duni Chand : The reply says that certain cases are pending and some cases have been decided. This is the reply.

Mr. Speaker : Will the honourable member's question really elucidate further information if it is answered ? Facts stated in answer to a question have to be elucidated further ; that is the object of a supplementary question.

Lala Duni Chand : The Honourable the Premier admitted that certain cases are still pending against the sub-inspector. He admits this fact. Now the question arises whether charges have been framed in some of those pending cases or not.

Mr. Speaker : Had the honourable member's question related to charges, he would have been welcome to ask it. The question whether the sub-inspector has been suspended, pending trial of cases in which he has been charged, does not arise out of the answer given.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister please issue instructions that before anybody who is related to any officer is appointed in the committee reference should be made to the head of the department?

FRUIT ORCHARDS IN CATCHMENT AREA AT PETTI (SIMLA).

621. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state:—

- (a) whether it is a fact that fine and extensive fruit orchards situated in the catchment area at Petti, Plang Plangir and Seo in Simla district were destroyed, under the orders of Mr. Gipson several years ago, on sanitary grounds;
- (b) whether it is also a fact that the present Engineer, Water Works, Simla, has got fresh orchards planted in the same catchment area at Cherot, Seog and Chauki No. A and, for this purpose, has obtained from abroad plants worth about Rs. 500; if so, the reasons for the same?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes. The plants were destroyed many years ago mainly because they had contracted a disease which would have spread to private orchards.

(b) No plants have been planted at Cherot. Chauki No. A cannot be identified. At Seog a dozen apple and other fruit trees were planted in front of the Rest House. It is outside the area from which water is collected though within the jurisdiction of the catchment area. The total cost of fruit trees recently put in the catchment area amounts only to Rs. 84. The plants were obtained from abroad with the Committee's sanction in the interest of aesthetic amenities and the fact that fruit trees are just like other trees as water-breaks.

Lala Duni Chand : Two years ago certain orchards were considered to be dangerous to the health of the area. Will the Honourable Minister please explain why an orchard of the same kind has been planted now? Is it not regarded as unhealthy now?

Minister : I am afraid the honourable member has not followed my reply. The trees that were uprooted were diseased, but the ones that are now planted are fresh ones.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it not a fact that the entire orchard was destroyed?

Minister : Yes, because the trees were diseased.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it not a fact that an orchard on an extensive area existed there some years ago? That entire orchard was removed.

Minister : Not at all. The trees that were diseased were considered dangerous as the disease might spread to private orchards. Only the diseased trees were destroyed and not all trees in the area.

PREFERENCE TO OUTSIDERS IN MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, SIMLA.

622. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in the matter of appointments to the various posts under the Municipal Committee, Simla, no preference is given to the local and provincial claims contrary to the policy of the Committee as expressed in a resolution on the municipal records on the subject ; if so, the steps if any, that the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : The resolution giving preference to local and provincial claims was passed by the Committee only on 16th June, 1937.

The latter part of the question does not arise.

Lala Duni Chand : Is the resolution of the Municipal Committee being given effect to ?

Minister : It was passed only on the 16th of last month. It is being given effect to and will be given effect to.

ENGINEER, WATER WORKS, SIMLA.

623. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (b) whether the present Engineer, Water Works Department, also discharges the duty that his predecessors used to discharge ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) No ; except once when the then Engineer, Water Works and Drainage, took charge of a pumping station and that at a season when very little pumping was done.

(b) The necessity of the present Engineer to take charge of a station has never arisen.

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH LABORATORY, SHAHDARA.

624. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state—

- (a) the period for which the Industrial Research Laboratory, Shahdara, has been in existence ;
- (b) the scope of its work ;
- (c) industries, if any, the said laboratory has fostered or helped ;

[L. Duni Chand.]

- (d) whether it is a fact that the working of the said laboratory has been adversely commented upon in the Press as being a costly affair without being of any good to the province ; if so, the steps that the Government proposes to take to meet these charges ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : (a) The Industrial Research Laboratory has been in existence since 18th November, 1931.

(b) The scope of work of the Laboratory includes—

- (i) research into raw materials with a view to their economic exploitation and industrial utilisation ;
- (ii) experimental work to help the existing industries and to solve problems concerning manufactures referred to it by industrialists ;
- (iii) analytical work on behalf of the public and Government departments, and
- (iv) technical advice and assistance to Government departments and the public.

Subject to accommodation being available, the Laboratory takes in a few students for training in chemical industries.

(c) The research work done by the Laboratory has been instrumental in the establishment of the industries mentioned below—

- (i) Sand paper manufacture (Universal Sand Paper Mills, Rawalpindi).
- (ii) Starch (Eastern Products Company, Batala).
- (iii) Paint and varnish manufacture (Ravi Paints and Varnish Works, Shahdara).
- (iv) Pottery (Punjab Pottery Works Limited, Jhelum).
- (v) Artificial slates and pencils (Punchnad Pen Factory, Shahdara).
- (vi) Capsuling cement and thinner manufacture (Amritsar Distillery Limited, Amritsar).

In addition to the above as a result of the experimental work done at the Laboratory and the advice tendered by the Industrial Chemist, the following industries have been set up in the province :—

- (1) Absorbent Cotton and Antiseptic Dressing Company, Limited, Amritsar.
- (2) Punjab Celluloid Works, Ichhra, Lahore.
- (3) Modern Industries, Amritsar.
- (4) Miscellaneous Chemical Industries, viz., disinfectants toilet goods, oil refining, soap manufacture, ink and other articles of stationery.

(d) Articles have appeared in the Press both for and against the Laboratory. Government considers that it is the work of certain interested persons to get the articles against the Laboratory published in the Press. More responsible bodies and industrialists have actually expressed appreciation of the valuable work done by the Laboratory. For instance in the Civil and Military Gazette, dated the 27th May, 1937, there appeared an article under the signature of Sardar Sahib Sardar Sampuran Singh, Chawla, President, Northern India Chamber of Commerce, in which he has praised the work of the Laboratory. The Assistant Secretary of the Indian Chamber of Commerce and Khan Bahadur Sardar Habib Ullah, President, Indian Chamber of Commerce, have also written in terms of praise of the work of the Laboratory in the Civil and Military Gazette during the last month.

It will interest the honourable member to know that the Leader of the Opposition Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava paid a visit to the Industrial Institution, Shahdara, recently and published his impressions in the Tribune, dated the 18th June, 1937, wherein he has in particular expressed his appreciation of the useful work which is being done by the Industrial Research Laboratory.

The Industrial Research Laboratory has been placed on a permanent footing by the Punjab Government in response to the demand from the public. The Indian Chamber of Commerce, in its letter, dated the 17th June, 1936, stated that "although this institution has very limited resources at its disposal, it has succeeded in a fair measure in stimulating the industrial tone of the province, and for these reasons my Committee feel concerned that at the threshold of new reforms in which the economic and industrial development of the country will be given a very prominent place, Government should not only make the institution permanent but also expand it to meet the every day increasing need of the province."

The Northern India Chamber of Commerce in their letter, dated the 20th June, 1936, stated that "in view of the undoubted value of the Laboratory to the industrial public of the province, this Chamber is of the unanimous opinion that the Laboratory should now be established on a permanent basis."

Certain prominent industrialists of the province have also written to the Punjab Government acknowledging the valuable assistance received by them from the Laboratory and the Industrial Chemist.

The Punjab Government is satisfied that the Industrial Research Laboratory is doing valuable work and is meeting a genuine public demand.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it a fact that a number of experts in industries have expressed their dissatisfaction, in the Press, about the working of the Industrial Research Laboratory?

Minister : My reply is very clear on this point.

Lala Duni Chand : If the reply of the Honourable Minister is clear and this Laboratory is doing very useful work as has been detailed in his reply, why is it that there is a great cry in the Press against this Laboratory?

Minister : It is not for me to explain that cry.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is there a great cry?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : On the other hand, there is genuine satisfaction with its work.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : The Honourable Minister has been pleased to say that it is some interested persons who are responsible for the criticism against this Laboratory. Is the interest of those persons personal?

Minister : Yes, personal.

NOMINATION OF A SIKH TO THE MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, SIMLA.

*625. Sardar Partab Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether the Government is aware that long before the nominations to the Simla Municipal Committee were gazetted all the Sikh organizations of Simla passed resolutions urging the necessity of a Sikh being nominated to it ;
- (b) whether the Government is also aware that in 1933 or so similar resolutions were passed and representations made to the Ministry of Local Self-Government without any effect ;
- (c) whether the Government is further aware that comments were published in the Jakko, a quarterly organ of the Khalsa Young Men's Association, Simla, in April, 1937, on the same subject ;
- (d) whether the Government is further aware that an additional seat was created on the Simla Municipal Committee, if so, the circumstances requiring an addition of another seat to the total number of seats of the Simla Municipality ;
- (e) why a Sikh was not nominated to this seat and why it was reserved for the Hindu community ;
- (f) whether the Government is aware that this additional seat is still there and in spite of the demand of the Sikhs of Simla, a Hindu has been re-nominated ;
- (g) the reasons why no seat was reserved for a Sikh on the Simla Municipal Committee at the time of the recent elections or at the time of the last nominations ;
- (h) whether the Government is aware that the Sikh public have interests in the Simla Municipality which require to be safeguarded ;
- (i) if the answer to (h) above be in the affirmative, whether Government propose to take any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes. A few representations from Sikh Associations were received.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes. The additional seat was created with a view to adjusting the proportion between Muslims and non-Muslims.

(e), (f), (g) and (h) As the Sikhs are not entitled to a seat on the Committee according to the population and voting strength formula no seat has been reserved for them by nomination. In all there are 8 non-official seats on the Committee out of which Muslims are entitled to 2 seats and the Hindus and others to 6 seats. There is, however, no bar to a Sikh being elected on the Committee as there is joint electorate in the Simla Municipality.

(i) The present Government is not responsible for the nomination made last year, but they see no reason to upset the arrangements made by their predecessors.

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : What is the total number of Sikh voters in the Simla Municipal Committee?

Minister : They are in small numbers and are not entitled to a seat.

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : What is the total number? Is it not less than even a hundred?

Minister : The honourable member might consult the electoral roll.

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : Will the Honourable Minister enquire if it is not less than a hundred and almost negligible?

Minister : They are not entitled to a seat but for the exact number the honourable member might consult the electoral roll.

MISCONDUCT OF CERTAIN EMPLOYEES OF GOVERNMENT PRESS, PUNJAB.

(b) the action, if any, taken on that representation;

(c) if no action has so far been taken thereon, reasons for the same?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The General Secretary of the Union forwarded a copy of some resolutions of a meeting of its executive committee in which some of the press-workers expressed opinions about other press-workers. It may be noted that there have been representations and counter representations submitted to Government and some have also been printed in the Press, cuttings of which have often been sent without authentications.

(b) and (c) The resolutions being expressions of opinions, no action was needed.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Did the Honourable Minister receive a representation from non-Muslim employees of the Press, I mean Hindus and Sikhs?

Minister : Possibly yes.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : What action did he take?

Minister : It was expression of an opinion. No action was, therefore, needed.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Did they not make a complaint that they were not properly treated by the Superintendent, or their immediate officer?

Minister : They had started a new union which has not been recognised. Their complaints would be attended to if they make their complaints through a duly recognised union.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does it mean that unless the employees constitute themselves into a union their grievances cannot be considered? Is there any rule on that point?

Minister : Complaints are considered if they come through proper channel.

HINDUSTANI SEWA DAL.

627. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(b) if the answer to (a) above be in the affirmative, whether the Government proposes to remove this ban; if so, when?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) The question of lifting the ban on such associations is periodically examined by Government and the question of removal of the ban against the association named by the honourable member will be reconsidered in due course.

Lala Duni Chand : In view of the situation that has been created in the country by orders of amnesty and removal of bans on such associations by the United Provinces Government, probably the Premier will take that fact into consideration and change his views with regard to these bans. Probably the Honourable Premier has read this morning's papers. It is on that assumption that I am putting the question.

Premier : I have not seen the papers.

Lala Duni Chand : I may inform the Honourable Premier that the United Provinces Government has released all political prisoners (Voices: Question) and has removed bans from all such associations. Will the Honourable Premier, in view of the information that I have given to him, change his attitude?

Premier : I am not aware what commitments the United Provinces Government has made.

Mr. E. Few : Are we slavishly going to follow the policy of other provinces?

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask the Honourable Premier as to what he means by the expression "due course"?

Minister : I may explain further for the information of the honourable member that a notification has appeared in the Punjab Gazette republishing the resolution of the Government of India reserving 19 posts plus 4 leave reserves for the I. M. S. In addition it is stated that measures would be taken to protect the prospects of the I. M. S. officers already in civil employ, namely officers already in civil employ will be given further rights to certain additional posts. The rules giving effect to this have not yet been published and we are awaiting them.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : By what time is it expected that the rules shall be received and the Punjab Government shall reduce the number ?

Minister : It is impossible for me to say when they will be received, but I hope there will be no unnecessary delay.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister write to the Secretary of State to expedite the matter to effect a saving ?

Minister : If they are delayed abnormally, I may write but for the present there is no occasion to write.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister please state whether the Punjab Government have taken this decision of the Secretary of State without any protest ?

Minister : The decision is not yet final.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) The incendiarism was reported at the police Station several days after the occurrence. The Superintendent of police, Gurjat, visited the spot and a case under section 496, Indian Penal Code, was registered. The accused named by the complainant absconded, and action under sections 87 and 512, Criminal Procedure Code, was taken against them. No further action was, however, taken as a compromise was reached between the Muhammadans and the Sikhs. The damaged door of the gurdwara was repaired by the Muhammadan residents of the village who also agreed to give some land to the Sikhs to widen a lane leading to the gurdwara.

ALLEGATIONS AGAINST THE DEBT CONCILIATION BOARD, JHANG.

667. Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : (a) Will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to lay on the table of the Assembly the report submitted by the officer who held the inquiry into the allegations made by the Hindu Sahayak Sabha of Jhang against the Debt Conciliation Board of Jhang together with the explanation, if any, submitted by the Board or any member of the Board? If not, will he kindly state the reasons for withholding these documents from the Assembly;

(b) If the documents are withheld, will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to state—

- (i) by whom the inquiry referred to by him in his speech on the 25th June, 1937, was held;
- (ii) whether the Hindu Sahayak Sabha of Jhang was represented at the inquiry;
- (iii) whether any of the parties referred to in the instances given by the Hindu Sahayak Sabha were represented at the inquiry; if so, which?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : The booklet published by the Hindu Sahayak Sabha was examined in the Secretariat, but was not itself made the subject of an inquiry. As was explained in my reply to question *98¹, put by the honourable member for Lahore City (General) Constituency, Government had already made inquiries, through the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner, in connection with several complaints of the same kind as those in the booklet. The result of those inquiries satisfied them that the allegations in the booklet were not well founded.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Will the Honourable the Premier please state whether he is prepared to place the report of the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner on the table of the House? That is one of the questions to which no answer has been given.

Premier : If the honourable member wants to see the letter of the Commissioner, I would be glad to show it to him, but I do not think that it would be in public interest to start a practice which has not been hitherto adopted in this House.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Does the Honourable the Premier really think when a responsible body like the District Hindu Sahayak Sabha of a district publishes a pamphlet, and particularly when that part of the district which is directly concerned is passing resolutions all over and challenging the Premier's statement regarding the inaccuracy of the statements made in that pamphlet and is challenging him to prosecute them for having repeated those statements in public meetings, that it is not in public interest to let this House know what the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner has said in regard to these allegations?

Premier : I have not quite followed what the question of my honourable friend is, but I might inform him that originally these complaints were received at the time when my honourable friend was a member of the Government (hear, hear from Ministerial benches). If he wanted to elucidate these facts he was at liberty to have done so by calling the file from his colleague, but he did not do so. I am afraid I am not prepared to place on the table the correspondence between the local officials and the Government, but as I have already stated in this House, the allegations in this pamphlet were also made separately by separate representations by individuals who also happen to be members of this Sahayak Sabha. As to its being a responsible body or not, it is a matter of opinion and I have no information whether it is a responsible body or not. My own view is that it is not. However, if the honourable member wants to see the letter of the Commissioner, in which he recommended prosecution of one of these complainants, I shall be glad to show it to him. I will also for his satisfaction and the satisfaction of the gentlemen concerned, tell him that Government has decided not to prosecute them.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is he sure that this pamphlet was in existence when I was a member of the Government? I am sorry he has referred to it. Is the Honourable the Premier sure that this pamphlet had been published before 31st of March, 1937?

Premier : I am not aware whether that pamphlet was actually published or not, but I know it for a fact that the complaints which have been repeated in the pamphlet were made when my honourable friend was a member of the Government (hear, hear from Ministerial benches).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Is the Honourable the Premier aware and is he really sure that no action was taken by me? As a matter of fact action was taken by me, but satisfactory action was not taken by the section of the Government concerned. He should not have referred to that matter.

Mr. E. Few : Is the honourable member making a speech or asking a question?

Premier : I know it for a fact that the Leader of the Progressive Party (Raja Narendra Nath) saw one of my ex-colleagues, Sir Donald Boyd and represented to him the case of the Jhang Hindus, and I know what reply Sir Donald Boyd gave. If my honourable friend had also brought pressure on him, I am sure he would have mentioned it before now.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : How does the Honourable Member know?

Mr. Speaker : I will not allow a dialogue between members.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: It is not a dialogue. What authority has the Honourable Premier to make a statement which means a reflection upon me that I did not take any action in the matter? I may tell him for his information that I did approach Sir Donald Boyd and asked him to take action in the matter.

Premier: Then, what happened?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: You know what happened. I was not there then.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar: In view of the fact that the Hindu Sabha were not associated with the inquiry and were not given an opportunity of being present at the inquiry and in view of the great public agitation that is going on in Jhang district after the observations made by the Premier, have the Government any intention of allowing the Hindu Sahayak Sabha to make a representation with a view to place their case before the Government?

Premier: I may inform my honourable friend that the inquiry was not a judicial inquiry. It was a departmental inquiry; and any further representation they may have to make will also be considered. They have already been bombarding us with representations.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar: Will the Honourable the Premier receive a deputation?

Mr. Speaker: That is not a question.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: The Honourable the Premier has been pleased to say that he had the pamphlet examined in the Secretariat. Was any party either concerned in the publication of the pamphlet or its preparation given any opportunity of being present at the time?

Premier: My honourable friend ought to know that it is not the practice in the Secretariat to have parties concerned present when a document is examined.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: Did the Secretariat make any report on this pamphlet?

Premier: The complaints were passed on to the Secretariat.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: Did any Secretary concerned or any officer make any report?

Premier: The honourable member is aware, as he himself has been a member of the Government that it is not necessary to draw up a formal report; there is noting on the files and the noting clearly indicated what the nature of the complaints were and how far they were well-founded or not.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: If there was nobody from the other side to represent the case, how did the officers in the Secretariat come to know of the facts?

Premier: Enquiries were made through the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner regarding similar complaints which had been received.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang: Received previously?

Premier: Yes.

RESOLUTION.

RELEASE OF POLITICAL PRISONERS AND DETENUES.

Mr. Speaker : Now the Assembly will resume discussion on the resolution moved by Lala Deshbandhu Gupta. It runs
12 NOON. as follows :—

This Assembly recommends to the Government that all political prisoners and detenues (including Martial Law and Lahore Conspiracy case prisoners) be forthwith released and that restrictions imposed by the Government on free movement of all political workers in the Punjab be immediately withdrawn.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood (Amritsar, Muhammadan, Rural) : Mr. Speaker, you might remember that when I was addressing the House last time on this resolution, I submitted that though in the category of political prisoners in India, there would have, at times, been great patriots and conscientious gentlemen, my honourable friend the mover of the resolution, had been a bit rash in distributing his epithets of "jewels" and "patriots" indiscriminately to the political prisoners in the Punjab jails to-day. I may point out, that we have in the Punjab jails to-day 68 prisoners who are labelled as political prisoners. With the exception of 7 all of them have been convicted or are there for offences of violence, for murders, for conspiracies to murders, for bomb making and matters of that nature. I put a pointed question to the supporters of the resolution as to whether they want wholesale release of those prisoners (Voices : Yes, yes) or whether they want limited release of those prisoners who have not been convicted of violence. My honourable friend—I am only recapitulating what happened that day—the mover of the resolution said very clearly that so far as he was concerned he did not ask for any grace or amnesty from the Government, but he demanded wholesale release of all political prisoners, that is, what the resolution reads. Even before he had finished his sentence, my honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall, with his usual subtle intellect and effervescent brilliance, sprang up and said, why do you assume that the resolution or the words "political prisoners" is intended to include those gentlemen? In this dilemma of conflicting opinion we were left to find our own solution. But a little later, an important paper of the Punjab, a paper which was founded by a great Punjabee patriot with the purpose of serving the interests of the Punjab, above all personal and party attacks, and the paper which, but for a few lapses, has done really constructive service to the Punjab—I am referring to the Tribune—but a paper which of late unfortunately has associated itself openly with the party in Opposition, and has refused to believe that we can at any time talk what is sense—(Voices : Mr. Manohar Lal's paper) that paper in a leading article on the release of political prisoners says :—

"The argument that the prisoners, whose release was demanded by the mover of the resolution, included persons convicted of dacoity and other offences of violence against person and property, involved an obvious fallacy. It was amply met by Diwan Chaman Lall, who pointed out that there was nothing to show that in urging the release of "political prisoners" the mover of the resolution was urging the release of these prisoners...."

Personal liberty might be limited to those who were not convicted of violence. The article goes on :—

"Congressmen, who are pledged to non-violence, are not likely to resent this definition of political prisoners."

Sardar Ajit Singh (Urdu): On a point of information. Is not the Tribune a Unionist paper?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood: I am not prepared to give way at this stage, but any interruptions later, I shall be prepared to meet. In the whole of this article in this important paper, I am sorry to find that there is not a single sentence to the effect that the resolution, moved by my honourable friend, had been very widely worded. Apart from that, the point which I wish to make is this that we are left again in a dilemma. I would appeal and pointedly request all the speakers in favour of the resolution to make the position clear whether they want wholesale release of political prisoners? (Voices: Yes.) My honourable friends say that they want wholesale release of political prisoners. I will deal with the resolution as such.

Now, Sir, the first submission that I would like to make is this that if I or any other member on this side of the House had to ask the Honourable Premier to take the keys at once of all the jails and open the jails and let loose all the political prisoners and others in the Punjab—

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh: Heaven would not fall.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood: The proposition that all the prisoners in Punjab jails should be let loose, political and others, murderers and assassins whose merciless acts had parted husbands and wives (Interruptions), whose unscrupulous deeds had wrenched sucking babies from their mothers and whose ferocious acts and rapacious passions have no respect for the modesty of ladies, I was saying that if I had to put the proposition to the Honourable Premier that all such political prisoners in the Punjab jails should be let loose, I am sure the honourable members opposite would have got up and said 'what is he talking? He is talking absurd, preposterous, impracticable and unpatriotic things.' I would submit with due deference, without taking the proposition to a logical conclusion, that they are not demanding anything less impertinent than that. It is a recognised principle of jurisprudence that so far as the criminal law is concerned, the law is no respecter of methods, whether the offence is against an individual or against the State. The moment a political prisoner lays his hands on the person or property of an individual, I submit, he becomes guilty of an offence against both the State and the individual. That being the position, I submit that the claim of my honourable friend is very irresponsible, and when I use that expression I am surprised at my own moderation. ("Hear, hear" from the Opposition benches).

[Mir Maqbool Mahmood.]

What do we find in the proceedings to which my honourable friend has referred? The resolution was moved by Maulvi Muhammad Shafee, in clause (b) of which he asked for release of political prisoners, violent and non-violent, but that was not an unconditional release. He asked for a committee consisting of two members elected by the House and two members nominated by the Government and they were to report on the release of prisoners. Even that recommendation was thrown out by the Assembly and the only limited amendment of Mr. Goswami was accepted, in which he only asked for release of those prisoners who had not been put on their trial. I was particularly impressed by a certain statement made in the course of that debate. My honourable friend, the Deputy Leader of the Opposition, at that time made excursion into condemned fields of irresponsible talking. He has at times flown into arid fields. But when better sense prevails he asks that political prisoners of all shades be released. He said :

“ I admit that clause (b) of the resolution might not at once be applied to some prisoners; it may not be possible for the Government to give the benefit of part (b) of the resolution to certain classes of prisoners; but at the same time it will be a very proper thing and it will be a very just thing on the part of the Government to give the benefit of this clause to another class of persons. Supposing there is a dacoity case with the result that certain people are held guilty of murders and other serious offences. I would not ask the Government to give them the benefit—

I hope, Sir, that if we have to go to the lobby on this resolution, my honourable friend, the Deputy Leader of the Opposition will also go with us in the same lobby. (A voice: Quote the year.) It was in 1926. Well, Sir, I take my honourable friend to another debate in 1927. A similar resolution was moved by Mr. Jogiah for the release of all Bengal prisoners. That resolution was not even voted by the Assembly. An amendment was moved not by any bureaucratic member, not by the liberals or others on the Treasury benches but by the distinguished father of the distinguished President of the distinguished National Congress, than whom there is no greater patriot, Pandit Moti Lal Nehru (hear, hear and applause) and the amendment was to the effect that persons should be put either on trial or be released.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Does the honourable member accept that proposition?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I will deal with that presently. If the honourable member is patient enough he will get the reply. Now it is said that this was 11 years ago. It is said, what about the Congress? What about the work of the Congress Ministries? With regard to that I would like to make three submissions. The first is that the temperament, the problem of the Punjab is different from that of the provinces. We have seen that in dealing with the history of crime, in the incidence of crime, in the types of crime, the Punjab is very different from other provinces. (Honourable members: Question.) (An honourable member: More virile.)

Secondly, it is not fair in these matters to draw an analogy between the Congress policy and our policy.

Diwan Chaman Lall : You have got no policy.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : It is certainly as natural that the Congress should let loose these subversive forces as part of their programme as it is natural and reasonable for us according to the mandate of our electorate not to let loose these subversive forces.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Why did you release martial law prisoners ?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : My honourable friend makes a grievance of a concession. (An honourable member : No). I am aware, however, that it is a recognised principle—

Diwan Chaman Lall : You have got no principle. Your principle is that there is no principle.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : It is well known that when offences are committed in a grave emergency and people lose their own control and there is an abnormal system of law, martial law, the case should be treated differently from other cases. (Hear, hear.) But I will come to that. With regard to the Congress I would submit with due deference to my honourable friends that unless all experience is a cheat and history is a lie, they should wait and see as to what follows in the Congress provinces. I am apt to find, despite all opinions in the papers, that in between the lines of the Congress resolutions, behind all the clap-trap that one hears in the statements of responsible leaders, in the assurances they have given to the electorate, there is an indication that at some stage or other in some form or other, they are entering into some form of constructive programme in their own provinces. When the time comes they will have to do what other similar authorities had to do. In Ireland, in Germany, in Russia, what has happened ? Remember in Ireland within three minutes of his taking office the first order that DeValera gave was to release all political prisoners and within three months he started putting men again into prison and within one year 12,000 persons without trial were in jail.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Where did the honourable member get the figures from ?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I hope and pray that the Congress may not have to repeat that story. But even then the members opposite may say that what the Congress is doing is of course in order to make provinces safe for democracy just as what we are doing is in order to strengthen democracy. But I would in all sincerity pray that the Congress will apply to constructive work in the provinces as we are trying to do here.

Now one word with regard to non-violence. Diwan Chaman Lall said, do you accept Mr. Jinnah's proposition ? Do you accept his policy ? Those of my honourable friends who want that persons convicted of violence, violent offences, should not be released but only those who have committed non-violent offences should be released, for their benefit I would make two statements. Firstly, that out of the whole list of our political prisoners there are only seven who have been convicted for offences not connected with violence and each one of them had been convicted, after a regular trial by an open court, of sedition. But even with regard to these I would make an honest and sincere appeal to the Honourable Premier....

Diwan Chaman Lall : Already pre-arranged.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Though he is temperamentally averse to the sort of head lines in the Press, I would appeal to the Honourable Premier, when he had the courage to release martial law prisoners, in a sort of constructive way, that he should consider sympathetically the cases of these seven men. There are only seven persons in all in our prisons to-day and even these seven men came to us as a legacy from the Government of India and with regard to these seven men I would appeal to the Honourable Premier that the same hand which could sympathetically consider the case of martial law prisoners and release them, should also consider these cases in the same spirit. I would not be satisfied with anybody else, but he should himself go into their cases and if they can be released, they should be released; if they can be put on trial safely consistent with public security they should be put on trial. Otherwise I appeal with all sincerity to dispose of them as he deems fit.

One word more and I have done. I am sure, as I indicated the other day, that it is not pleasant for any Government and particularly Government speaking with a will of the majority of the people, to have to keep their countrymen behind bars and I am sure nobody would be happier than the Honourable Premier and those of us on this side if an atmosphere is evolved under which it may be possible to release all these prisoners of this nature. But if they feel otherwise it is the duty of any Government to stand up and do their duty and as has been remarked by no less a person than Gladstone, the real test of the fitness of the state is the capacity and the readiness of its accredited leaders to stand by the post when they have to stand by unpopular decisions. That is the test and I submit that the Honourable Premier and his Government are doing a service to the province by not going for cheap notoriety and for doing a duty which they think is their duty to perform.

Sardar Hari Singh (Kangra and Northern Hoshiarpur, Sikh, Rural) :
Sir, I beg to move—

“That in line 2 a comma be substituted for “and” occurring between the words ‘Law’ and ‘Lahore’ and the words ‘Babar Akali’ be added to between the words ‘case’ and ‘prisoners’.

Mr. Speaker, Mir Maqbool Mahmood the other day with his characteristic pyrotechnical skill, in a characteristic bureaucratic manner and in a characteristic spirit of sarcasm, contumely and contempt, referred to the Babar Akali prisoners. He said “Are these the jewels of the Punjab.”? May I retort and tell him that to the sensitive, the proud, the freedom-loving people of the Doaba these Babar Akalis are gems of the purest ray serene. (Hear, hear, and applause). He will say, why? Sir, consider the days of that non-violent peaceful Akali movement, the movement in which the people of the Doaba formed the vanguard of struggle in the early twenties, when the people of the Doaba were subjected by the cowardly and villainous police to a whole chain of tyrannies, oppression, repression, humiliations, indignities inflicted upon men, women and children. These were the people who had the courage to stand up and protest against the tyrannies of cowardly police. Sir, they say the Babar Akali prisoners were guilty of violence. They are no more guilty of violence than the martial law prisoners whom the Government have had the sense to release. If you carefully go through the files of these people you will find that the men who are still rotting as Babbar Akali prisoners in the jails were not all guilty of violence. (An honourable member : Question.) They might be guilty of abetting or harbouring.

Those people who were found guilty of murder and violence have had the rope long ago. I may also tell the Premier, who claims to be a half-Doabaite because he says he has his 'nanke' in Jullundur district (laughter), that the people of Doaba will not be appeased unless the Babar Akali prisoners are released. May I also remind him that the forefathers of the inhabitants of Greece were the people who stemmed the tide of invasion of Sikander of Greece, and our Sikander should take a leaf out of the book of Sikander of Greece.

Premier: If he comes to-day I shall be the first person to stop his progress into this province.

Sardar Hari Singh: These reforms under which the six gentlemen opposite are now occupying the Treasury benches, did not fall like manna from heaven nor are they a free and spontaneous gift from Great Britain to India. These reforms under which provincial autonomy has been set up and our friends opposite enjoy their positions of power were won by tremendous sacrifices on the part of men and women of this land. The whole history of the whole world, in particular the history of Great Britain herself, shows that liberty is not a commodity which is capable of a peaceful and painless transference. In India whatever little freedom we enjoy is the result, as I have already submitted, of big sacrifices on the part of men and women some of whom are still rotting in the Punjab jails. If this proposition is granted the solution becomes very easy. But I know there are influential men, men who count in the politics of the Punjab, who dispute this proposition. They say that the reforms came as a result of the services rendered by India to Great Britain during the Great War. An honourable Member : (Preposterous)!

Minister for Education : It is because you did not render any services.

Sardar Hari Singh : As the gentlemen opposite still cling to a preposterous claim, it needs more than a passing reference. May I, then examine and scrutinise this proposition, for a few minutes? May I tell the gentlemen opposite that the reward for war services came in quite different forms. In the first place it came in the form of the Rowlatt Act, whose very name still stinks in the nostrils of every patriotic Indian. Secondly, the reward for war services came in the form of Martial Law. Then in the third place, the reward for war services came in the shape of Jallianwala Bagh holocaust where hundreds of Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs of the Punjab sanctified their resolve to be free and united in a veritable blood-bath. (Premier : What happened to the unity two days later)? That was the reward for the war services. To those who wish to make further addition to their knowledge of war rewards, I say. 'Go to the widow or decrepit old mother of the warrior, who laid his life on the banks of Oxus or the field of Flanders, and see how she is eking out her miserable existence with a beggar's bowl in hand, begging from door to door.' If the Minister will accompany me I can show him the widows and the old mothers of the soldiers who laid down their lives during the war (Minister for Public Works : Please quote one instance). If the Minister will accompany me I can show him. To some extent the Honourable Minister is right. There were some people who had handsome rewards for their war services. They got rewards in the form of hundreds and thousands of acres of irrigated land in the colonies in lieu of their war services for supplying cannon fodder; in the form of the cream of the Punjabi youth, cannon-fodder in the form of the flower of Indian manhood.

Mr. Speaker : Will the honourable member please speak to the motion?

Sardar Hari Singh : Sir, the reforms have been achieved as a result of tremendous sacrifices on the part of the sons and daughters of India in thousands and lakhs from Tilak and Gandhi down to the humblest volunteer. (A voice : Not by the Babbar Akalies). I am speaking of the release of political prisoners which includes the release of Babbar Akali prisoners. It was these men who were beaten with lathis and who suffered baton blows (Minister for Education : With kirpans). The police has got no kirpans. They suffered fines and imprisonment and confiscation of property. Sir, the road to freedom is littered with the bones of martyrs. I maintain that the greatest land mark and the most prominent land mark on the road to liberty is the bloody, blood-stained and the blood-thirsty gallows. Liberty and freedom are not won without heavy sacrifices.

Sir, once that proposition is granted the thing becomes easy enough. Those who are occupying the Treasury benches as Ministers as the result of the sacrifices of the people who are still rotting in jails, it becomes their moral duty to release them forthwith. May I tell them that even when Bachha Saqa came into power in Afghanistan he at once released the political prisoners and among the prisoners released was one of the honourable members of this House : (Minister for Education : But why do you refer to Bachha Saqa?)

Mr. Speaker : I will request the Honourable Minister to allow the speaker to continue his speech uninterrupted.

Sardar Hari Singh : Sir, with the change in the policy of the Government in six provinces of India this question has assumed an added importance and a new significance. Even in to-day's newspapers we read that political prisoners in the United Provinces are being released, (Premier : No). We read that political prisoners are being released in the United Provinces.

Premier : The newspapers merely say "it is understood that this question is being considered by Government".

Sardar Hari Singh : The honourable gentleman may rest satisfied that the political prisoners in the United Provinces will be released in a few days' time. When political prisoners are released in two-thirds of India what justification will the Honourable gentlemen opposite give for holding in bondage the political prisoners in the Punjab. Sir, with the change of the Congress policy the chances of the revival of the civil disobedience movement and other subversive movements have almost vanished for the time being. If the political prisoners are released it will create a very good impression not only on the public mind but on the minds of the prisoners themselves. They will say, "Our kith and kin have now come into power and they have released us." And if they do not release political prisoners, as the Congress Governments in other provinces are going to do the people will say our Government is just like the old Government. It is the bureaucratic Government. There is no change in the Government in the Punjab. Bureaucracy continues in a new garb. People will begin to pin their faith more and more in the creed and cult of the cartoonist of the 'Hindustan Times' (laughter). With these few words I wind up my remarks and commend this resolution to the House in its amended form.

Mr. Speaker : Resolution under consideration, amendment moved is—

That in line 2 a comma be substituted for 'and' occurring between the words 'law' and 'Lahore' and the words 'and Babar Akali' be added between the words 'case' and 'prisoners'.

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri (Rawalpindi Division, General, Rural) : I rise to express what I believe to be the general feeling in the province on this vexed question. The great constitutional changes under which we are now working have meant the transfer of allegiance to the representatives of the people. As such, the occasion should be marked by a change in our outlook towards those persons who on account of their political opinions were adjudged to be offenders under the criminal law under the old régime. Again, we should remember, Sir, that on occasions of great constitutional changes a generous attitude towards political prisoners is considered a normal feature of such régime. In this respect I am glad to note that our Premier has already given a signal proof of that change by his decision to release Martial Law prisoners. (Hear, hear). This I hope, will go a long way in healing the wound which martial law régime had left on the hearts of the people of this province.

Diwan Chaman Lall : When was it decided ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : I read that announcement in the Press that the Punjab Government has ordered the release of Martial Law prisoners and that a batch of those prisoners who were confined in the Andamans have been sent back and are on their way back to their homes.

Diwan Chaman Lall : When was the decision to release these prisoners taken ? Was it taken by the present Government or by its predecessor ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : I know that the decision was taken by the present Government and not by its predecessor, as I know something about the history of this matter. In the year 1934, a question was put by an honourable member of the late Legislative Council asking the then Finance Member to state whether he would be prepared to release the Martial Law prisoners, and also enquiring as to the total sentence actually served by these Martial Law prisoners. The answers given by the then Finance Member was that they had all served about 14 years' sentence then, but that the Government was not prepared to make any statement on the question of their release. This was in the year 1934. The same question was again repeated in 1935 and the then Finance Member repeated the same answer. Again last year, I think it was as late as March 1936, when the same question was repeated and the answer given was identical, i. e., that the Government was not prepared to make any statement about the release of Martial Law prisoners. I consider it a very happy augury Sir, that our Premier has on the point, soon after assumption of office, made a concession to public opinion. (Hear, hear.) Before this subject was taken up by any member of the House or resolution moved, fully cognizant as he was of the public feeling on the point he announced the release of Martial Law prisoners. The province feels grateful to him. I have no doubt that the province is equally struck by the announcement made by the Premier yesterday that he is personally looking into the case of each political prisoner with a view to ordering the release of such of them as can be done consistent with the safety of the province. I think the House would be thankful to him for taking that personal interest. I congratulate him on undertaking this duty himself instead of delegating it to one of his officials. I would, however, appeal to him to act generously in this matter and to make an announcement to-day which will meet the popular will in this respect. All sides of the House are agreed that there are a number of people in jails whose detention can no longer be justified and whose release will win popular approval and approbation, which such an act is bound to evoke.

Another reason why Government should not delay taking a decision in this matter is, that the Congress Party is in power in six other provinces and that party is pledged to release political prisoners. Their desire to release political prisoners is not keener than our desire. (Hear, hear.) I would point out to the Premier that it is quite possible that the expedition with which those ministries may act may give the impression that we have been slow in dealing with this important matter. Therefore it is very necessary that the Premier should make a statement on this subject to-day, and not delay it any longer and I feel sure, that his action in this respect will give general satisfaction.

Lala Duni Chand : May I know whether the honourable member is supporting the resolution or opposing it ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : I am afraid I cannot oblige my honourable friend in this respect. I cannot take a partisan attitude towards the resolution which my learned friend would possibly expect me to do. (Hear, hear.) I want to express as I have already said what I believe to be the general opinion and feeling in our province, and not any of the two extreme but opposing views held on this subject by people outside and even inside the House. Some people would like every prisoner whether he has committed murder, arson or a dacoity, and still holds out threats of similar kind to be released forthwith, without any enquiry or scrutiny. Simply because he chooses to label himself 'political prisoner'. I cannot endorse that extreme view. I do not wish to enter into a discussion of the difficult question as to how far motive affords a ground for exculpation or mitigation of an offence, but there can be no two opinions that any Government which is based upon principles of ordered progress must make some distinction between persons who have been convicted of offences for their political opinions and persons who have been actually guilty of violence. (Hear, hear.) (Interruption.) In this province, communal ridden unfortunately as we are (hear, hear) it will be very difficult to precisely determine the motive of a person, whether it is religious, political or economic (Hear, hear.)

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the honourable member please tell us whether he will accept the statements of the prosecution itself as the basis for classifying these prisoners as political prisoners ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : Certainly. But it does not necessarily follow that every such prisoner is entitled to have the jail portals opened for him without an examination of the circumstances under which the offence was committed, and more particularly his present and future attitude on subject of violence towards his neighbours.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Otherwise you would not be sitting on those benches. (Loud laughter).

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : We have had a crop of cases in this province where persons have committed murders because certain individuals had used irreverent expressions towards the founder of their faith—I am not necessarily referring to the great Prophet of Islam, I am referring to smaller prophets who exist in such large numbers in our country—the motive of these men is absolutely impersonal—how would the honourable member distinguish his case from the case of a person who kills a human being because he has used irreverent expression towards Mahatma Gandhi or Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru ?

If you adopt that attitude, I do not know where you are going to end. I am not one of those who say that leniency should not be shown. (Interruptions).

Mr. Speaker : I have more than once requested the honourable members not to interrupt the speaker.

Diwan Chaman Lall : He is enjoying it thoroughly. (Laughter).

Mr. Speaker : May be.

Sardar Ajit Singh (Urdu) : Sir, may I enquire from the honourable member whether Babar Akalis committed murders or violence to grind their own axe or to get squares of land as a reward for doing so ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : I do not know. I am not sitting in judgment on the Babar Akalis nor am I acquainted with the details of their doings as some of my learned friends on the other side appear to be, but I do maintain that a government would not be worth the name who did not, while examining the cases of political prisoners, distinguish between the cases of those who have been convicted on account of their political opinions and those who have committed some murder or other heinous crime. I do not say that those persons are not entitled to any clemency at the hands of the Government. I would request the Honourable Premier, whether my friends join with me in that respect or not, that even in respect of those prisoners he should examine their cases and show leniency to them if he is assured or finds distinct indication that there will be no recurrence of acts of violence on their part. On behalf of the average citizen, I make this request to the Honourable Premier and I do hope, all the members of this House would join in making that request. In a matter like this we should take a practical and a business point of view. As has been so often remarked, the business of this House is not only speech making but it has a business aspect too. Let us, therefore, all join on this occasion in getting the maximum that we can from the Honourable Premier on behalf of all political prisoners by putting forward a united demand. (Voices : What is that ?)

Khwaja Ghulam Hussain : May I know what is the demand that the honourable member will put forward ?

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : My demand is that persons who have been guilty of offences against the State on account of holding certain political opinions or who have not been guilty of violence, should be released forthwith. This applies to all cases under section 124-A, Indian Penal Code and 108, Criminal Procedure Code. Further the cases of those who have been guilty of violence should be examined with a view to show leniency to them. If there is an assurance that violence will not be repeated, their cases should be considered for clemency. My honourable friend from Amritsar gets up and makes a show as if the interests of political prisoners are dearer to him than to me. For the last seven years that I was a member of the Punjab Legislative Council, there was no member who took greater interest in the matter of political prisoners especially martial law and conspiracy case prisoners and detenues than myself and it is in that very spirit that I approach the Honourable Premier again with the request that he will act very generously and liberally in this matter and will show the fullest possible clemency to every political prisoner, consistent however with safety and well being of the citizens of this province (Cheers).

Master Kabul Singh (Jullundur East, Sikh, Rural) (Punjabi) : Sir, I have risen to support the resolution moved by my friend Lala Deshbandhu Gupta. Before I proceed with my speech, I would like to thank the Government on the release of the martial law prisoners. Besides, I would like to know whether the Government are prepared to release the rest of the prisoners or not. I may say for your information that this Government, the so-called first national Government, really owes its existence to the sacrifice of these patriots, who never hesitated to sacrifice their lives at the altar of freedom. This is the fruit of the sacrifice of those young men, who smilingly bore all kinds of sufferings for the freedom of their country. If this Government fail to recognise the magnificent sacrifice of these people, I think they are devoid of sense of gratitude. Much has been said against these people. Some have remarked that they are terrorists. Others have said that they are murderers, so on and so forth. Their characters have been painted in the blackest of colours. Now, Sir, I want to lay before you certain parallels and thereby will prove that what they did was perfectly right and was done simply for the sake of their country.

Many years ago, perhaps in the year 1852 Young Italy was founded. Then the supporters of Young Italy numbered only 80,000. But they infused this spirit throughout the country that life in bondage was worse than pangs of death. Cavour became the first Prime Minister. The first thing he did was to release all the political prisoners. Our Premier to-day holds the same position as that of Cavour. It is essential for him that he should also follow the example of Cavour, for, the position he now holds is due to sacrifices of the people who at present are rotting in jails. Leaving aside the question of releasing these men, nobody can tell how many more have been arrested since he has assumed office.

The same happened in the case of Germany too. After its unification the first act of the men who came into power was to release the political prisoners.

Then again some honourable members have remarked that those who have been arrested were traitors and terrorists. May I ask who was Lala Harkishen Lal? Was he a terrorist? He was arrested on the suspicion that he was a terrorist and consequently was one of the martial law prisoners. I may say for the information of the members that six months later, he adorned these very benches on which you are sitting to-day. (Laughter). What is more, my friend Moulvi Sahib (Moulvi Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din) sitting opposite was about to be hanged.

Moulvi Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din : Not for violence.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Not a violent offender.

Master Kabul Singh : Besides, the Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal was also arrested. I do not know whether his love for his country has cooled down. Any way if he still feels for his country, there are no apparent signs of it.

Again it has been remarked by my friends opposite that we on this side of the House have talked much in favour of the tyrants. I say feudalism is a relic of the past and these Rajahs and Maharajas are the direct descendants of those dacoits who ruled this country centuries ago. May I ask who was De Vclera? Was he a dacoit? He is powerful to-day. Who was Lenin? He was a terrorist. To-day these people are at the helm of affairs of their own states, and nobody can utter a word against them. But these youngmen who sacrificed their lives for their mother land are dubbed as tyrants and terrorists.

To-day mass action is necessary for freeing the country from the thralldom of the foreigners. Once I met a terrorist in Bengal, who remarked that mass action was the only means of liberating the country. Action taken by one or two will not serve any useful purpose.

I submit that the aspirations of the Babar Akalis deserve appreciation. If honourable members sitting opposite do not care for them, I think they do not possess hearts of flesh and blood. They have got hearts of stone. I humbly request the first nationalist Government to release them in view of their great sacrifices. Many people blame them that they murdered children and women. May I ask whether in the year 1857 the daughter of Nana Farnavis was not burnt alive by the English? This fact was recorded by Sundar Das Darlatta in a magazine, which was subsequently proscribed. When people are at war, such things do occur very often. The Mutiny spread, spent its force and was suppressed. Many persons were arrested by the English. But Her Majesty the Queen granted clemency to all these prisoners. When you say that they are your very kith and kin, why do you hesitate to release them?

{Master Kabul Singh.}

Again may I ask, what General Dyer did at Amritsar? Do the Government mean to say that they take strong exception to our committing of murders and that they do not mind if their own officers indulge in an orgy of blood? I submit that let bygone be bygone. I make bold to say that even now sometimes such conditions are created by the police. When question of honour is involved, it becomes impossible to put up with these conditions. These circumstances remind of a verse:—

درمیان قعر دریا نطفه بندم کرد
باز مگر کون کجا دامن پر مکان هشیار باش

As a matter of fact the trouble is that the Britishers have now placed before us our own kith and kin to fight with. The latter always think of tea parties and dinners and never even for a minute care for the prisoners now rotting in jails.

Premier : Intimation has not yet been received.

Master Kabul Singh : Appeals for co-operation are made to us in season and out of season. It is impossible for us to accede to your wishes when you yourself turn a deaf ear to our requests. All this is due to the fact that there is no sanction to enforce our demands. They only care for those who have guns and other war materials to bring them round. If we had such resources at our disposal, we would have enforced our wishes.

ساے اس وی تو۔ شین ہندی۔ یوے وانگ سادھی با شاہنی ہندی
یرا تے اسارا جنگ ہند۔ اہمیں سامنے ہو لڑائی ہندی
سادھ منگ تائین۔ منظور کر دون۔ جنگ بند تے صلح سقائی ہندی
(یوے سادھے کچھ بندے ہندے تین مردے۔ میں چھ تون لت ازائی ہندی
جان پھر تون ہندوں۔ ان پھر اسین ہندے۔ دوہان دھوان ۱۲ جان اشتہار ہندا
پھر تھر کٹت دا کدے بی بی نہ۔ ہائر ظالمان او انظار ہندا

I submit that whenever a request is made for the release of those prisoners we are told to wait because the time is not yet opportune. You are quite happy here. Why should you care for them? The days of Bhagat Singh have passed. Now you need not fear any one. These prisoners have irreparably lost their health. They are suffering from consumption, eye sores and many other deadly diseases. Your fears are unfounded. There is nothing to worry about. (Laughter).

I wonder, when they witness the awful condition of these prisoners, why their hearts are not filled with pity? These prisoners are suffering from heat and various insects in Multan jail. If these very people who are at the helm of the affairs to-day, are imprisoned even at Dharamsala, they would know what imprisonment means. I request the Government to save those worthy people from becoming victims to heat and insects in Multan jail. Besides, I am sorry to remark that the Unionists could not hold the session of the Assembly at Lahore. But they ran towards Simla, where cold winds and rickshaws are at their disposal. But nobody takes pity on the poor people who are rotting in jails. It has been said that they were their own kith and kin, but if that had been true nobody would have dared to treat them so badly.

I would further say that even the judge who tried Chaudhri Sher Jang remarked that the latter was a gentleman. The women carried their children to him for blessings. Then again the Government hanged Bhagat Singh for violence.

Premier : As regards this, Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru and Mahatma Gandhi were at one with us.

Master Kabul Singh : I submit that Mahatma did not support your views. What he said was that Bhagat Singh had done a great sacrifice and he had a great regard for him. Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru remarked that Bhagat Singh's sacrifice should be taken as an example by others. In the end I request the Government which mainly depends upon their troops, guns and other war materials, to take pity on those prisoners. I also appeal to the honourable members that they should leave no stone unturned to save them from the hardships of jail life.

The Assembly then adjourned for lunch.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2 P. M., Mr. Speaker in the chair.

Shaikh Karamat Ali (Nankana Sahib, Muhammadan, Rural): Sir, it has become customary to preface a speech in season and out of season with a verse, and I am afraid I cannot remain an exception. I will begin my utterance with the following—

من نپہ شرطِ بلاغِ اسے با تو مے گویم
و خدوہ از سختم پند کبر خدوہ ملال

My honourable friend Master Kabul Singh said something like this—

درمیان نعر دریا تھتہ بدم کردہ — باز مے گویے کہ دامن تر مکن ہشیار باش

I should like to inform my friend that it is not the Government who has landed the ship of the country in blackwaters, it is practically their own brethren who have caused them this trouble by their acts of omission and commission. But at the same time I believe that it is but just and legitimate that at the inauguration of political autonomy in the province we should strive hard to secure the liberty of those of our brethren whose patriotic utterances unattended with violence, have landed them in prisons. Let us understand that at the very outset, the Unionist Government is not at all averse to taking up any step which may be really desirable and constitutional. At the same time we are not going to endorse any course of action which is suggested by the Opposition which is not within the bounds of constitution.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Your predecessors said the same thing. There is nothing new in what you say.

Shaikh Karamat Ali : Such persons as are confined to jails for their really patriotic views and ideas really deserve our sympathy. If nothing else, we must at least appreciate their courage of conviction which commodity I believe is very rare in this country (hear, hear). Not only do they deserve our sympathy but I assure the honourable members of the House that they have also earned our gratitude for advancing the cause of the country to our present status. At the same time I must say that no national government is worth the name if it even for a moment turns away from this moral duty and does not appreciate their work so far as it lies within the constitutional limits.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Moral duty.

Shaikh Karamat Ali : Of course I believe that. In this respect the Unionist Government would be the last to shirk this duty and as a matter of fact the Unionist Government was the first to take up this matter in their hands when the Honourable Premier ordered the release of certain political prisoners whose cases actually justified release at a time when none of us had actually either thought of it or talked of it. (Minister for Education : Or dreamt of it). Or dreamt of it, as my Honourable friend says. There can be no two views about the national aspirations of Indians, though the methods adopted to achieve them may and do vary. The National Congress has after considerable thought and deliberation taken up the charge of the ship of autonomy with a view to founder it at the first available rock, while the National Unionist Government has taken upon itself the task of steering it through, to its goal of complete self-Government. This I believe is a very great tribute that can be paid to those who have actually entered upon the work of working the constitution given to us by the British Government. Having just discussed this aspect of the question of how far the Government are deserving the thanks and congratulations, I must proceed to point out that we can clearly classify the prisoners under consideration into two categories, although my honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall may at once say that it has already been urged by another friend on this side. But I submit that the method of discussing is generally different with each individual. There are two categories of political offenders. The first class is of those goodly natured people who for their ideas and views were unceremoniously rushed into the prisons by the Government of the time. The demand for their release is a just demand and I would ask the Honourable Premier to give it his due attention. At the same time I may also refer to another law of an extreme character which I believe, does not at all fit in, with the present circumstances and the responsible nature of the Government and that is Regulation III of 1818 which was introduced in this country at the early stages of British rule and which has been responsible for the detention of certain persons in jails. I would not refrain from inviting the attention of the Honourable Premier to this law. It must be considered as a dead letter and an obiter dictum, since it denies to the people a legitimate right of defending themselves and to the accused the opportunity of proving his innocence. In regard to the second class of political offenders, I want to invite the attention of the House to those persons who in the garb of patriotism are actually guilty of cold-blooded murders, violence and incendiarism and also what are called unjustifiable acts of sedition. In this category I include all those who are guilty of murders and other acts of violence. There is one very crucial question that must be asked from the members of the Opposition and that is, whether or not they want the sense of responsibility to be developed in the people. I believe this is the question of questions which ought to be determined at a very early stage before we should advance in the work of building up a nation. There can be no doubt that the element of responsibility is the one factor which will determine the question of release of these prisoners. Do you believe that those persons who have been guilty of murders, those who have been guilty of firing, those who have been guilty of acts of violence and similar other nefarious acts, will not create disorder in the country, if they are released, public interest and welfare will not suffer if such wild forces are let loose on the peaceful population of the province? This is a thing which we must consider before a recommendation made by the members of the Opposition, is accepted or even favourably considered. Then an honourable friend quoted the instance of Maina, what befell her during the days of mutiny. I think my honourable friend knows full well that at times which are actually abnormal people lose their sense of proportion and become practically mad and the judgment of the members of Government too who have to control such wild forces also gets a little blurred and that they feel inclined to take a severe notice of every little indication for mischief on the part of these persons. There is nothing unusual and such things do happen, but such instances cannot be possibly relied upon to any appreciable degree. The question is, how far can we go to accept the recommendation made by the Opposition with regard to the release of all political prisoners of whatever nature their offences may have been. I have already submitted that the case of those persons who have been guilty of murders and similar other heinous offences is absolutely different from the case of those persons who have been convicted on account of their utterances only. If this distinction is drawn I believe none of the Opposition party would be prepared to come forward with any such demand that those persons also be released who have been guilty of violence of sundry character or that the prisoners should be released wholesale. Looking at the dark side of the question I believe none of the members on the side of the Opposition would be justified to ask for the release of persons who do not deserve it. The question now to be determined is whether or not this distinction when made the basis, can go to satisfy the demand of the honourable members of the Opposition; if not, then I would be prepared to go to the length of saying that the demand for the wholesale release of prisoners, is far from being legitimate.

In order to just amplify what has been already said by my honourable friend Mr. Mukand Lal Puri from this side, I would insist that the distinction between two classes of prisoners must be maintained. So, Sir, the last thing, which, of course I must say in this connection, is, that all of us, whether on the side of Opposition or on the side of Government, must have one unanimous goal to jealously guard, and that is to see that we are not going to encourage anything which in the long run may be injurious to public safety and tranquillity. With these words I oppose the motion.

Lala Duni Chand (Ambala and Simla, General, Rural): Sir, it has been said by some of the honourable members of the Unionist Party that we are claiming wholesale release of political prisoners. What do we mean by the term 'political prisoners'? The term 'political prisoner' is a well-known term. (A voice: It is not) I shall try to prove that it is. It can be easily understood by those people who care to understand it. My honourable friend, Mir Maqbool Mahmood has challenged this side to describe what we mean by the term 'political prisoner'. Let me define and describe what 'political prisoner' means. Political offender means an offender who commits an offence with the object or motive of over-throwing any Government whether national or indigenous, or who commits an offence for the purpose of securing the redress of grievances, whether real or fancied, be it murder, be it dacoity, be it robbery, be it waging war, sedition or any other offence of that nature. The term does not include within its scope those offences, which having regard to their nature, do not admit of any such motive. That is the definition. If the Honourable Premier will consult any book on this subject, he will find that this is the definition. I may invite the attention of the Honourable Premier to Halsbury's Laws of England. The definition given there is exactly the same definition, though in different words.

Premier : Sir, if the honourable member would quote the authority. I shall be glad to look it up, but on a mere assumption I am not prepared to accept the definition. which is as confusing as the resolution itself.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Please refer to the Encyclopaedia of the Laws of England, page 208.

Lala Duni Chand : Well Sir, first of all, I should rather clear the point as to what I mean by the words 'political prisoner.' For this I have to refer to the Encyclopaedia of the Laws of England, page 208. It says—

“Where an offence has been committed, not from motives of private spite or interest, but in order to change the legislature or executive Government in the country it is freely contended that the offence is political, and that persons convicted of it should not be treated as ordinary prisoners and should be pardoned or amnestied on the earliest opportunity.”

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Read further, and you will find that there is no difference between ordinary and political offences.

Lala Duni Chand : I have actually read out the quotation. It is not necessary for me to read any further. I have read out the whole quotation on the subject. Now, Sir, that being the definition of political prisoners, let me challenge my honourable friend, Mir Maqbool Mahmood or any other member on the opposite side to show us a definition that is contrary to the definition that I have given or which this quotation defines.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : On a point of order, Sir. The honourable member has challenged me to cite any other definition. What I was stating and what I do state now is this that if the honourable member will read the same page, he will find that definitely in the English law there is no difference between political and other offences.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Yes, in law there is no difference and nobody denies it.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Then where is the difference ?

Diwan Chaman Lall : In treatment.

Lala Duni Chand : This question of political prisoners being cleared, I now proceed to give a number of arguments as to why all these political prisoners should be released. There is the question of motive. The nature of the motive is always to be taken into consideration, particularly in deciding the question of amnesty or pardon. That is one argument.

The second argument is how long has a political prisoner undergone the sentence? I can well understand that if a man commits murder or any other offence with the purest motive to-day, nobody will be justified in asking for his release to-morrow or day after. ("Hear, hear" from the Treasury benches). Now, there is a class of prisoners who were convicted in 1914, I mean the Lahore Conspiracy Case prisoners. Out of them 2 or 3 still remain. Persons who have been transported for life ordinarily are due to be released after the expiry of 14 years, but those people have completed something like 20 years' imprisonment. What justification is there that even after the expiry of the normal period, they have not been released after nearly 20 years? That is not too much that we are asking for. These men should be released.

With regard to Babbar Akalis, I do not defend murders or any other kind of violence. But my submission is that it must be conceded that these Babar Akalis, whatever offence they might have committed, committed with a political object and with a political motive. I understand they have been already in jails for, I believe 10 or 12 years and perhaps even more than that. All the Babbar Akalis who had been actually guilty of murder had been put to gallows long ago. It is only those who have committed comparatively minor offences that are now undergoing imprisonment. It is a well-recognized rule of law that if a man has been in jail for a number of years, his crime is washed; that is the principle underlying the law of amnesty. I demand their release not because every murderer should be released, but because these people have been sufficiently long in prisons.

Another argument for the release of these prisoners is the advent or the enforcement of the new constitution. The inauguration of the new constitution must be marked by some extraordinary act of clemency or amnesty. If the Honourable Premier wants to take credit for releasing certain martial law prisoners after they had been in jail for 18 or 20 years, I think it is only a small mercy. After all their release was due long ago and they have been released after waiting for a long period. I submit that really the question to be considered is what should be the attitude of the new Government? I wish the Premier to take up the same attitude with regard to the political prisoners as Pandit Govind Ballabh Pant is going to take or has taken in the United Province or Mr. C. Rajagopala Achariar is going to take up in Madras. So far as the responsibility of the Government is concerned, they are as responsible as the Honourable Premier here. I assure him that if he takes a strong attitude in these matters it will be the easiest thing for him to release all the political prisoners including the Babbar Akali prisoners. I am perfectly certain that His Excellency the Governor will not stand in his way if he puts forward his proposal before him. After all what is the difference between him and the other leaders in the other provinces? He is exactly in the same position, so far as the new constitution is concerned and has got the same powers as Mr. Pant or Mr. Achariar. The honourable member, Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, said that he had been wasting his breath in putting questions about this matter during the last seven or eight years and he had done a great service to the political prisoners. I accept his statement as to what he had been doing. The only thing that can induce the Government to change its stereotyped view is the pressure of public opinion. Is not the public opinion of the Punjab in favour of the release of political prisoners? Does not the Honourable Premier read newspapers? I understand the Press reflects the public opinion of the province. The Press has been devoting its columns for years and years to this question. (Interruption). The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram will say that "the public Press is no Press. I do not take cognisance of it." The Honourable Premier cares, I understand more for the Press than the Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram. I submit that the time has come for the release of these people which is already overdue. If there are any political prisoners who have been convicted only in recent months, the question of releasing them may stand over for some time. But those people who have already undergone a number of years imprisonment should be released and there is no justification, either constitutionally or legally or morally, for detaining them any longer. They say there is a class of non-violent political prisoners. The honourable members of the Unionist party have already got a cue and an inspiration from the Premier. The Premier is going to announce their release to-day or to-morrow.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member's time is up.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : May I move an amendment at this stage?

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member may send it to me in writing.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : There are a good many members who would like to speak on this resolution. You may be pleased to limit the time, but I request you not to hurry up the matter because it is very important. So far as I am concerned, I would like to say a few words, if I am allowed. I also understand there are so many other members also who would like to say something on the subject. My request is that the speeches should not be cut short and as many speakers as want to speak may be allowed. The time may be extended.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban) : Mr. Speaker, my intention was to speak at the end if the right of reply was not to be given to my friend; but as the honourable the Leader of the House wants to know my opinion on this point, I think it is my duty now to express it. Sir, my approach to this question is quite different. We have been told and we should realise that now that provincial autonomy has been introduced in the different provinces it is the system of the government which has changed and we ought to take our cue from what has happened in other countries when the system of the government changed. Whatever has been expressed here is simply an indication of the fact that the mentality of the present Cabinet is the same as was that of their predecessors. They approach this question from the same point of view. Sir, it is asked, how can those people who believe in non-violence now advise the Government to release those who were convicted of political violence? We know that whenever any question about the release of political prisoners was raised in the old Council it was asked what was meant by political criminals. Well, Sir, I think the government knows it better and nobody else can define a political prisoner in a better way. When they imprison us and treat us in jails they say we are not political prisoners: they say there is no class like the political prisoners. But there is a difference between the treatment meted out to political prisoners and ordinary prisoners. Therefore, it is only an argument which had always been used by the predecessors of the present Cabinet to evade the question. I do not want to go into the definition. I also do not want to argue whether the law justifies a certain action or not. My approach to this question is what should be the duty of the present Cabinet looking to the history of other countries. Sir, may I remind you and may I invite your attention to the fact that in almost all countries those people who are at the helm of affairs, were rebels at one time (hear, hear). Look at Mustapha Kemal Pasha. What was he? He was a man who was given the capital punishment and sentenced to be hanged. But he rebelled and he fought the fight for the freedom of his country, and now he is the ruler there. My honourable friend Mir Maqbool Mahmood has cited the instance of De Valera. What was De Valera? He was an outlaw under the old system of government but now he is the ruler. The history of other countries shows that those outlaws and rebels who held different political views from those of the old governments are at the helm of affairs now (hear, hear). In 1920 when the old reforms were introduced it was Lala Harkishan Lal who was charged with murder and released and became the Minister. What were the views of the late Mian Sir Fazl-i-Husain? He was a Congressman and it was by sheer chance that he was not arrested in 1919. And what do we find now-a-days? If the Honourable Premier would excuse me, may I ask what were his views when he was in England and why he was sent back to India? And what do we find on the opposite benches? People who were punished or were at least arrested for violent crimes were let off and now they are occupying the ministerial benches. The Honourable Premier, when Master Kabul Singh was delivering his speech, and quoting a verse, was pleased to remark that it applied to those people who were sitting on the Opposition benches. I can assure him that we will take care of ourselves and they should take care of themselves (hear, hear). When the time comes for the freedom of this country those who are here with their conviction shall stand and make every sacrifice for that conviction. If we believe that the time has come when violence must be opposed we shall oppose it. Now, Sir, when the new Reforms have been introduced and we have entered a new era—the Government should make a gesture of goodwill and release all the political prisoners without distinction (hear, hear). Why do I say so? Though I am a believer not only by expediency but by faith, in non-violence still I submit that the Government should release all the political prisoners without distinction (hear, hear). I said on the floor of the House that the cure for all political prisoners is not by punishing them and by putting them in jails or treating them with vengeance. We should try to find out the cause why people commit such crimes. I do not think anybody would sacrifice his life or would like to go to jail simply for the curiosity of it. It is the action of the Government, it is the insult hurled by the Government at the people of this country which forces some of the patriots to adopt this line of action. The utmost that we can say is this that their actions are misguided. While they discuss the methods of freeing this country, in their minds they probably take a wrong line and thus adopt a wrong method. You cannot say that they are not gems or that they are not patriots. I believe, Sir, if a man does any work for the sake of his country by force of conviction he is the man who ought to be honoured. In spite of the fact that they are prisoners, in spite of the fact that they have been punished by the courts of law established by the old government the convictions add to the dignity and the honour of those people who are suffering for the cause of the country. The utmost I can say is that they are misguided according to my light but I cannot say that they have not done some service to the country as any non-violent worker has done. I was saying that Government should bring them round and bring those people, those young men who adopt this line, to the right path. According to my light it is not by punishing them or keeping them in jail. The Government should act in a way that the young men may feel satisfied that this Government is going to bring freedom. If this Government does not take any action by doing which freedom shall be secured, then the young men shall be forced to adopt that line and the responsibility for those actions shall lie on the system of Government which rules in this province. Therefore I submit if this Government wants that there should be no violent political crime in this province it is up to them to act in a way which would bring freedom nearer. I go further and say that it is the duty to realise the times and act in a manner to wean them from violence. You cannot wean them by saying that they are not gems, that they are political criminals, that they have done immoral acts and therefore they should not be honoured; or that you should treat them with vengeance or take any vindictive action against them. I, therefore, think it my duty to recommend to the Government that they should take that step and release those prisoners as a gesture of goodwill towards those people and show to them that it is the Assembly which will hereafter fight the cause of freedom and that these young men should now take to constructive work rather than sacrifice their lives in these fights. The Premier said that Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru shall be with them in this matter. They also believed that those who have been convicted of political crimes should not be released.

Premier : I did not say so.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I have just got this letter by today's post from Jawahar Lal Nehru—

Premier : I merely said that they did not favour violence.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I know they would not advise violence. The Congress is pledged to non-violence as long as its creed is non-violence. I shall now read this letter. It is addressed to all leaders of Congress parties of all provincial assemblies. It reads—

“Release of political prisoners internees and detainees must inevitably be an early step”. (Interruption).

I hear some honourable member remark that the word ‘all’ is not there. My point is that the President of the Indian National Congress cannot make any distinction between one political prisoner and another. All political prisoners are alike for us.

Then, it is said that the release of political prisoners would endanger peace and public safety. I think this is a similar argument to the one which used to be advanced by the old government. But those people who want to free their country and work for the service of the country are never afraid of what the opponent would do. If I assume to myself the duty of freeing my country, my opponents may come and murder me; but I will not be afraid of it. I shall take it an honour to die in the fight for the freedom and service of my country.

I would now like to invite the attention of the Premier to the methods by which these political cases were tried. I shall cite my own case. I was arrested in 1921 and I was sentenced along with the late Lala Lajpat Rai for one year and four months and a fine of Rs. 300. In one week Government found out their mistake and they remitted one year's sentence. (Hear, hear). After three weeks they remitted the sentence of four months as well. (Hear, hear). The curious feature of all these is the way in which the case was tried. The then district magistrate who was later sent to Andamans appeared as a witness. He said on oath that we committed the crime. The trying magistrate convicted us after consultation with the district magistrate and the Legal Remembrancer. Then the Government of India found that our case was not properly tried. Such trials happen almost daily in these political cases. My submission is that the method of trial is far from desirable. Therefore it is the duty of this Government to see that these people are set free. With these few words I commend the resolution to the House.

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali (Hafizabad, Muhammadan, Rural) : The first thing that I would submit is, that however noble the idea underlying this resolution may be, we should not in our zeal to attain our object lose sight of all sense of proportion. It is all right for the honourable members opposite, to demand the release of all political prisoners unconditionally, but they seem to have totally lost sight of the other side of the case, the poor plight of an average peaceful citizen. (Hear, hear). Everybody here knows the amount of provincial money that has been squandered to counteract the civil disobedience movement, the Babar Akali movement and the other movements. How much wealth has been unnecessarily wasted in suppressing all these movements! It is also well-known how much havoc and destruction have been caused to the province by such movements. Many families have been ruined and in some cases there are several widows and orphans mourning the loss caused to them by one party or the other. As to the sympathetic attitude of the new Government towards its people, the sole test by which one should judge the present Government, should not be the release of political prisoners. There are other things by which we should judge the new Government. You should judge it by the eradication of communalism, by its programme for the uplift of the poor masses residing in the countryside (hear, hear), by the remission of taxation, by the nation building programme and so on. It is only three months since the present Government took over charge and we should therefore wait for sometime longer before we judge it. The definition given by my honourable friend of 'political prisoner' is in itself sufficient to establish that it is God alone who can help these people and it is not in the power of any government to satisfy the demands of my honourable friends sitting opposite. In the case of people "who are out to overthrow any government for the removal of any grievance, real or imaginary," it is only divine power which can help them. Any Government which is worth the name, whose duty it is to maintain peace and tranquillity throughout the length and breadth of the land cannot look with much tolerance at these people. It was said on the floor of this House by my friend Sardar Hari Singh that the Babar Akalis are being punished for the war services which were rendered by their forefathers and so on and so forth. I do not believe in this formula at all. Neither should sons suffer for the faults and sins of their forefathers nor should the forefathers or the parents suffer for the sins of their children. Everybody should be judged and should be held responsible for his personal acts of omission and commission. The fact that in six provinces all these political prisoners are about to be set free unconditionally should be favourably considered, as suggested by my honourable friend, Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, but we cannot lose sight of the fact also, that conditions vary from province to province. Let us leave all this to the minute scrutiny which the Honourable Premier has already promised to hold in each and every case. Let every case be judged in the way in which he is going to judge it and this is the best consolation which the Government of the day can give, as the man who is at the helm of affairs and the head of the Government is personally giving his consideration to the merits of each case.

Diwan Chaman Lall : But he has not got the time.

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali : A general law of amnesty is, generally speaking, never so desirable and will not help. It might prove in the long run to be a wrong policy. Let us judge each case, as has been said, on merits. I think that my honourable friends sitting over there will be perfectly satisfied when they will in due course, hear an announcement that will be made by the present Government.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Are you in the know of things ?

Khan Sahib Chaudhri Riasat Ali : Opinions do differ and there are always honest differences of opinion between the people. If my honourable friends over there think that unconditional release of all the political prisoners is the only thing which is justified by the circumstances as they stand at present, there might be some people who considering, as I have remarked, the poor plight of the people might think otherwise. Taking into consideration the hardships and difficulties which ordinary peaceful citizens have to face, it is only fair that no general law of amnesty should be passed at this stage and the cases should be left to the discretion of the Government (hear, hear).

Mr. Speaker : I have just now received notice of certain amendments from Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang ; but the proposed amendments go far beyond the original motion. Therefore, I cannot allow them at this stage.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I thought it might solve the difficulty in which the House finds itself if my amendments were accepted.

Mr. Speaker : I should have been delighted to allow the honourable member's amendments but they go far beyond the original motion.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Which portion, Sir ?

Mr. Speaker : For example :—

(b) That all persons having no conviction for a crime of violence against them who are not allowed to return to India should be allowed to return to India.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Will you then let me speak on the resolution for five minutes ?

Mr. Speaker : After Sardar Sohan Singh Josh has finished.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I wanted to give you some authority which might have had some effect on your mind and thereby you might have ruled that these amendments of mine do not go beyond the scope of the original resolution.

Mr. Speaker : It will take another half an hour of the House if that point is discussed.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I wanted to point out just one word in the original proposal which covers my amendment.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member may speak after Sardar Sohan Singh Josh if there is time.

Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan : I want your ruling on one point. You have read out the amendment of which notice is now given by Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang. Unless that amendment has been admitted by you, shall it form part of the proceedings or not? I would submit that as you have not allowed that amendment to be moved, it should not be brought on the records of this debate.

Mr. Speaker : The ordinary procedure will be followed.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Amritsar North, Sikh, Rural (Punjab)): Sir, it is a matter of deep regret that those persons who are at present in jails cannot clear their position. One feels still more constrained to see that here in this House cowardly attacks are being made on those patriots who have sacrificed their all for the emancipation of their motherland (hear, hear). I have had an opportunity of interviewing those prisoners who are at present rotting in jails. I wish to state what I think of them. But before I do so I would like to say something on the resolution before the House. The question can be divided into two parts. The first part includes non-violent prisoners while those prisoners who were accused of committing violence fall under the second category. But the question about non-violent prisoners does not arise as I think the whole House is of opinion that they should be let off. It is possible that many a prisoner belonging to this category may still be in jails. The Honourable Ministers and their party have outwardly supported the proposal concerning their release.

Sir, those prisoners who committed violence, can again be divided into two sections. Firstly those who are supposed to have committed violence. These poor people are detained in jails under Regulation of 1818. How regrettable it is that on mere suspicion so many persons have been thrown into gaols for 7 or 5 years or in certain cases for some months. Regulation of 1818 is that notorious enactment which is known for its being called a lawless law. I am constrained to remark, that the new ministry which characterises itself as democratic and national ministry, is still keeping this law in force. It is keeping these poor helpless prisoners in jail under this law.

[S. Sohan Singh Josh.]

Not only this. Many of them have been let out of the jails after serving ten or twelve years' imprisonment. Before that 3 P. M. they were internees. But the present ministry who take pride in being called the National Government cannot release them even two days before the expiry of their term of imprisonment.

I would like to make it clear to you that Mr. Ihsan Elahi was arrested seven years ago under the Regulation of 1818 and has not yet been released. Whenever any question is asked about his release it is generally said, that his case is examined from time to time in order to decide whether or not he should be released. I would like to say that he has been kept under detention only because Government suspected him to be a believer in violence. If that is not the case, what else is it? Murderers have been released, persons condemned to gallows have been let off. Many people who were involved in the Meerut Conspiracy Case, I being one of them, have been released. But that poor fellow is still under detention. I will just tell you the reason why he has not as yet been set at liberty. Every year the Superintendent, Jails interviews with him and asks him to sign an agreement that in case he is released he would not participate in political activities. But seven long years have passed away and still he has not been released. If the Government have sufficient evidence to prove his offence, why do they not prosecute him so that the public may know definitely that he is going to be kept in jail for ten or twenty years, or for the whole of his life. I am suggesting this course to Government only with a view to know how long he is going to rot in jail. If the Government will not accept this suggestion then the only conclusion that one can draw is that they are determined to ruin his life.

Another victim is Vasdev Singh. His offence is that he is a socialist, a communist and in fact a man of my views.

Premier : You ought not to have become a member of this House.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Except that he is a communist, there is no other fault of his. I say if he has committed any offence, it should be proved before a court of law ; and then he can be kept in a jail with justification. Besides, I would like to mention one thing more and that is, that his ailing mother sent not one but thousands of letters to the Government requesting therein to permit him to see her. But the pity is that no attention was paid to her requests. What to speak of his release, I even doubt whether or not his case is ever examined. Nothing has been stated about him.

Besides, Sardar Teja Singh an elected member of this House, has been arrested. Many questions have been asked about him, but the Premier says that under the present circumstances he is not prepared to release him. He says further that the said Sardar has given a statement. Nobody knows about that statement, except perhaps the Premier or the person who has given the statement. I say if he has confessed his own crime he should be produced before a court of law and after the judgment has been passed against him he should be sent to jail. It is absolutely unfair to let him remain in jail without affording him an opportunity to stand his trial before a court of law.

There is another serious thing to which no attention has so far been paid, and which is assuming alarming proportions every day and that is, that daily the civil liberties of the people are being trampled under foot.

I will say nothing of the previous Government. Whatever I would say would relate to the present National Government. Comrade Masani, a communist and a socialist comes to the Punjab with a view to banish communalism from the land. As soon as he entered the Punjab he was externed.

Premier : I think my honourable friend is probably confusing Masani with some one else. Masani never came to the Punjab.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : I am coming to that. Then S. V. Ghate came all his way from Madras. I may inform the honourable members of the House that his height is less than five feet and two inches.

Premier : He must be a great mischief maker.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : He was a thin man capable of doing no harm to anybody. But look at this Government, it was even afraid of him that he would put an end to it. What happened was this. He came to Lahore. As soon as he set his foot on the railway platform, an order which was written one day before his arrival at Lahore, was served on him that he should at once leave the Punjab, and should not set his foot here again for at least five years. The Government was so hasty in serving an order of externment on him that even his friends were not allowed to see him.

Later on Bhagwan Singh of the Parja Mandal was sentenced to an imprisonment of nine months. Here I must add for the information of the members of this House the difference between the present National Government and the old bureaucratic Government. Formerly the British Imperialists ruled us directly, but now the power behind the screen is the same and we are ruled by Indians in name only. I wonder why when Bhagwan Singh was tolerated under the old Government the so-called Nationalist Government saw their safety in depriving him of his liberty. I do not know whether it is a fact that at the instance of the ruler of Patiala or some one else, he has been turned out of the Punjab. It is a matter of shame for the Government that even though he wrote to them that his wife was pregnant, yet he was sent to prison for nine months.

Again what the national Government is doing is, that on the one hand searches are made in the houses of private individuals and on the other in the office of the "Kirti" newspaper. The Government simply want to ruin and crush such people.

In the end I wish to say that the Government want to prohibit forcibly the entry of communist and socialist literature in the Punjab. All magazines like "the Labour weekly" and others of the same type are prohibited to be sold here. No book or magazine on Socialism and Communism can reach us. The Government has been keeping the people without bread and now they have decided to starve them mentally as well. Such is the condition of our country.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang (West Lahore Division, General, Rural): I intended to move an amendment but you have ruled it out.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member may speak to the resolution.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I find that difficulty has arisen in the House on both sides. It is said by that side that this side is asking too much (Interruptions) while the feeling on this side is that the Government benches are not prepared to concede even what is most reasonable. I wanted just to suggest a solution and I suggested it in my amendment and even now, though I do not move it, I commend it to the Honourable Premier if he is prepared to consider it. The first thing is that there are various classes of people concerned in this resolution. There is one class who are confined or interned without trial. I would suggest to the Honourable Premier that he should either have them tried or he should release them. There is another class of people who are detained either in India or outside—for they are also detainees, whether a person is detained in his house, in the province or in any other country, he is a detainee—such persons if not convicted of any offence should be allowed to return home and I bring to his notice the case of Lala Hardial who is one of the most brilliant sons of the Punjab and who has not been allowed to come to the Punjab although he has been allowed to go to England. At first he was not allowed even to go to England and he was passing his days in Sweden and other countries. There is another gentleman Dr. Abdul Hafiz the brother of our honourable friend Mian Abdul Aziz and yet another Sardar Ajit Singh. So far as I am aware, there is no conviction against any of these gentlemen either for a crime of violence or any other crime. Of course their activities have been bold and their views have been liberal, perhaps extra-liberal. But the spirit of the resolution is that people should not be punished or penalized for the liberality of their views. If they have committed any overt act certainly they ought to stand their trial, but it seems to be prima facie unfair not to allow these people to return to their homeland, if they have no conviction against them and there is no danger to the public peace in this province. I would then say, and on this point the Premier will be really failing in his duty if he does not accept the recommendation or the suggestion that I make, that the prisoners who have been convicted and are undergoing imprisonment under section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code and those who are in jails for conviction under section 108 of the Criminal Procedure Code should be released. There is no difficulty about them and this morning's papers showed that the United Provinces Government has not taken a second in coming to this decision and orders for the release of those people who are undergoing imprisonment under section 124-A of the Indian Penal Code or 108 of the Criminal Procedure Code have been passed. So far as persons who have been guilty of crimes of violence are concerned, I would make one suggestion and that is this. Mir Maqbool Mahmood has been making a great point of this that there is no distinction in law between political prisoners and ordinary prisoners and I entirely agree with him. In law there is no distinction between a political prisoner and an ordinary prisoner, between a political murderer and an ordinary murderer, the section is the same and the sentence is the same. But as Diwan Chaman Lall pointed out there may be a difference of treatment. I am not going into that question however. But what occurs to me is this that a difference is being made—between a political prisoner and an ordinary prisoner. And this is the grievance of the gentlemen on this side that an ordinary prisoner who commits murder, if he is not hanged (if he is hanged well and good) for one reason or another, and is sentenced to transportation for life he is released after 14 or 15 years. On the other hand a political prisoner is not released on the expiry of 14 or 15 years of sentence. In such a case these gentlemen can say that you are making a distinction between a political offender and a non-political offender. It would then be rather hard for Mir Maqbool Mahmood and his party or the Premier to make out a case for making this distinction. I think those who were guilty of great violence were all hanged and finished whether they were Lahore Conspiracy Case people or other conspiracy case people. But there must have been some distinction in the case of those who were not hanged and were sentenced to transportation for life. There must have been some extenuating circumstances in their cases otherwise they also would have been hanged. If there were any extenuating circumstances in their case, then their cases should not be distinguished from the cases of ordinary prisoners. If anything, advantage should really be given to all political offenders rather than placing them under a disadvantage. Then the question is, who is a political offender? A great deal has been made of this and books were quoted. I do not think books need be quoted on this point. It is not very difficult to make out who is a political offender. Everybody knows who is a political offender. Even a child of ten or twelve knows who is a political offender, not to say of the Premier or the Home Secretary in a civilised Government. But I give you one simple test. Supposing a person commits an offence and escapes to an independent country, if there is no power of extradition, it is clear that the offence is a political offence.

Rai Bahadur Mr. Mukand Lal Puri : Not necessarily.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : As a rule. This is of course known to even a child and quotations from encyclopædias are not necessary. One thing more I would suggest before I sit down. If the Honourable Premier accedes to my request well and good, otherwise I would suggest that even the original resolution should be put to vote in two parts because in the first place there are two distinct parts in the resolution and secondly there may be some people who may not support the mover of the resolution in the first part but may be able and quite willing to support him so far as the second part is concerned. The first part is this—

“ This Assembly recommends to the Government that all political prisoners and detenues (including Martial Law and Lahore Conspiracy Case prisoners) be forthwith released.”

The second part is—

“ That restrictions imposed by the Government on free movements of all political workers in the Punjab be immediately withdrawn.”

I suggest that both these parts should be put separately.

Voices : Question be now put.

Mr. Speaker : Question is—

That the question be now put.

The motion was lost.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta (South Eastern Towns, General, Urban) : Sir, I have been following the speeches from the Treasury benches very carefully. There are two parts to my resolution and you will agree that not a single word has been said from the other side so far as the second part of the resolution goes. I take it that even the Treasury benches realise that so far as the second part of the resolution goes, the case is unanswerable and they cannot really reply to that. (The Honourable Premier : No one has spoken from the Treasury benches.) The Honourable Premier is drawing a distinction between the Honourable Ministers and his followers sitting behind him. I do not know, if he really means that those members who are sitting behind him are not to be considered as part and parcel of the Unionist Government. I think Sir, they are their mainstay and their main support. If that is not so, I will gladly amend my expression. Any way, in all the speeches that have so far been delivered on that side of the House, I say, not a word has been said, so far as the second part of my resolution goes and I therefore take it that the case is really unanswerable so far as that is concerned. Even the Ministerialist benches, realise that it is a matter for shame that a patriot like Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan is not allowed to enter this province while he can move about freely in all other provinces of India. Is it not a matter for shame, that even to-day in this province, although the Unionist Party has taken charge of the Government there are people who have been interned or externed? I think, Sir, they also realise that they cannot really defend their policy. I do not want to take the time of the House, therefore, in dealing with the second part of the resolution. I hope when good sense prevails, the Government benches will also realize, that if it was not yesterday, to-day at least is the time for them to rectify their mistake and see that no restrictions are placed on the movements of political workers and that this blessed province or the unfortunate province of ours will be at par with other provinces. I call it blessed because we see that there has been the inauguration of the so-called provincial autonomy and unfortunate because in spite of these changes we see only a brown bureaucracy in place of white bureaucracy.

Now, Sir, I come to the first part of the resolution. I have tried to follow the arguments of my honourable friend, Mir Maqbool Mahmood, who is the genius of the Unionist Party. (Hear, hear from the Treasury benches). (Interruptions). (Cries of evil genius). I would not like to say so, other friends may fill up the blank in any manner they like. I will call him a real genius. What do I find in his speech? There has been a regular attempt to wriggle out of the difficult situation by hair splitting arguments and no effort to grapple with the situation manfully. What is the real question? What is it that the resolution asks for? The resolution demands that now that you say that yours is a National Government, you must at least make a gesture of good will towards those brave people who have been fighting with the alien Government, with the white bureaucracy for the freedom of the country. It is due to their fight that you are now holding the office to-day. What does my resolution say? It only seeks to ask that if yours is really a National Government, make a gesture of good will, behave in a different manner towards the political prisoners, and thus give an opportunity to the country to say that yours is really a National Government. (A voice : Do you even now include murderers?). Certainly. At the very outset I had given the definition of political prisoners. Government might not accept that but that is the definition which is acceptable to all civilised countries including England from where so many of my friends on other side draw inspiration. Not a word has been said about it. They have tried to avoid all reference to that definition. I say there is no greater crime than to keep a nation in subjection and in slavery. There is no greater crime than to take away the freedom of a nation, and hold 350 millions of people in subjection and slavery. I really pity that the Treasury benches do not realise it. I would ask them Sir, as to where is the difficulty? Why should they not face the situation manfully? Why do they not begin with a clean slate? Wash your hands of the sins of your predecessors and come forward as patriots and show the country that you can also behave like a national Government. I say, heavens would not have fallen, if these 68 prisoners were released. The Government have got their armoury of repressive laws. Their laws are still there to our shame. We also know that these laws are not a dead letter. They have been making use of these laws. If they give an opportunity to those prisoners to mend their ways, change their opinion, and to behave like non-violent patriots, where is the difficulty? Will heaven fall? Will it not be possible to re-arrest them if they behave in an improper manner? These youngmen have after all been fighting for the freedom of this country and have brought about this change. What justification is there, Sir, for holding them behind the bars any longer? He will be a bold man indeed who on the one hand says "I am a nationalist, I am a patriot, and I am given to love the freedom of my country" and at the same time rises in his seat in this House and fails to draw a distinction between an ordinary murderer and criminal and patriots like those who are suffering for the sake of the nation and for the freedom of the country. Sir, it is a matter for shame. If the honourable members sitting opposite rise in their seats, and call those patriots as criminals, assassins and murderers, I say, and I will show them, Sir, that they are ignoring the lesson of history. Do they not see that to-day in 6 provinces, in our own country, ex-convicts are holding the reins of office? These are the very persons who were convicted of sedition, who were convicted of political offences under the Indian Penal Code and the Criminal Law Amendment Act. Those persons are holding the reins of office to-day in provinces other than ours. I say time is not far—if the Unionist Government continue to behave like this—when these people, whom they call rebels to-day, will be in their places. (Hear, hear from the Opposition Benches). They must not ignore the signs of the time. What is the lesson of history? DeValera, who perhaps had to his credit several murders of some of the white bureaucrats, is to-day the President of the Republic of Ireland. Then Hitler, who has, perhaps, a still larger number of murders to his credit or discredit, to-day he is the idol of the whole German nation. The Unionist Government have been banking too much on His Excellency's support. It may have been possible during the last elections to have won with the help of the bureaucracy.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not relevant.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : I am only explaining—

Mr. Speaker : No explanation is needed.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Sir, I must sound a note of warning to the Unionists that they should not bank too much on the support of those who are sitting behind the curtain. We want them to have real powers. The whole country is watching them. Unless they behave in a nationalistic manner, in a patriotic manner, they will see that the time will soon come when they will be over-thrown like so many other governments that have been thrown away in the past. ("Hear, hear" from the Opposition benches).

Sir, I will not take more time of the House. I will only ask the Honourable Premier to consider, whether it is not possible that many of these young men whom he calls murderers or whom his followers or the back-benchers, as he would call them, label as murderers and assassins, cannot change their political creed. Has it not been our own experience in this country that people have changed their political views? Is it not a fact that there are people, ex-convicts or prisoners, even to-day adorning the Treasury benches in this House? Why rule out the possibility of such a change then? I know it for a fact and I can say from personal knowledge that there are people who have been convicted by our courts and you know what sort of courts there are in our country.

Mr. Speaker : Order, order.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : I am not making any reference to any particular court. But all the same it is a fact beyond dispute and every one of us knows that a fair trial is not generally possible in this unfortunate country of ours when a question of political offence is involved and I say there is no possibility—(interruption)—I know I am within my right to say so—I say from personal knowledge. An example has just been quoted. Many of us who have been in jail will bear me out that the person whose example has just been quoted does not believe in violence at all, and I do not really see any justification why he should continue in jail any longer. Similarly there are many other prisoners about whom some honourable members have been trying to show that they had committed violence, have undergone a change in their views. And even my honourable friend, Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, who is a new convert to the Unionist creed—(An honourable member : Question)—not a convert yet? I am glad he is still on the way to conversion. (An honourable member : Not a convert, but a genuine Unionist)—perhaps he is in the process of assimilation. Even my friend, Mr. Mukand Lal Puri, who has once been, according to him, putting so many questions for the release of political prisoners or the Martial Law prisoners, says very haltingly that we should be lenient to these people, but what is the definition of leniency? I have given the definition of political prisoners in England. They will not accept that definition here. They have perhaps got a definition of their own just as they have got a definition of their own for the word "national." Now may I tell you what is meant by leniency here? Some of these persons for whom he has pleaded leniency in halting terms, have been actually reduced from 'B' class to 'C' class in jails and are being treated as ordinary criminals. This is the leniency which has been shown, this is the leniency which our Unionist friends have also shown to them during the last four months. The Honourable Premier the other day, when he was confronted by these benches, to declare his policy towards political prisoners or to show justification for holding these people behind the bars, pleaded that he had not had any breathing time or any breathing space. But what do we see in other provinces? After taking over reigns of office, within 24 hours, the Congress Governments have not only decided but actually ordered the release of political prisoners. But in our province my honourable friend, the Premier, has not had the time even to find out that persons who were formerly enjoying the privilege of 'B' class have been reduced to 'C' class and are being treated as ordinary criminals. When these things are allowed to continue as they were, where is then the change? If there is any weakness on your part, if you have not got the courage to behave in the same manner as the Congress Governments' are behaving in other provinces, say so and admit that plainly; do not for heaven's sake add insult to injury by showing your weakness in this way and providing a justification for all that has been done so far by your predecessors. What else have they been doing so far? They have been justifying the conduct of their predecessors; is it not a matter for shame that they have been justifying by their own conduct that the repressive policy of their predecessors was really right? I hang my head in shame when I see that our own friends are allowing our brethren to rot in jails. I appeal to the Treasury benches to take a long view of things. This is the time when they should act like statesmen and show courage. The path has already been paved by Congress ministries in other provinces. Their task has been made immensely easier; let them take a bold step. The Honourable Premier wants to keep to himself the distinction of giving the lead. I say to him let him at least follow the lead of the other provinces in this respect as he has not had the courage of giving a lead in this matter. I hope the Government benches will realise the seriousness of the situation and act as patriotic members of this House. (Cheers).

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan): (Cheers on rising). Mr. Speaker, I have heard with great attention and interest the speeches made by my honourable friends opposite, and by my friends on this side of the House. I am afraid the time at my disposal is not sufficient for me to meet the various points which my friends opposite have raised. But I would try to pick out one or two important points made by my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition and the mover of the motion. Sir, I was rather impressed by the opening speech of my friend, the mover of the motion, the other day and I thought that his speech then was impressive, because it bore the language of care and moderation, it was conceived in a reasoning mood. But to-day I find that all his reasoning, all his effort at convincing has gone to the winds.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: Because it has created no impression upon you.

Premier: My honourable friend says that it has created no impression on this side of the House. You are aware that neither my colleagues nor I have had an opportunity of participating in this debate so far and I am the first on the Treasury benches to rise to meet the points made on the other side. But is it because he finds that the galleries are full to-day or is it because he finds that the Press is well represented, that he has departed from reason, and strained at mere impression. I wish not. He has to-day wiped out the old distinction between a political murderer and an ordinary political prisoner. Why has he done so? The honourable member read out the definition, a very comprehensive definition, from a book the other day. Apparently he has forgotten that definition himself in his final peroration this afternoon. Sir, may I ask him whether he would consider as martyr a man who may be found to be concerned with the disastrous accident at Patna, possibly demented politician guilty of foul sabotage? Would he even in that case glorify him? I trust he will agree with me in considering him a murderer of the worst type guilty of a most heinous and dastardly murder. (Hear, hear, and applause). (An honourable member: Why do you make a voluntary assumption?)

[Premier.]

Mr. Speaker: May I request honourable members not to interrupt, or make remarks and comments? The Premier should be allowed to make his speech uninterrupted.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta: A question has been put to me.

Premier: Sir, I ask from the honourable members for the same courtesy as they receive from me. When the Honourable Leader of the Opposition was speaking, I did not interrupt him, nor did my friends on this side interrupt him even once. I would request my honourable friends not to interrupt me. If they find that my thrusts are going home—

Diwan Chaman Lall: When you say things like that, you should expect interruptions.

Premier: Sir, I was trying to point out to the House that it is inevitable that we must draw a distinction between a political murderer and a political prisoner. That must be so. Will my honourable friend over there mete out the same treatment to those people who are fanatics and who murder people because they do not agree with their point of view? The analogy is almost parallel. Therefore, I think my honourable friends opposite are not right when they say that there should be no distinction between an ordinary political prisoner and a political murderer. I am sure that in their saner moments outside when they have time to think coolly over the matter they will agree with me that a clear distinction has to be made between a demented political murderer and a political patriot, who only voices differences of opinion, howsoever, rashly. You may choose to call him merely a misguided patriot, but is it not our duty to see that patriotism does not run into these misguided and dangerous channels? We have to lead patriotism into paths that are helpful and clean, which are in the interest of the country, which are to the credit and the glory of our country, that are a true service to the country. Sir, member after member from those benches rose in his seat and asked why we should not follow what the Congress Ministries are doing in other provinces. They must remember that the difference between the Congress Ministry and this Ministry is obvious and unmistakable. Congressmen went from door to door saying that they are going to enter the Assemblies for the purpose of destroying the constitution. They gave that undertaking to the electors. They also indulged in other wild promises, which I am sure on reflexion they will be sorry for. (Diwan Chaman Lall: Wild?) If my honourable friend had allowed me to complete my thought it would not have been necessary for him to interrupt me. I said wild promises, which I am sure will sooner or later come home to them. We, Sir, did not make any such promises or give any such undertakings. We said we will go to the Assembly, although we know its limitations and shortcomings, to work the constitution for the benefit of the province, and to work it so as to get the utmost good we can get from it for our province. That was the undertaking that we gave. We never said that when we get there we will let loose all political murderers merely for display or for sentimental reasons. We never gave that undertaking. We said that we will work wholeheartedly and steadfastly in the interest of the province and the country, and not merely to secure big headlines in the Press, or applause from the galleries (hear, hear). My honourable friends opposite are aware that we have released the Martial Law prisoners not because any pressure was brought on me or on my colleagues, not because any appeal was made to us, not because we thought that Congress ministries in other provinces were going to release political prisoners—at that time nobody even dreamt that they will accept office. As I told my honourable friends, we in this province examine cases of these political prisoners periodically and examine them carefully and I can assure my honourable friends opposite that we have been doing that and will continue to do so. It was after a careful consideration of the cases of the Martial Law prisoners that we came to the conclusion that it would no longer be detrimental to the interest of public safety to release them. I have released them without any boast or flourish of trumpets. I did so without even any private announcement to my friends of the Press amongst whom I have the privilege of knowing several distinguished journalists. We wanted to produce no stage effects to catch the public eye. Sir, my honourable friend Master Kabul Singh made an appeal to me and I wish I could respond to his appeal. But let me first tell him that those people whom my honourable friend Sardar Hari Singh described as the jewels of the Punjab, religious patriots in his eyes, are really religious fanatics. Let me assure the House that the Babbar Akalis were not really at heart politically-minded people. (A voice: Question.) I am going to quote chapter and verse that they were not politically-minded persons at all.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : If you read the judgment you will find that Babbar Akalis were purely political prisoners.

Mr. Speaker : I would request the honourable member not to interrupt the Premier.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Surely the honourable member is within his right in interrupting any honourable member if he so chooses.

Mr. Speaker : Yes, if he wants to correct him on facts.

Diwan Chaman Lall : It is always done.

Sardar Kartar Singh (Urdu) : I would submit to the Honourable Premier that the Babbar Akalis were sentenced under section 121, Indian Penal Code, which is meant for those who wage war against the King and try to overthrow the Government.

Premier : My honourable friends, as usual, are restive and I do not blame them for that; they are trying to anticipate me. What I was trying to impress on my friends opposite was that originally this movement was distinctly and wholly a religious movement. Those people who subsequently became political prisoners were in the first instance merely religious fanatics. I do not blame them for being so: all honour to them if they are steadfast.

[Premier.]

in their faith. I am not criticising them, but the movement was originally not political but was religious. It was only long afterwards when they felt that they were coming against obstacles that they turned round and began to murder those people whom originally they only wanted to strike.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Sir, it is all wrong and I may be permitted to correct him.

Premier : I have not given way.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member wants to correct certain facts.

Premier : I was saying that I could quote chapter and verse but apparently the honourable member has not understood me. It is my misfortune that I cannot make my friend opposite exercise patience and try to understand. I do not say that those people were not eventually tried for political offences. What I want to point out is that originally the movement was a purely religious movement. The movement first started in connection with the reform of the gurdwaras. I am sure, several honourable members will remember that incident at Nankana Sahib, where the movement developed its intensity. The extreme section of Akalis, under a gentleman whose name I shall not mention, who I am sorry to say was one of my comrades in arms but subsequently became the secretary of the Akali Dal, entered into a conspiracy to murder or cause to be murdered my honourable colleague on my left, Sardar Bahadur Sundar Singh Majithia (now Sir Sundar Singh Majithia), Sardar Kartar Singh, Mahant Basant Dass, Mr. C. M. King, I.C.S., Mr. Bowring, I.P., and several other people as they were supposed to be obstructing the movement for the reform of gurdwaras. That is where the movement started. (Interruption.) Not a bit of it. Attempts were made against the lives of these people. Attempts were made to assassinate Mr. Bowring, but they failed. When they found that it was difficult to get at their original objective, they turned round to smaller fries, and indulged in the indiscriminate murder of poor lambardars and villagers who had given evidence against them.

Sardar Rur Singh (Urdu) : Whose report is it that the Honourable Premier is reading? Is it of the Criminal Investigation Department?

Premier : Not at all. (Laughter.) As my honourable friend opposite says that he knows the judgment he ought to know that these things were mentioned in the judgment. (Interruption.)

Mr. Speaker : If any statement of fact requires correction I will allow it to be corrected at the end of the Premier's speech. The Honourable Premier should not be interrupted.

Premier : These things are mentioned in the judgment. My honourable friend opposite knows it. Two conspirators were sent to assassinate Mr. Bowring. But this failed and it gave a new turn to the plotters who thenceforward confined their attention to the smaller fry in the villages who were an easier prey in the Jullundur and Hoshiarpur districts. The whole countryside was terrorised, blackmailed and robbed and many were murdered. The culprits were tried and convicted as my honourable friend opposite knows. This is the kind of political murderers whom my friends opposite want to applaud in this House.

My honourable friend opposite will, if he cares to do so, tell you how the Babbar Akalis carried on this campaign of murder and terrorism. He knows the case that is now going on in a court of law. The poor witnesses who appeared for the prosecution are being terrorised and threatened. (Interruption).

Mr. Speaker : Is the case under trial now ? If so, I will request the Honourable Premier not to stretch the point.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : The Premier is not in order in referring to that case. He should take back those remarks.

Premier : The case is now being tried, but I have not said anything which infringes the rules of procedure.

Mr. Speaker : No reference should be made to facts of a case which is pending in a court of law.

Premier : These facts have been published in the Press. These are the grounds of prosecution. However, I shall not pursue that point, but I will turn to the next point. Actually the charge is that they murdered somebody who had given evidence and not merely murdered him but also murdered his eight years old child. Is that not cruelty ? That is the type of political workers whom honourable friends opposite want to eulogise.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : The matter is now pending in a court of law and until it is decided by the court the Premier cannot make such references.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Mr. Speaker, the case is sub-judice. The accused are under arrest. To say that they murdered a man and a child would adversely influence the trying magistrate or sessions judge.

Mr. Speaker : I shall read the relevant standing order so that there may be no misunderstanding on the point. Standing Order 29 (2) (viii) reads—

“ A member while speaking shall not refer to any matter of fact on which a judicial decision is pending”.

I cannot, therefore, allow the Honourable Premier to refer to any matter of fact on which a judicial decision is pending.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I rise to a point of order. It is a very important point that has arisen. A reference has been made, as I understand it, and I speak subject to correction, by the Honourable Premier regarding a particular case which is sub-judice. He has made a statement in which he has charged the accused of having committed murder of a man and his child.

Premier : No.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If that is correct, I submit it to you for your ruling whether in view of the fact that the life of an innocent man may be in danger as a result of the statement made by the Premier, whether that statement made by him should not be expunged from the proceedings of this House.

Premier : I said that he is being tried on a charge of alleged murder. I never said that he is guilty of murder.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The Premier not only said that he was being tried for the murder of a man and his child, he turned to the opposite benches and said, "Is this the type of political murder that you want to applaud?"

Premier : Yes, if those allegations prove to be correct. As a matter of fact —

Mr. Speaker : The Honourable Premier will please proceed with his speech.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : May I suggest to you, Mr. Speaker, to see the official report and if you think some injustice is likely to be done to the accused by the remarks of the Premier, you will kindly see that that portion of the speech is deleted. In a moment of heat the Honourable Premier has made a statement which in cooler moments he would not have made.

Mr. Speaker : In view of the last remark of the Premier, saying that he referred to an "alleged murder", no further action appears to be necessary.

Premier : The honourable member is trying to overstep all bounds I should like to point out to my honourable friends that with regard to terrorism and political murders, those great leaders, Mahatma Gandhi and Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru, have also the same opinion. My honourable friends opposite conveniently ignored Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru's speech at Chittagong where he condemned anarchism and terrorism. May I also in this connection refer to my old days when I was in England? I was privileged even then to be a humble worker in the interests of my country and my nation. I had the great privilege 28 or 29 years ago of working under Mahatma Gandhi in the interests of my Indian brethren in South Africa. I went with him from place to place for collecting funds and for enlisting the sympathy of our British friends. During those days an unfortunate political murder occurred which several honourable members here may remember. I refer to the Dhingra murder case. My memory is quite vivid and fresh in this connection. I remember several young men met Mahatma Gandhi. At one of those meetings one student asked him as to what he thought about that murder. I remember his words quite well to-day. He said, "It was a mistaken and an erring judgment for a young man to commit a murder of that kind. It was a sin, and boded no good for our country."

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I do not challenge it.

Premier : "That is not going to take us any nearer to the emancipation of our country any more". I remember his words vividly.

4 P. M.

Diwan Chaman Lall : The only person who challenged was Mr. Lloyd George and he said that Dhingra was the greatest patriot known in history.

Premier : My honourable friend may know Mr. Lloyd George better than I do. My honourable friends have mentioned lightheartedly the name of deValera and several other political heads of governments now in Europe. Mussolini and Hitler have been mentioned. My honourable friends, I was rather surprised, did not mention Stalin or Lenin.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : I was going to do so.

Premier : My honourable friends know perfectly well what happens in those countries to the political opponents of the people in power. Does my honourable friend want the same treatment to be meted out to the political workers here as is done in Russia ? (Interruptions).

Mr. Speaker : I am sorry that the Premier is again being interrupted.

Premier : I was asking them whether they would like us to act like Herr Hitler, Signor Mussolini or they would like us to act like Stalin, the hero of some of my friends opposite. Would they like us to act in the quick manner of these dictators ? I dare say, my honourable friend does not know what happened and does happen in Russia. If the same thing happened here, he should realise that he would no more be sitting on those benches but he would probably be elsewhere. (Laughter). They should also remember that de Valera, a few days after taking office, filled his country's prisons with his political opponents.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : That is what we expect now.

Premier : That is what we expect in other provinces.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : I may inform the honourable Premier that if Stalin is resorting to repression, it is to repress the traitors against the Republic. (Voices : Order, order).

Premier : Several friends have mentioned the case of Sardar Teja Singh Swatantar. An adjournment motion was sought to be moved in that connection in this House and several honourable members during the course of discussion on this particular resolution have also pointedly brought forward his name and have tried to criticise the Government and pillory it for not releasing him. I have got certain materials with me here but I do not know whether the honourable members would like me to detail to them some specimens of his activities that I know. As you are aware, it is impossible for me to refer here to information which would be detrimental to the interest of the province, or the peace of the country. But even so, I am prepared to give them some specimens of his activities in this House if my honourable friends are anxious to hear me. But that could be done only in a secret session, after having excluded the slightest possibility of publicity. It is not in the public interest to mention the activities of Sardar Teja Singh Swatantar.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I would, as a friend, advise you to refrain.

Premier : I am now in the hands of my honourable friend, the Leader of the Opposition.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Why not try Sardar Teja Singh ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Either do not make an appeal or refrain from giving out the information.

Mr. Speaker : Who will be responsible if there is leakage of the information you give to the House ?

Premier : It will be the responsibility of the whole House and not only of this House but of others who may listen and are not subject to our control.

Diwan Chaman Lall : If he is a dangerous man, why not try him ? Do try him.

Premier : What is the advice of the Honourable Leader of the Opposition regarding my divulging the information ?

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I cannot give any advice.

Premier : In the circumstances, I think I had better refrain from divulging any information.

Mr. Speaker : In any case the Honourable Premier's remarks will appear in the proceedings of the Assembly.

Premier : That would not be desirable. I could only take the House into confidence under stringent conditions of secrecy. (Voices : Do.) If the honourable members of the Opposition will ask their Leader to see it, I shall probably show it to him. I think that might be the better course. They should give a proxy to their Leader. In any case I can assure the Opposition that I have gone through the case of Sardar Teja Singh Swatantar very carefully not once, not twice, but several times, and each time I have found it very difficult to release him. I have looked at it from every possible point of view, and I have always come to the conclusion that it would not be fair to the province and it would not be in the interest of the province to release him at this stage. If, later on, I find that the atmosphere in the province is such, or the assurance which I propose to seek from my honourable friends results in improving that atmosphere which may justify my taking that risk, I will not hesitate in taking that risk (hear, hear). But I must confess that at the moment I cannot possibly see my way to release him straightaway.

Diwan Chaman Lall : He must be a great man indeed (laughter).

Premier : He is certainly a man whose past activities have to be noted by Government, but if my honourable friend who is sitting next to you, knew a few of the attributes of this man, he would surely ask me to send him away to a more distant place than where he is at present.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Was the Honourable Premier pointing to me ?

Premier : No, I was pointing to my honourable friend Lala Deshbandhu Gupta. Is it then not a question of Chor ki darhi men tinka ? (Laughter)

جو رکی دارھی میں تینکا

The cap fitting.

There is some information which even I have not thought it necessary to call for which probably will be much worse. I do not want to see it because it will tie my hands further. But I can assure my honourable friend that as soon as the atmosphere has cleared and the assurances are forthcoming from my friend, it will be easier for me to reconsider his case.

My honourable friends opposite have told us that we are callous, that we are a brown bureaucracy, and they have accused us of being absolutely impervious to the appeals of my friends opposite. I think that they have been unfair and unjust to us. Do they think that we derive any pleasure from keeping behind the bars our own kith and kin, people of the same blood, and those who come from the same class as we do ? Do they really think that we take pleasure in keeping them in jails ? They must remember, however, that we owe a greater duty to the province as a whole and to the country as a whole. They are mistaken if they think that for the sake of any cheap notoriety or for the sake of mere popularity we would jeopardise the safety of the province. They must look at it from this point of view also. They must not only look at things from their own angle of vision but also from our angle of vision. Let me assure them that we are not so callous as they consider us to be. We also belong to this country. If they do not consider us as patriotic as they think they are, they should give us credit for having at least some love of our country. But that does not mean that we should let out all political prisoners indiscriminately. We have also to see to the safety of 23 millions of this province, and it is our bounden duty that the safety, peace and tranquillity of the province is not jeopardised. But in spite of this, I am prepared to take the risk of releasing them, if my honourable friends opposite would give me an assurance that they will co-operate with me whole-heartedly in creating that atmosphere which will make it possible for me not to keep the political prisoners behind the bars. But pending the arrival of that ideal stage, there is an interim stage, and that stage is this that I will be prepared to take the risk and let out several of these prisoners. But there again, provided they give me an assurance—a gentleman's undertaking—that they will co-operate with me in trying to keep these people on rails and to see to it that they will not again try to do anything which is not fair and square. I do not want them to give up their political activities. I do not want the honourable member to give an assurance that they will not indulge in political activities. By all means let them indulge in all legitimate constitutional political activities, but all that I want is that they will not take part in subversive activities. If my honourable friend can give me that assurance that he will persuade these gentlemen—I think there were only six of them under Regulation III of 1818 when we took office—it will make my task easier. I have examined their cases and I am prepared to release three of them straightaway without any assurance except this that they will not indulge in any subversive activities (cheers).

With regard to the Martial Law prisoners, my friend opposite knows that we have released everyone of them. There are, I think, two more prisoners left of the First Lahore Conspiracy Case. Orders will issue with regard to one of them within the next few days and he will be also released.

Chaudhri Muhammad Abdul Rahman Khan (Urdu): Those who are suffering from incurable diseases, will they be released or not?

Premier: There are only six prisoners who have been detained under Regulation III of 1818 and if I can get this assurance through my honourable friend opposite, or friends opposite that they will give me whole-hearted support, I will release straightaway three of them without any examination. I have gone into their cases. (A voice: Who are they?) I am prepared to give their names to my friends opposite.

The only other category of political people who are undergoing restrictions are those who come under our own Criminal Law (Amendment) Act. On the 1st of April, 1937, there were six people under section 2 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act and twenty or twenty-one under section 8. I think my honourable friend opposite will be glad to know that several of them have already been released or will be released and there will be only four of them left. (A voice : Released on the expiry of their sentences?) No, no. There will be only four of them left. Their cases are doubtful, but they also will be released if we find later on that it will not be in any way detrimental to the safety of the province if they are released. With the exception of these four all have either been released or will be released shortly.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : What about Hardayal ?

Premier : If the honourable member had given me notice I would have been able to find out about him. Hardayal, I think, was responsible for the original Ghadar Society in Canada, but I understand that his movements are not restricted and he can go about. I have, however, not examined his case and I do not know whether there are any restrictions against him in this province. So far as I am aware, there are none, but I can inquire if my honourable friend wants me to do so. (A voice : What about the Lahore Conspiracy Case prisoners ?) I have already stated that one is going to be released and then there will be only one left. His name is, I think, Parmanand. Orders for his release have been issued and he will be released shortly. The second man, unfortunately, created trouble for himself. He ran away from the jail.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : I meant the Second Lahore Conspiracy Case prisoners who are more than four.

Premier : I have not considered those cases yet.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : When will they be considered ?

Premier : They will all be considered. Give me breathing time. I have nothing more to add except a few words of appeal to my honourable friends opposite. Let me also inform them that so far as the Punjab Government is concerned, it will not take action against any of these people so long as they do not go beyond the legitimate right of the individual to take part in political activity, so long as they do not indulge in subversive activity or take part in subversive activity, but once they transgress the line the honourable members will agree with me that the Government will be under a necessity to restrict them again. That warning I must give through the House and through the Press to those gentlemen who will be released, that so long as they confine themselves or their activities to legitimate constitutional channels, we will not take any action against them, but once we find that they are trying to go off the rails, we shall not hesitate to put them behind the bars, or, if necessary, to impose restrictions. But my honourable friends will be glad to learn that so far as —— (Interruptions). If the honourable members want to listen to me, I will finish in one minute, but if they do not want to listen to me, then I will sit down.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Go on, so long as you announce their release (laughter).

Premier : I was going to appeal to my friends opposite to help us by co-operating with us in creating an atmosphere which will enable me without any difficulty from the administrative point of view to release every political prisoner behind the bar. I assure them that I will not hesitate to do so once I have been convinced that it would be in the interests of the province.

I may inform them also that so far as Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan is concerned, I have decided not to re-impose the restriction against him and he is now at liberty to come to this province.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : When ? Just now ?

Premier : Yes.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : I only put this question because you said you are not going to re-impose these restrictions. Do I understand that this permission will be given to him after the expiry of the present restrictions or whether he is free to come to this province even now ?

Premier : Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan is welcome to the Punjab, even now, and I hope he will not do anything which will force me to re-impose the restrictions.

Lala Dushbandhu Gupta : What about the Second Conspiracy Case prisoners ?

Premier : If you ask me about it outside I may be able to look into the matter.

An Honourable Member : And what about Dr. Abdul Hafiz ?

Premier : To which category does he belong ? I am afraid I have not seen his name anywhere.

Mian Abdul Aziz : He is not allowed to come to India because he was implicated during the War days. He has been in Turkey for the last 12 years.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Ask Mustafa Kamal Pasha about him.

Mian Abdul Aziz : He will not perhaps like him to come here.

Premier : If he has gone to Turkey, perhaps it is a lucrative job for him and he may not like to return. But so far as the Punjab Government is concerned, we have not placed any restriction upon him.

Mian Abdul Aziz : I made several inquiries about him from the Government but the Government would not commit itself one way or the other. I will tell you his case fully.

Premier : If the honourable member writes to me I will look into the matter. But if he is a Turkish subject, it does not concern us.

Mian Abdul Aziz : He is not.

Premier : I see, there are some difficulties.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Sardar Bhagat Singh and his comrades were hanged because there was no body to plead their cause. Even now there are prisoners who have not been charged with any act of murder or dacoity. Is the Honourable Premier prepared to release them ?

Premier : If my honourable friends over there seem to be tired, I will close my speech.

Voices : No. They are very happy.

Mian Abdul Aziz : May I bring the case of Ahsan Ilahi to the notice of the Premier ?

Premier : If he gives me an undertaking that he will not—(Voices : Why any undertaking ?) My honourable friends do not like him to be released. I do not want any undertaking except this that he will not indulge in any subversive activities.

Mian Abdul Aziz : I will talk to him when I go back to Lahore and I think he will be prepared to give the undertaking.

Premier : As soon as the honourable member informs me that he is prepared to give that undertaking, he will not be kept in jail a minute longer.

Mian Abdul Aziz : I will enquire when I go back to Lahore. I think he will be prepared to give that undertaking.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh (Urdu) : Sir, I have heard this word 'subversive, being used by the Premier so many times. May I enquire what he means by this ?

Premier : The definition is not the same here as in Russia. There the definition is very simple, but here it is a very complicated one, as my honourable friend knows. I want to say a few more sentences, if they will allow me. In conclusion I want to make an appeal to my honourable friends opposite to help me to restore peace and tranquillity in this province, not only communal but also political peace. We want the province to progress, they also want the province to go forward. We are in this at one, and may I, as one of them, as their kith and kin, their brother appeal to them that they should join hands with us to create an atmosphere where it will not be necessary to discuss these resolutions, but to do constructive work so that we may be able to better the lot of those who are our brethren, but who, as we see, are now dying of hunger and are in trouble and distress, and whom we want to raise and want to bring up to that level where they can call themselves citizens of a civilized province and a civilized country, where they can properly exercise their civic rights. Sir, I am sure that the necessary response will be coming from my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition so that we should march hand in hand and raise this province of ours, so that this province of ours should not be known merely as the sword hand of India but also as the brightest jewel in the diadem of Bharat Mata.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban) : The Honourable Leader of the House the Premier, wants me to give him an assurance that these people, these patriots and co-workers of mine shall not, if released, indulge in subversive activities and that I should help him in creating a political atmosphere so that he may be able to release those people. I do not think any assurance is needed from me, a man who loves peace much more, if it is possible, than any person on the floor of this House. But I shall be in a position to give him that assurance provided he agrees to accept my advice, which is this that he should act in a way that it should be very difficult for them to think of doing anything objectionable or committing any violent act. The Honourable Premier should act in a way that the Punjabis may begin to think that Swaraj has come. It is only then that I can give him the assurance. If the assurance from his side is not coming, then I am afraid I cannot give him the assurance.

Sardar Ajit Singh (South-West Punjab, Sikh, Rural) (Punjabi) : Sir, I beg to submit that this state of affairs has reminded me of the well-known saying "to swallow a camel and to strain at a gnat". The Government could have released all the political prisoners in commemoration of the Coronation of the new king, or the Unionist Party could have commemorated its coming into power by releasing the remaining poor political prisoners who are rotting in jail.

Mr. Speaker : Is the honourable mover prepared to withdraw ?
(Voices : Withdraw).

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : I would have been glad to do so, if the circumstances had permitted me, but I must say that circumstances do not permit me to do so.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That in line 2 a comma be substituted for " and " occurring between the words ' Law ' and ' Lahore ' and the words ' Babbar Akali ' be added between the words ' case ' and ' prisoners .'

The motion was lost.

Mr. Speaker : The question is that—

This Assembly recommends to the Government that all political prisoners and detenues (including Martial Law and Lahore Conspiracy Case prisoners) be forthwith released and that restrictions imposed by the Government on free movement of all political workers in the Punjab be immediately withdrawn.

The Assembly divided : Ayes 27. Noes 95.

PUNJAB LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

1st SESSION OF THE 1st PUNJAB LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, 22nd July, 1937.

The Assembly met at the Assembly Chamber, Simla, at 11 A. M. of the clock. Mr. Speaker in the Chair.

STARRED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN THE PUNJAB CIVIL SECRETARIAT.

648. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the Punjab Civil Secretariat ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in the Punjab Civil Secretariat is very small ; if so, the action, if any, Government propose to take to allow their proportionate representation to the Sikhs ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) The information is available in the Consolidated Statement showing the proportionate representation of the various communities serving in the different departments of the Punjab Government, copies of which are distributed to honourable members annually.

(b) The number of Sikhs is not very small. During the quinquennium ending with 1st January, 1937, there has been an improvement of 3 per cent. Communal representation will continue to be taken into consideration at the time of recruitment.

Sardar Narotam Singh : Will the Honourable the Premier consider the desirability of stopping the recruitment of other communities till our community has got its due share ?

Premier : That is not the policy of the Government.

REPRESENTATION OF THE SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF INFORMATION BUREAU.

649. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the office of the Director of Information Bureau ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in this office is very small ; if so, the action, if any, Government propose to take to allow their proportionate representation to the Sikhs in the said office ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) The staff at present employed in the office of the Director, Information Bureau, Punjab, consists of 5 Muslims, 4 Hindus and 1 Sikh, giving a percentage of 50, 40 and 10, respectively.

(b) In so small an office, where some posts are reserved for experienced journalists, this representation of Sikhs is not unduly small, but the desirability of raising the Sikh proportion will be kept in view if and when the staff is increased or vacancy occurs in the non-Muslim element.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN PUNJAB GOVERNMENT PRINTING.

650. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the Punjab Government Printing ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in the Punjab Government Printing is very small ; if so, the action, if any, Government propose to take to allow their proportionate representation to the Sikhs ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The attention of the honourable member is invited to the Consolidated Statement showing the proportionate representation of the various communities serving in the different departments of the Punjab Government as it stood on the 1st January, 1937.

(b) The policy of Government is explained in the statement of the Honourable Finance Member in a debate in the Punjab Legislative Council on the 19th July, 1927, which is still the policy of Government and Government will continue to carry out the requirements of the formula contained in the said statement of policy.

It may, however, be stated that in a technical department it is necessary that men with technical knowledge have to be chosen. However, in case of marked disparity in representation the point is always kept in view that on the occasion of new recruitment such deficiency in the representations of different communities be made good as far as it is possible provided suitable recruits are forthcoming.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER, RURAL RECONSTRUCTION.

651. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Development be pleased to state—

(a) the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the office of the Commissioner, Rural Reconstruction ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in that office is very small ; if so, the action, if any, Government propose to take to allow their proportionate representation to the Sikhs in the said office ?

The Honourable Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram : (a)

| | Per cent. |
|---------------------|-----------|
| (a) Sikhs | 6.7 |
| Hindus | 20.0 |
| Muhammadans | 66.6 |

(b) The total number of all officials in this office, from the Personal Assistant down to the junior clerk, is only 15. It is not practicable to maintain precise communal proportions to which Muslims, Hindus and Sikhs may consider themselves entitled, in a small office like that of the Commissioner of Rural Reconstruction. But in filling future vacancies, an attempt will be made to redress existing inequalities.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN THE RECLAMATION DEPARTMENT.

652. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the Reclamation Department ;

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The honourable member will find the figures in the Consolidated Statement supplied to all members of the House.

REPRESENTATION OF SIKHS IN THE OFFICE OF THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONERS.

653. Lieutenant Sodhi Harnam Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- the percentage of Sikhs, Hindus and Muhammadans separately in the office of the Financial Commissioners ;
- whether it is a fact that the number of Sikhs in this office is very small ; if so, the action, if any, Government propose to take to allow their proportionate representation to the Sikhs in the said office ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Attention is drawn to serial No. 16 at page 10 of the Consolidated Statement showing the proportionate representation of the various communities serving in the different departments of the Punjab Government as it stood on the 1st January, 1937.

[Minister for Revenue.]

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The attention of the honourable member is drawn to the information as given in serial No. 17 of the Consolidated Statement showing the proportionate representation of the various communities serving in the different departments of the Punjab Government as it stood on 1st January, 1937.

(b) If there is any marked disparity in the representation of any particular community, an effort will be made to rectify it when fresh recruitments are made, provided suitable candidates are forthcoming.

(b) Government do not consider that the number of Sikhs in the Department of Industries is "very small", but intend to consider whether it is necessary to take any steps, subject to considerations of efficiency to improve the proportion of any class or community as and when future vacancies are filled.

| Community. | PERCENTAGE IN | | |
|------------|---------------------|----------------------|-------------------------|
| | Provincial service. | Subordinate service. | Clerical establishment. |
| 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| Muslims | 45.8 | 63.8 | 61.9 |
| Hindus | 20.8 | 21.7 | 24.1 |
| Sikhs | 29.2 | 13.2 | 13.6 |
| Others | 4.2 | 1.3 | 4 |
| Total | 100.0 | 100.0 | 100.0 |

(b) Part (i) No ; part (ii) does not arise.

Mian Abdul Aziz : Would it not be considered advisable for the Honourable Ministers, and particularly the Premier, to give directions to all the departments to make appointments according to the fixed percentage when filling vacancies and to avoid these communal questions in future ?

Minister : Does that arise out of my answer to the original question ?

SUPPLY OF WATER FOR RABI IN LUDHIANA AND JAGRAON TAHSILS.

*662. Chaudhri Muhammad Hasan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether he is aware of the fact that certain villages in Ludhiana and Jagraon tahsils of the Ludhiana district get canal water for the kharif crops only ; if so, the names of such villages and the area irrigated in each such village by canal water and the reasons for giving water for kharif crops only to these villages ;
- (b) whether canal water from the minor which supplies water to the above-mentioned villages is supplied throughout the year to the villages in the Ferozepore district ;
- (c) the reason for giving preference to the villages mentioned above in the matter of water supply ;
- (d) whether it is a fact that the people of the villages mentioned in (a) made representations to the authorities for the supply of canal water for both the crops, i. e., rabi and kharif ; if so, the result of those representations ;
- (e) whether the Government proposes now to make the canal water available to the villages mentioned in (a) above ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes. One hundred and thirty-one villages of the Ludhiana and Jagraon tahsils got kharif supply only. A list of such villages with areas irrigated during the last 3 years is placed on the table. The reason for giving kharif supply only is that the sub-soil water level is high and perennial irrigation would cause waterlogging. The area has a large number of wells for irrigation.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) Yes. The question was raised in the Canal Advisory Committee of the Ludhiana division and is under consideration there.

(e) No. It is neither advisable to give perennial irrigation to this area nor is water available for the purpose.

Statement showing three Kharif crops irrigated in the villages on Kharif Channels.

REMARKS BY SUB-JUDGE REGARDING JHANG CONCILIATION BOARD.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret that an answer to this question is not yet ready.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I have seen the paragraph in question and have had inquiries made. These show that the contents of the paragraph are entirely contrary to the facts.

SEARCH BY POLICE OF THE HOUSE OF COMRADE MUBARIK SAGAR.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (i) No.

(ii) Does not arise.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Is the Honourable Premier prepared to direct that political prisoners should not be detained in the Lahore Fort?

Premier : I am afraid it is an entirely distinct question and I should like to have notice of it.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Is the Honourable Premier aware of the fact that political prisoners are subjected to torture in the Lahore Fort?

Premier : I have already said 'no'.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Is the Honourable Premier aware that a Judge of the High Court passed strictures against the police for indecent treatment meted out to prisoners in the Lahore Fort?

Premier : I am not aware of any such strictures passed by the High Court, but if my attention is called to any specific opinion, I shall be prepared to examine it.

Sardar Sohan Singh Josh : Is he aware that Sardar Iohhar Singh of Chhina stated that he was rudely treated and it was even published in the papers?

Premier : I do not think this question arises out of the question which I have just answered. In any case I have no information of the kind mentioned by the honourable member.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Is the Premier prepared to institute an open enquiry into the matter of torture of political prisoners in the Fort?

Premier : I say there is no jabrr-o-tashaddud.

NOTIFIED AREA MANDI BAHU-UD-DIN.

*668. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Government some time ago had decided to declare Mandi Baha-ud-Din a 2nd class municipality?

(b) whether the notification declaring Mandi Baha-ud-Din a 2nd class municipal committee has now been cancelled; if so, why?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : The attention of the honourable member is invited to the reply to question No. *3991.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Minister please state how much land is owned by agriculturists and how much by non-agriculturists ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

COURT AUCTIONEER AT AMRITSAR.

670. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether the court auctioneer now appointed by Government at Amritsar has been selected from lawyers practising in another district ; if so, why ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

CHANGE IN AUCTION SYSTEM.

671. Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that a drastic change has been made in the system of court auction work ;
- (b) if so, the officers on whose recommendation the change was made and whether district and sessions judges were consulted before introducing the change ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

THE CIRCULAR ISSUED BY THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE, HOSHIARPUR.

672. Sardar Hari Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the Superintendent of Police, Hoshiarpur, issued a circular to the thanas requiring the sub-inspectors to state certain particulars about the applicants when forwarding their application for passports ;

(b) whether one of the particulars to be stated when forwarding the said applications for passports is the political character of the village to which the applicants belong ;

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

WORKING OF THE DEBT CONCILIATION BOARD, JHANG.

673. Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) the number of debtors who applied to the Debt Conciliation Board, Jhang district for the conciliation of their debts, from September, 1935 to 30th April, 1937, with the number of Muslims among them ;

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Figures are not readily available for the period mentioned, but from the date of the establishment of the Board up to the end of May, 1937, 4,048 applications were filed by debtors.

(b) The number of cases in which amicable agreements were effected from September, 1935 to the end of May, 1937 comes to 765.

The records kept regarding the work of Conciliation Boards do not classify cases according to the religion of the parties. It would not be possible to collect the information required in the last sentences of parts (a) and (b) without special enquiries entailing an expenditure of time and labour which would be out of proportion to the results to be secured.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : Is it not possible to have a list prepared giving the names of parties as appearing in the register ?

Premier : It will involve labour which would not be commensurate with the result.

- (c) whether it is a fact that the inspectorate in question is a subordinate agency to the deputy commissioners ;
- (d) whether it is a fact that the executive officers of the municipalities are subordinates to the deputy commissioners and not to the committees concerned ;
- (e) if the answer to (d) above be in the affirmative, whether the Government is prepared to pay for the maintenance of the inspectorate from the provincial exchequer instead of saddling the committees with their expenditure ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

- (g) whether the Government is aware that one of those schemes known as 'Bahadurnagar Scheme' is still pending with the commissioner for over a year although two successive deputy commissioners after local inspection of the site have recommended that it may be sanctioned;
- (h) whether the Government is aware that the rejection of the building schemes has caused great hardship to the people of Amritsar who are compelled to live in over-crowded city;
- (i) whether the Government is aware that the sites of these building schemes for 'new abadis' are for poor men's dwellings and not for bungalows;
- (j) the action, if any, Government proposes to take to expedite the sanction of these building schemes; if not, reasons for the same?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : I regret that the reply to this question is not yet ready.

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) The Municipal Committee of Shahbad was superseded in October, 1933, but it has now been decided to reconstitute the committee with effect from November, 1937. The new committee will consist as before of 10 members (8 elected and 2 appointed). There are separate electorates and of the 8 elected seats 5 are Muslims and 3 non-Muslims.

LACK OF MEANS OF COMMUNICATION AT SIMLA.

678. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state whether it is a fact that there are very few means of communication in the Simla district and that for that reason fruit trade, potato trade and other trades of Simla district are very much handicapped and suffer greatly; if so, the steps, if any, that the Government proposes to take in the matter?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : The means of communications in the Simla district are by no means inadequate. They have been and are being improved, however, every year as funds permit.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that the use of the road between Simla and Thanadar is allowed to private motor cars subject to permit being obtained ?

Minister : That question does not arise out of the answer I have just now read.

Lala Duni Chand : I appeal to you, Mr. Speaker, for a ruling on the subject.

Mr. Speaker : What is the honourable member driving at ?

Lala Duni Chand : My point is that there are very few means of communication in the Simla district for facilitating fruit trade. I therefore want that this road between Simla and Thanadar should be thrown open to public traffic.

Minister : I have already said that the means of communication are ample.

Lala Duni Chand : Perhaps the Honourable Minister has not understood me. I shall make it clear. Can the road between Simla and Thanadar be thrown open to goods traffic in order to improve the fruit trade ?

Minister : I require notice of the question. I will make enquiries if the honourable member writes to me.

BRIDGES IN THE SIMLA DISTRICT.

679. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in several places in the Simla district the hill streams, khud streams and rivulets are not bridged over or are very insecurely bridged over and that consequently a number of men and cattle perish every year during the rainy season while crossing them ; and if so, the action, if any, that the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : As far as the Public Works Department and important district board roads are concerned, all hill streams, khud streams and rivulets crossing them are properly bridged. There are, however, certain roads lying in the jurisdiction of the Hill States which are said to be unbridged and with which the Simla district authorities are not concerned. No action on the part of Government in the matter is required.

TIMBER AND FIRE WOOD FROM DEHATI FORESTS AT SIMLA.

680. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state whether it is a fact that timber wood for building purposes and firewood are not allowed to be cut from Dehati forests in the Simla district by the inhabitants thereof contrary to the terms of the settlement of 1882-83 ; if so, the reasons for the same ?

- (d) if it is a fact that as a result of the heavy loss of income from the above source the agriculturists of Simla district have had to run into heavy debts ;
- (e) the steps, if any, that the Government proposes to take to afford relief to these agriculturists ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) No. The area under poppy in rabi 1936, the last harvest in which poppy was grown, was 79 acres only out of a total cultivated area of 7,268 acres.

(b) Yes.

(c) The revenue remission granted is considered by Government to be an adequate compensation for the loss caused by the prohibition of poppy-cultivation.

(d) Since April, 1936, when the prohibition was enforced, the cultivators have lost only one harvest of this crop and Government have no reason to believe that their financial condition has been affected in the manner suggested.

(b) The matter is in the discretion of local bodies with whose freedom of action Government would be reluctant to interfere.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister enquire from the district boards and local bodies regarding the employment of people belonging to Simla district ?

Minister : My reply is quite clear. Government is reluctant to interfere with the local bodies concerned.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Government consider the desirability of encouraging people of places like Simla ?

Minister : It is certainly desirable, but the local bodies should be approached on the subject.

Lala Duni Chand : Do I understand that the Honourable Minister has nothing to do with the control of local bodies ?

Minister : The Minister is concerned, but in the first instance it is the concern of the local bodies.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister take any interest in the question that I have raised, namely, the recruitment of people belonging to Simla district in these bodies ?

Minister : I have already said that in the first instance the local bodies concerned should be approached.

Lala Duni Chand : Can the Honourable Minister please say how many persons belonging to Simla district are employed in these boards ?

Minister : I would not like to interfere in the first instance with the discretion of local bodies.

Lala Duni Chand : Do I understand that the Honourable Minister will not take any action in the matter even if the district boards and other local bodies refuse to take action in the manner suggested by me ?

Mr. Speaker : The question being hypothetical, is disallowed.

LACK OF PROVISION FOR DRINKING WATER IN SIMLA.

684. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether he is aware of the fact that in several villages in the Simla district there is no provision for drinking water and the inhabitants in general suffer greatly from the scarcity of drinking water ;

There are several other similar proposals in hand which will be executed during the current financial year, as soon as funds are available.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES FOR SIMLA DISTRICT.

685. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether he is aware of the fact that Simla district is very backward educationally ;

(b) what steps Government propose to take to provide the area with educational facilities ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Yes ; some parts of the district are admittedly backward in education.

(b) The Simla district is already graded at 100 per cent. for the purposes of grant for vernacular education ; the Kot Khai tahsil is included in the list of areas the agriculturists from which are granted half-fee concessions in the secondary department of Government and board Anglo-vernacular schools ; and free studentships are allowed in the lower middle department of the Government High School, Kot Khai, up to 20 per cent. of the enrolment instead of the 10 per cent. admissible under the rules in the Punjab Education Code. The claims of the Simla district will be kept in view whenever there is any proposals to grant further educational facilities to backward areas in the province.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Education kindly consider the suggestion of adding one or two more middle schools or one or two more high schools in Simla district ?

Minister : Is this a supplementary question ?

Mr. Speaker : No.

Lala Duni Chand : The Honourable Minister for Education will concede that it is a supplementary question.

Premier : The Chair does not say so.

Mr. Speaker : The next question.

REPRESENTATION THROUGH ELECTION ON THE MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, SIMLA.

686. Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether increased representation through election on the Municipal Committee, Simla, has been demanded for many years ;
- (b) whether the Government is aware that owing to the said demand not having been conceded a great feeling of resentment and dissatisfaction exists and is intensifying ;
- (c) the steps, if any, that the Government proposes to take to allay the same ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Government propose to reconsider the matter at an early opportunity.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that the right to control local self-government affairs was conceded to the citizens of every town more than fifty years ago ? Why is it that this right has not been conceded and is not being conceded to the citizens of Simla ?

Minister : I cannot speak on behalf of the past Government. The present Government propose to reconsider the matter.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works kindly state whether it is due to any pressure from the Government of India that the Simla Municipality is almost a nominated body so far or is it on account of your own views in the matter ?

Minister : Not to my knowledge. I said we are going to reconsider the matter. That is all.

Lala Duni Chand : Should I understand that the right of election is going to be extended on a large scale in Simla Municipal Committee ?

Minister : The honourable member can interpret the word "reconsider" in any way he likes. That is all I can say on the subject.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works kindly state whether he is prepared to consider the question of removal of the official president as well ?

Minister : We shall reconsider the whole matter.

Lala Duni Chand : I understand by the word "reconsider" that the Honourable Minister for Public Works is going to increase the right of election. Am I right in this interpretation ?

Minister : The honourable member had better consult the dictionary to understand the word "reconsider". (Laughter).

CYCLING ON CANAL BANK ROADS.

687. Sardar Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that in reply to question No. *2907¹ in the year 1980 the then Honourable Revenue Member informed the House that there was no restriction against using the reserved canal bank roads in the Punjab for cycling ;

- (b) whether it is a fact that cycling on the reserved canal bank roads of the Upper Jhelum Canal in Jaggu division between Sarai Alamgir Bridge and the Rahmanpur Head is prohibited by the canal officials ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that in the months of January, February and March last the cyclists were stopped by the canal officials on the reserved canal bank roads of the Rakh Branch Canal between the Khalsa College Lyallpur bridge and Chak Jhumra ;
- (d) if so, the action Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Superintending Engineer is being told to cancel any orders issued regarding the necessity for passes for cyclists. A similar question was answered before and it was unnecessary for my friend to put this question.

PLYING TONGAS, ETC., ON UNRESERVED CANAL BANK ROADS.

688. Sardar Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether there are any orders prohibiting the plying of tongas and lorries on the unreserved canal bank roads in the Punjab ;
- (b) if the answer to (a) above be in the negative, the reasons why the canal authorities interfere with the plying of tongas and lorries on such roads ;
- (c) whether the Government proposes to throw open such roads to traffic ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Orders have been issued recently that restrictions on the use of unreserved canal roads by vehicles, other than lorries, should not normally be imposed ; and that sanction of Government should be obtained, if it is considered necessary to close such roads to traffic.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Does not arise.

Sardar Kapoor Singh : Is the Government prepared to allow the district board to metal one of the two banks of these canals and open them for traffic to the public ?

Minister : Does that question arise out of this question ?

Sardar Kapoor Singh : There should be no bar.

Minister : That question does not arise out of this question.

TERMINAL TAX IN SADAR BAZAR MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, AMBALA.

689. Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the cantonment authorities as well as Sadar Bazar Municipal Committee, Ambala, have forwarded a recommendation to the Punjab Government to reduce the terminal tax on cloth from Rs. 1½ per maund to Rs. 1¼ per maund ;
- (b) if so, the action, if any, taken on the same ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that owing to the extraordinary delay caused in reducing the said terminal tax the cloth trade of Ambala Cantonment has suffered a great loss ;
- (d) if so, the action Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes. In the revised tax schedules received from these local bodies it is proposed to reduce the existing rate of terminal tax on cloth from Rs. 1-12-0 per maund to Rs. 1-4-0 per maund.

(b) The revised schedules are under the consideration of Government.

(c) The delay is due to the fact that there is a joint system for the collection of terminal tax for Ambala Cantonment and Ambala Sadar Bazar Municipal Committee, so that the schedules of both have to be brought into agreement. Government has no reason to think that there has been a great loss to the cloth trade.

(d) Does not arise in view of (b) above.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state how long it will take more to sanction the revised schedules ?

Minister : As early as possible.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Could he give some idea of the time ? Will it take two, three or four months ? It has already taken two years.

Minister : It will be expedited. The matter has been under correspondence with the army authorities.

Lala Duni Chand : It has already taken two years. Should I understand it will take another three years ?

Minister : Not at all. The delay took place because the matter was under correspondence with the Defence Department.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Is the correspondence over now ?

Minister : I said the matter is under consideration with the Government.

LACK OF DRINKING WATER IN CERTAIN VILLAGES IN SIRSA.

690. Pir Akbar Ali : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that in several villages adjoining the Bahawalpur and Bikaner State territories and the Sirsa tahsil there are no wells and consequently the inhabitants of these villages are compelled to use water collected in the village ponds for drinking and domestic purposes ;

- (b) the number of these villages ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that for about 4 months in a year the inhabitants of these villages are forced to bring water from a distance ranging between 2 to 4 miles ;
- (d) if the answer to the above be in the affirmative, whether the Government has done anything to give relief to these people in this respect ; if not, the action that is intended to be taken now ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Yes.

(b) The exact number of such villages is not known, but it is estimated that there are about 183 villages in the Sirsa tahsil where scarcity of water is felt.

(c) Yes.

(d) A statement showing the action taken by Government to give relief to people in whole of the Hissar district in this respect is laid on the table.

Provision for drinking water supply for the famine stricken district of Hissar.

THE question of improving the drinking water supply in the rural areas of Hissar district has been engaging the attention of the Public Health Department for over 15 years and repeated efforts have been made to discover sources of potable drinking water-supply. Although many methods have been tried to achieve this end no satisfactory solution has yet been evolved.

(A) In the year 1922 trial boring was done at the following places to determine conclusively if there was any likelihood of obtaining sweet water from the sub-soil :—

- (1) At Bhiwani, Hissar district.—The Sanitary Board sanctioned a sum of Rs. 2,195 and a tube-well was sunk to the depth of 250 ft. Only brackish water was found which was unfit for drinking purposes.
- (2) At Kalanwali and Sultanwali another project was sanctioned by the Sanitary Board estimated to cost Rs. 2,618 to put down a 4" bore through the bottom of the two existing wells. The bore at Kalanwali was sunk to the depth of 270 ft. but the water obtained from the strata pierced was exceptionally brackish and quite undrinkable. In the meantime it was found that a boring was already being made in the well at Sultanwali by the Agriculture Department and at the request of the District Board, Hissar, the second bore was made in an existing well at Bhutto Kalan instead of at Sultanwali. This boring was carried to a depth of 260' but no sweet water bearing strata was discovered here also.

(B) Again in the year 1920 trial boring was done at Jamalpur village at an estimated cost of Rs. 2,381. It was intended to supply water to 3 villages, i.e., Bhurtana, Karawar and Alakpur from this source.

The result obtained here too was quite unsatisfactory and no sweet water was struck.

All these experiments tended to show that suitable water cannot be obtained from the sub-soil while there are no suitable catchment areas, rivers or streams available. The only real means of effecting any improvement in this area appear to be either :—

- (a) storage of rain water— which in an area like Hissar district is a very unsatisfactory solution from the public health point of view ; or
- (b) extension of the canal water supply to feed the village ponds other than those already being supplied.

[Minister for Education.]

(C) In the year 1935 a scheme for the supply of canal water by means of irrigation channels to village ponds was prepared by the District Board, Hissar. This scheme commended itself to the Sanitary Board and Government sanctioned a sum of Rs. 6,000 as a grant-in-aid to the local body for digging channels for the purpose. Unfortunately the scheme could not materialize owing to certain technical objections raised by the Irrigation Department which necessitated a further consideration of the scheme. Investigation is still being carried out by the Irrigation Department to find out the possibility and suitability of alignment of open channels for supply of drinking water to the village ponds in the district.

(D) In March 1936, Government sanctioned a cent percent grant-in-aid of Rs. 14,000 to the District Board, Hissar, for the construction, as an experimental measure, of a pucca tank for the storage of rain water for supply of drinking water. This tank is in the course of construction at village Baragudah.

(E) In the year 1937 Government sanctioned another grant-in-aid of Rs. 20,000 to District Board, Hissar, for the execution of certain works for the improvement of water-supply in certain villages of Hissar district. This grant-in-aid was apportioned in small sums not exceeding Rs. 500 to about 55 villages for silt clearance, excavation of katcha ponds and enlargement of their existing ponds. It is hoped that the work will be completed before the commencement of rains.

(F) Besides, a comprehensive rural water supply scheme for Hissar district has been prepared by the District Board, Hissar and it is proposed to finance this scheme from the Government of India grant for rural reconstruction.

The works comprise of the following items :—

| | | Cost. | |
|---------------------------------|---------|-------|----------|
| | | Rs. | |
| Large pucca tanks | | 2 | 29,580 |
| Small pucca tanks | | 6 | 30,000 |
| Kunds (small underground tanks) | | 16 | 48,000 |
| Enlargement of katcha ponds | | 63 | 22,000 |
| Deep borings | | 2 | 2,000 |
| Smaller borings | | 4 | 2,000 |
| Repairs to pucca tanks | | 3 | 7,000 |
| Pucca Khals | | 4 | 2,000 |
| Khals for canal water | | .. | 3,420 |
| Total | | .. | 1,46,000 |

The estimated cost of the scheme is Rs. 1,46,000 and grant-in-aid of Rs. 98,914 has been recommended for disbursement as soon as the funds are made available.

(Pir Akbar Ali rose from his seat without being called upon and said "No. 690" in a very loud tone.)

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : On a point of order, Sir. Is it open for an honourable member to shout out his question unless he has been called upon to do so by the Honourable Speaker ?

Mr. Speaker : According to Rules unless a member's name is called by the Chair, he should not rise and put his question.

CONCESSIONS TO AUCTION PURCHASERS OF LANDS IN LYALLPUR.

696. Pir Akbar Ali : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that in the Lyallpur district some land temporarily granted to kamins (menials) and other similar vacant plots, were sold by Government by open auction in the year 1924 and 1926 ;

[Pir Akbar Ali.]

- (b) whether it is also a fact that most of these plots of land were purchased by the local zamindars ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that most of these zamindars who bought these plots in auction could not pay all instalments at the fixed time on account of fall in prices of agricultural produce and general depression ;
- (d) whether it is also a fact that out of these zamindars only such of them have been granted land equivalent to the money paid by them as purchased lands in auction held by 1926 and that similar treatment has not been accorded to the zamindars who purchased lands in auction held in 1924 ; if so, the reasons for this differential treatment ;
- (e) the action, if any, that the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) There were three sales of Government land by public auction in 1924 and 1926, viz :—

- (a) Kamins' squares, in 1924 ;
- (b) Chakku lands, in 1924 ; and
- (c) Baqaya land, in 1926.

The sale of (a) and (c) was restricted to the inhabitants of the chak in which the land sold was situated, but if the reserve price fixed by Government was not reached the outsiders were permitted to bid. There was no such restrictions in the case of the Chakku lands. It is possible therefore that most of the area was purchased by local zamindars.

(c) The purchasers of kamins' squares were to pay the amount bid in four half-yearly instalments beginning with rabi 1924.

In the case of the Chakku lands payment was to be made in six half-yearly instalments beginning with kharif 1924.

In both these cases the amount bid was payable before the fall in agricultural prices. Therefore default cannot be ascribed to economic depression.

In the case of the 1926 sale, payment was to be made in four half-yearly instalments. As the sale continued up to December 1926, in some cases confiscation took place after the 1st January 1930, and in these cases it is possible that default was due to economic depression.

(d) The concession given to auction purchasers of Government land owing to economic depression is that all auction purchasers, whose land was not confiscated before the 1st January 1930, have been permitted to purchase the area actually paid for up to the nearest acre at the price bid at auction. In calculating the amount at the credit of a purchaser the total interest due up to the date of confiscation is deducted from the total sum paid.

Several auction purchasers of 1926 have availed of this concession.

The purchasers of kamins' squares could not take advantage of this concession, because they had to pay their price by kharif 1925 at the latest, i.e., long before the economic depression set in.

The purchasers of Chakku lands had to finish their payments by rabi 1927; but as special case they were allowed in 1930 to retain the area they had actually paid for.

(e) None at present.

- (d) what action Government propose to take against the Electric Inspector in question in this respect ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) No.

(b) As the result of reorganisation the functions of the Electric Inspector and Electrical Engineer were separated. Therefore the work was completed by the Electrical Engineer.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The preparation of these statistics would require an amount of time and labour out of all proportion to the results obtainable. It is regretted that Government does not feel justified in calling for them.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : I regret that the answer to this question is not yet ready.

THAL PROJECT.

711. Khan Bahadur Nawab Malik Allah Bakhsh Khan Tiwana : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) the approximate date when the Government intends to proceed with the Thal Project ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that the Khushab tahsil of Shahpur district was included in the original Thal scheme for irrigation purposes ;
- (c) whether it is also a fact that Government now intends to exclude this tahsil, which has no other means of irrigation from the benefits of the Thal Project ;
- (d) if the answer to (c) be in the affirmative, the reasons therefor and whether Government intends to reconsider its decision in this behalf ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The Thal Project is still under consideration of the Punjab Government and no definite date can yet be assigned for taking up the project in hand. Endeavour would be made towards early starting of the work.

(b) Khushab tahsil was included in the Major Thal Project of 1919, but not in the Lesser Thal Project of 1924.

(c) and (d) It is proposed to give water to a small portion of the Khushab tahsil. There is no intention on the part of the Government to deliberately exclude this tahsil. The supply shown as available at present has been allotted to the areas where rainfall is very scanty. Should supplies be found to be more favourable, irrigation will be extended to those areas also where conditions of rainfall are somewhat more favourable also.

TIRNI IN KANGRA DISTRICT.

712. Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Tirni (cattle tax) is levied in the Kangra district ; if so, the grounds on which the tax is levied ;

- (b) whether any distinction is made between tax on cattle kept for commercial purposes and cattle kept for domestic use ;
- (c) the parts of the district in which this tax is levied ;
- (d) whether Government is aware of the general grievance that the levying of this tax has reduced the number of cattle in the district and has adversely affected the agriculture of the province ; if so, the action that the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes, for the benefit of the people themselves. Excessive grazing is the greatest menace to the fertility and stability of hill sides and ultimately results in gradual disappearance of large areas of forest and cultivated land. The tax has been imposed in order to protect the hill sides of the Kangra district and to preserve grazing for cattle and timber for the agricultural and domestic requirements of the people.

(b) No, but the tax is levied only on sheep and goats and on a comparatively small number of buffaloes kept by two classes of gojjars.

(c) Throughout the district.

(d) The figures available suggest that the number of sheep and goats in the district is less than it was when the tax was imposed. There are no indications that this has been anything, but a benefit to the district. No action therefore is proposed.

Captain Dina Nath : Is there such a tax in any other district of the Punjab ?

Minister : If there are hills in any other district, that point might be considered.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Will the Honourable Minister please state when this tax was first levied ?

Minister : I cannot give him the information offhand, but if he gives me notice I shall give him a reply.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Under whose authority was it first levied ?

Minister : I can give him the information if he gives me notice of it.

Diwan Chaman Lal : What is the actual amount of the tax ?

Minister : I cannot give that information offhand. I do not carry it on my fingers' tips.

Diwan Chaman Lal : Is the Honourable Minister satisfied that the incidence of this tax is not onerous ?

Minister : I do not think it is onerous.

Diwan Chaman Lal : How can he say that it is not onerous when he does not know the incidence of this tax ?

Minister : I know the incidence of this tax is not onerous.

Diwan Chaman Lal : I want, Mr. Speaker, to ask the Honourable Minister not to give a reply about which he does not know anything. If he does not know the incidence of this tax, how does he know whether it is onerous or not ?

Minister : I have certainly seen the papers, but I do not carry that information in my head.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I take it that the Honourable Minister is not sure ?

Minister : You may take anything you like.

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask whether the Honourable Minister is paid Rs. 3,800 a month to answer questions in this fashion on the floor of this House ?

Mr. Speaker : Order, order.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Is the Government satisfied about the legality of the tax ?

Minister : Yes.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Is the Government aware that this tax is doubled on goats after triennial enumeration even in the villages, which do not show any increase in the number of goats ?

Minister : Do you expect me to give that information right off ?

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : How does the Honourable Minister know anything about the legality of the tax without knowing anything about the authority on which the tax is imposed ?

SADHU SINGH AND PANDIT HAZARI LAL OF KANGRA DISTRICT.

713. Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Will the Honourable the Premier be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that sometime ago the names of Chaudhri Sadhu Singh of Solhal, thana Haripur and Pandit Hazari Lal of Mohana, thana Haripur, district Kangra, were entered in police register kept at thana Haripur and that they were thus declared badmushes ;
- (b) whether it is also a fact that movements of these gentlemen are restricted under orders of the local police ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that both the gentlemen mentioned above recently made applications to the Superintendent of Police, Kangra, for an impartial inquiry into the matter ; if so, the fate of these applications ;
- (d) whether the Government intends to remove the restrictions imposed on these citizens ; if not, why not ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) The name of Sadhu Singh was brought on to Register X in November last ; that of Pandit Hazari Lal is not on the register.

(b) No.

(c) Yes. The applications were filed after due inquiry.

(d) Does not arise.

Lala Duni Chand : Is it true that whenever subordinate police officers are displeased with respectable men, they resort to Register X and put down their names in it ?

Mr. Speaker : It is a general question and does not arise out of the answer.

Lala Duni Chand : I should be able to convince the Honourable Speaker in a second that the question is a correct one. If a certain state of things is complained of in a certain district, is it not open to a member to know that the same state of affairs do not prevail in other parts of the province? It has been pointed out that in a particular district the names of certain gentlemen have been put down in Register X.

Premier : Does the honourable member mean that Messrs. Sadhu Singh and Chanan Singh occur in every district?

Lala Duni Chand : I do mean that similar cases do occur in every district. They are treated in the same way, in which these gentlemen have been treated.

Premier : Men who behave like that will naturally be treated in like manner.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : What are the rules which govern the inclusion of men in Register X?

Premier : If the honourable member will give me notice I will refer him to the rules.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : Is any enquiry made before including names in this register?

Premier : I am almost certain, yes.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : Is there any appeal against such inclusion to any higher authority?

Premier : Inclusion in that register does not mean any restrictions on a man. It is merely an infrequent honour (trughter).

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : Does the Honourable Premier mean that if a man's name is wrongly entered in that register he cannot have any redress?

Premier : Oh! Yes.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : May I know what is that redress?

Premier : He can make a representation to the Superintendent of Police and failing any redress from that officer, to the next higher authority.

Lala Duni Chand : Will the Honourable the Premier give us any idea of the nature of the enquiry which is conducted before putting down a man in the register?

Premier : The honourable member is a lawyer and he should know it better than myself.

THURAL-SUJANPUR-HAMIRPUR-JAHU ROAD.

*714. Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that Thural-Sujanpur-Hamirpur-Jahu road was made motorable by the District Board, Kangra, after great expense on repairs and on construction of a bridge;

[Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma.]

- (b) whether it is a fact that motors have been plying on this road for a fairly long time ;
- (c) whether it is a fact that this road is now closed for motor traffic ; if so, when and why it was closed ;
- (d) whether Government intend to move in the matter and get the road opened for motor traffic again ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) and (b). This road was never made fit for motor traffic though motor traffic was permitted to use it for sometime.

(c) Yes and rightly so. The road had to be closed due to an appallingly bad lorry accident which occurred on 14th February, 1936, near Barsar, in which several lives were lost.

(d) This is a district board road which passes through very difficult country. Therefore, considerable time may elapse before the district board can find sufficient funds to bring the road up to the standard required to make it fit for motor transport. However, it is hoped that motor traffic subject to restrictions may be allowed on the road in November next.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Is it a fact that the district board is directly responsible for that accident which the Honourable Minister has just referred to ?

Minister : No.

Pandit Bhagat Ram Sharma : Is it a fact that the contractor of the district board was prosecuted for that accident under section 304-A ?

Minister : Yes, but he was let off. The lorry driver was held to be responsible.

NOMINATION TO SIMLA MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE.

*715. Sardar Kartar Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that a representation signed by about 500 people in Simla requesting that a particular person of Simla should not be nominated to the Simla Municipal Committee, was sent to the Punjab Government, sometime in the middle of 1936 ; if so, the action, if any, taken thereon ;
- (b) whether it is a fact that it is his third term as a municipal commissioner ;
- (c) whether Government is aware that there is a wide-spread discontent among the public of Simla on the nomination of this gentleman again and again to the exclusion of not only the other members of the Hindu community but also the Sikhs who take a share in the running of local self-government at Simla ?
- (d) whether Government is aware that the said nominated member owns rickshaw stands in Simla and enjoys facilities which are ordinarily denied to private individuals doing the same business ;

- (e) the steps, if any, that the Government proposes to take for nominating a Sikh on the Simla Municipal Committee?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) A representation purporting to have been signed by about 160 persons was received in December, 1936, but on account of its belated receipt no action was taken on it.

(b) Yes.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) None. Sikhs are not entitled to a seat according to the recognised formula of population and voting strength.

Sardar Kapoor Singh : What is that formula?

Minister : The mean of the voting strength and the population.

Sardar Kapoor Singh : What is the total strength of the Sikhs according to that formula?

Minister : It only comes to 31 which is less than one-third.

(i) when the work of electrifying Government buildings in Ambala was sanctioned;

(ia) when was this work started;

(ib) what was the reason for the delay in starting the work?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (i) Administrative approval was accorded on 12th June, 1935.

(ia) 22nd February, 1936.

(ib) The delay was due to the preparation of detailed projects for the buildings of the various departments; arranging contracts and completing other preliminaries and also to some extent to the re-organisation of the departments of Electrical Engineer and Electric Inspector.

DEPRIVING BHAI BASANT SINGH, SARBARAH LAMBARDAR, CHAK
No. 105-G.B. OF HIS RIGHT TO LAMBARDARI.

717. Diwan Chaman Lall : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Bhai Basant Singh of Chak No. 105-G.B., tahsil Jaranwala, district Lyallpur, who acted satisfactorily as sarbarah lambardar of the village for over 17 years, has, on the death of the lambardar, been debarred from succeeding to the lambardari of his village for all time on the ground that his son, Sardar Karam Singh Mann, Bar-at-Law, is an active political worker, contrary to the policy of the Government as enunciated during the first session of the Punjab Assembly;

[Diwan Chaman Lall.]

- (b) whether it is also a fact that Sardar Karam Singh, mentioned above, has never yet transgressed the bounds of law in his political activities ;
- (c) whether there are any other similar instances in which a father has been penalized for the legal activities of his independent son ;
- (d) if the answers to (a) and (b) above be in the affirmative, and to part (c) above in the negative, whether the Government has decided to remedy the wrong done to Bhai Basant Singh in depriving him of his hereditary rights ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : I regret that the answer to the question is not ready.

RAJBAAH JETHUWAL IN DISTRICT AMRITSAR.

718. Chaudhri Faqir Hussain Khan : Will the Honourable Minister for Revenue be pleased to state—

- (a) since when the rajbah Jethuwal has been running through the Amritsar district ;
- (b) the cusecs of water that it supplied when it was opened and supplies at present ;
- (c) the number of outlets in the said rajbah with details about their sizes, the total acreage of the area irrigated by them and the volume of water in cusecs they supply ;
- (d) whether within the municipal limits of Amritsar Municipality and outside it equal quantity of water is supplied for 1,000 acres of land ; if not, reasons for the same ;
- (e) whether any hydro-electric pumps have been installed on the said Rajbah ; if so, their number ;
- (f) the total cost of installing the said hydro-electric pumps on the above-mentioned rajbah and the amount spent annually on their repairs ;
- (g) the number of such pumps as have been working satisfactorily since the time of their installation and also of those that have been requiring repairs now and then ;
- (h) the additional area per pump that is being irrigated by the said rajbah ?

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) From 1863.

(b) It supplied 56 cusecs when it was opened and supplies 55 cusecs at present.

(c) The number and size of outlets are as per attached list. The total irrigation of the outlets is 7,765 acres and the volume they discharge is 50 cusecs.

(d) Yes.

(e) No. Some pumps were installed some distance away from the distributary as an anti-waterlogging measure and have been closed from September, 1936.

(f) As the pumps were not for irrigation purposes it has not been considered to collect this information.

Minister : The honourable member should realise that it is difficult for me to say '2 days' or '2 weeks.' But anyhow it will take normal time.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : In view of the fact that the strike is going on in the High School, is it not desirable to expedite the matter and take early steps ?

Minister : It has already been expedited and the enquiry is now on.

(iii) An enquiry was made by the Inspectress on behalf of the department. She recommended that the district board should transfer the headmistress.

Another enquiry has since been held on behalf of the district board by an officer appointed by the Deputy Commissioner whose report is still awaited.

(iv) The department has already recommended the transfer of the headmistress and will consider provincialising the school, if the district board is prepared to hand over the building.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : What was the nature of the complaint ?

Minister : The nature of the complaint was treatment towards the students.

PRIVILEGE OF MOTORING ON THE ROADS IN SIMLA.

Sardar Hari Singh : Will the Honourable Minister for Public Works be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the privilege of motoring on the roads in Simla is at present confined to their Excellencies the Governor-General of India, the Commander-in-Chief and the Governor of the Punjab ;
- (b) the law governing the privilege ;
- (c) whether the Government has considered the question of extending the same privilege to the Premier of the Punjab, if not, the reasons therefor ?

The Honourable Nawabzada Major Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana : (a) Yes.

(c) No. If and when the Premier desires it, the matter will be considered.

Minister : The office is held by the Honourable Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan at present.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Minister please consider the desirability of extending the same privilege to the Leader of the Opposition as well ?

Minister : This does not arise.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh (Urdu) : Is it a fact that in addition to the Governor of the Punjab and the Governor-General, other people also travel in their cars within the limits of the Simla Municipal Committee ?

Mr. Speaker : This question does not arise.

Sardar Hari Singh : Will this privilege be given to the Honourable the Premier ?

Minister : My reply is quite clear.

Sardar Hari Singh : Will this privilege be given to him if he makes a request ?

Minister : If the Honourable Premier desires, it will be considered.

ALLEGED ASSAULT BY A EUROPEAN PROFESSOR, GOVERNMENT COLLEGE, LAHORE.

Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : Will the Honourable Minister for Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether his attention has been invited to the news in the Press of the arrest and subsequent acquittal on the ground of ' benefit of doubt ' of a European professor of the Government College, Lahore, for an alleged indecent assault on a boy servant of the Liverpool Hotel ;

(b) whether the Government proposes to take any departmental action against the professor in view of his having been charged for a very serious offence ?

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye : (a) Yes.

(b) The matter is under consideration.

Chaudhri Muhammad Hassan : For how long has that professor been in service in the Government College, Lahore ?

JAGANNATH RATH YATRA AT PANIPAT.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Superintendent of Police, Karnal, made an eleventh hour alteration in the licence for the procession of Jagannath Rath Yatra which was due to be taken out on the 10th of July in Panipat against the established practice and custom of the town ;

(b) whether the alteration made by the Superintendent of Police prohibited the playing of music, singing of hymns, shouting of slogans before all the twenty-seven mosques which fall on the route of the procession ;

(c) whether the Hindus of Panipat did not take out the Jagannath Rath Yatra procession as a mark of protest and further observed hartal on the 10th of July ;

(d) what action the Government proposes to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan :

(a) Yes.

(b) Yes, but it is believed that the number of mosques is 13.

(c) Yes.

(d) The restrictions were imposed in the interests of the peace of the town and to meet the unusual situation caused by the communal tension now unhappily prevailing. There is no intention of repeating them in future years unless, of course, a similar emergency occurs.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Will the Honourable Premier be pleased to state whether it would not have been better for the officials there to have called the Hindus and asked them not to take out the procession in view of the abnormal circumstances instead of introducing an innovation in the licence ?

Premier : I have already informed the honourable member that it will not be treated as a precedent.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : Does that unusual situation still continue ?

Premier : No.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : Is the Honourable the Premier aware that so far as the question regarding music before mosques goes, this question has never arisen before in Panipat and that it is for the first time that this question has arisen either on the initiative of local authorities or on the initiative of somebody else ?

Premier : I hope it will be the last time.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : The honourable member probably refers to village Jogewala where some damage by hail-storms is reported to have occurred. As the estimated loss there was less than 4 annas in a rupee it was not found necessary to give any relief.

SIMLA :

The 20th July, 1937

H. W. EMERSON,

Governor of the Punjab.

RESOLUTION.

COMMUNALISM.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain (Multan Division Towns, Muhammadan, Urban) : Sir, I beg to move—

This Assembly recommends to the Government to adopt effective measures for the stamping out of communalism from this province and take immediate action by means of legislative enactments or otherwise to make the recurrence of communal disturbances impossible.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : On a point of order, Sir. My submission is that that portion of the resolution which reads 'and take immediate action by means of legislative enactments' is inadmissible under standing order 57 (c). In support of my submission I shall merely quote from this office letter No. 1269, dated 11th June, 1937, which reads : 'I am directed to inform you that the Honourable Speaker has ruled that resolutions which directly recommend legislation', etc., 'are inadmissible.' My submission is that this resolution divides itself into more than one part

The first part says, 'The Assembly recommends to the Government to adopt effective measure for the stamping out of communalism from this province.' It is all right so far as it goes. The second part says 'and take immediate action by means of legislative enactments.' This is a specific recommendation and as such my submission is that in view of the ruling that I have placed before you as contained in the letter of the Secretary in reply to a certain letter of mine, this part of the resolution is not admissible and should not continue to remain part of the resolution.

Mr. Speaker : I request the honourable member to read the resolution to which the letter, he has quoted, is a reply. The request in that resolution was for introducing legislation on specific subject, while that is not the case here.

Premier : May I satisfy the honourable member by saying that Government has no intention of adding to the existing legislation? The existing legislation is ample for my purposes at the moment. If at any time I consider it necessary that further legislation is desirable or needed to strengthen my hands, I shall of course come to the House for it.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : The object of my point of order was not to elicit the information that the Honourable Premier has been pleased to give. The object was only to make the matter more clear for our future guidance so far as giving of notice of resolutions, etc., is concerned, because more than once we have been met by the objection that our resolutions are not in order because they recommend taking steps of a legislative nature. At any rate the information given on the floor of the House by the Honourable Premier will go a long way to modify or tone down the debate on the resolution.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : Mr. Speaker, the other day when we were discussing the Members' Allowances Bill, the Honourable Premier was pleased to remark that we in the Punjab are out to give a lead to the rest of India. A member from this side shouted, 'yes, lead in high salaries.' I think the honourable member who shouted was probably oblivious of the painful reality that we in this province were notoriously well-known for giving lead in communal wrangles too. It is a pity that in this blessed land of ours a man feels justified in cutting the throat of his neighbour for the simple reason that he happens to possess a different faith. Sir, in the name of religion and godliness the blackest of crimes and the most cold blooded murders are being perpetrated, (hear, hear) and actually there are people in the province who have the audacity to acclaim these crimes as acts of godliness. The communal disease is sapping the vitality of the nation and all thoughts of progress, economic and political, are mere dreams so long as communal disturbances are the order of the day. It is impossible for us to expect that we can make any progress whatever in any sphere of life. It is most distressing to note that while other countries and other nations are marching on the road of progress, we here, like primitive men are trying to kill one another and gloat over our victories for having exterminated our fellow brethren with whom we have lived for so many centuries. The present state of affairs is simply abhorrent and with the growth of national consciousness it cannot continue. I cannot resist the temptation of quoting one or two verses with slight alteration from our national poet, Dr. Iqbal, on the subject. (Hear, hear). (An honourable member : What about Pakistan ?) He says in one verse—

وان قوم کی اصلاح ہوتی ہے اور باہم ہمارے جلسے ہیں
 یں بھٹ من اردو ہندی ہے یا قرآن یا جھٹکا ہے

He depicts the end which is awaiting nations which are engaged in intercommunal wrangles. He says—

اے شیخ و برہمن سنتے ہو کیا اہل بصیوت کہتے ہیں
 مگر دون نے لڈنی سے ان قوموں کو دے پٹکا ہے

We may have innumerable differences with our friends of the Treasury benches. We may not be able to see eye to eye with them on any subject, but this is a matter in which I can assure unhesitatingly my friends opposite, on behalf of the Opposition, that our fullest support and co-operation in eradicating the evil of communalism is with them. We are anxious to see that our province marches on the road of progress and we are equally anxious to see that all those obstacles and hindrances which stand in the way of that march should be removed without any delay. I shall be failing in my duty, if I do not mention in their broadest details the causes which unfortunately have led to the prevalence of the communal disease in the province. It is vehemently maintained in certain quarters that the vernacular Press of our province is irresponsible, and in order to augment its circulation indulges freely in scurrilous communal bickerings which stir up communal riots in the province. I am not personally subscribing to this wholesale condemnation of the vernacular Press and I may fearlessly say in this connection that the worst offenders are some of those papers perhaps, which consider that they are secure because nobody can touch them (hear, hear). I may say that they are the people who can misquote the proceedings of this House and who give headings like 'Butcher M.L.A. unseated.' There are other papers which consider that they being the favourites cannot be touched. I do not personally hold brief for any paper. I would say any paper and every paper which indulges in stirring up communal mischief should be treated alike, high or low, big or small, I mean that no distinction should be made between any papers or any individuals (hear, hear). If there are people, who are living on stirring up communal riots, if there are men, whose only vocation in life is to stir up people to communal mischief, I would request Government to take immediate and strong action and even ruthless action against those people (hear, hear).

Then, there is the most controversial and delicate subject of communal award and communal electorates. There is a section amongst the Muhammadans who feel that the communal electorates are the only safeguards or as a matter of fact the magna charta of their liberties. I must admit, that this section is not a small one. But I must also point out that this continuous dinning into our ears that Muhammadans cannot be protected but for this communal award has given a sort of inferiority complex and they have made the Muslims feel that without such a protection they cannot exist and that they will be eaten up some day by the Hindus or the Sikhs of the province. I may respectfully urge that I do not want to make any secret of my opinion that these communal electorates mean a clear negation of nationalism (hear, hear). They cannot afford any protection whatever to any community (hear, hear), and so long as they continue they are more harmful than the purpose for which they have been brought into existence. (A voice: Disgrace to India.) I do not know whether it is a disgrace to India or not. If any authority is needed I may just quote the opinion of the Montague-Chelmsford Report on the subject. (A voice: What is the opinion of the majority of the Muslims of India?) The opinion of those gentlemen is that these communal electorates are opposed to the teachings of history and that they create divided allegiance which is against the sense of citizenship. And further on, they say that they perpetuate class differences and they stereotype existing relations. This opinion was endorsed, in 1930, by the Indian Statutory Commission. But in spite of all that we have got these communal electorates, and I may point out that they foster a communal sense and a communal mentality because representatives to the legislatures and the local bodies have to appeal to their respective communities and not to the nation as a whole. It, therefore, becomes absolutely essential that they should appeal to them in terms which are not national. What is the result of those appeals? I have a vivid recollection of the Assembly election days when I read in a section of the Hindu Press: "Hindu jati in danger, Hindu religion in danger." And what was the danger? The danger of the Muslim raj, the danger of the fact that the Unionist Party was going to form the majority party in the province. This was the danger which was repeated in the Hindu Press. The words used were that the Unionist Party was the chief protagonist of disunion in the country. It was maintained that the Unionist Party were creating a governing caste in the province. Yet when the elections were all over, when these gentlemen who were responsible for disseminating those opinions had comfortably got into the legislatures, what do we find? All that danger to the Hindu jati vanished, no danger was left; and the only problem with which these veteran, old experienced gentlemen of the Hindu jati are concerned, now, is the problem of how best to prevent the growth of population in the province. I may submit that these communal electorates even by their most ardent supporters are agreed to be a necessary evil, which must go sooner or later. It is admitted that they are an evil and as an evil they cannot exist for long and the sooner they go the better for the people of the province. I have studied this question very carefully and I find that the trouble lies in the mentality which at present exists in the province (hear, hear). We have been brought up in a definite set of ideas, living with a definite set of people with no knowledge of the other side of the picture. As we do not know, we cannot appreciate the ideas of the other people, we have thus created the mentality which may safely be called a communal mentality.

We, grown up people, must make a conscious effort to eradicate that mentality. We must understand that communalism can no longer prosper in the country. (Hear, hear). But our real work lies in schools and colleges (hear, hear) where our future premiers, ministers and public men are in the making. This is the subject which concerns the Education Minister, who, I am glad to see, has just now arrived. I would address to the Minister for Education certain definite proposals which he may take into consideration for eradicating this communal mentality in our schools and colleges. The first thing to which attention should be paid is the offensive literature, which at present is found in our schools and colleges. History and other text-books which are taught in our schools and colleges bring into prominence our points of difference. They do bring into lime light the supposed forcible conversions of Aurangazeb but leave to the background the fact that in the Moghul period most of the important appointments were held by non-Muslims. Even to-day nawabs, rais and jagirdars have in their services almost trusted servants Hindu munims who in some cases wield more influence than the members of the household themselves.

An Honourable Member : Can you cite an instance ?

Maulvi Mazhar Ali Azhar : Even the present Government has got a Hindu munim in the Finance Minister.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : This is the first point that should be looked into. A comprehensive survey of all the text-books with a view to nationalise them is absolutely essential. The second thing which I will suggest in this connection is that in future only those books should be prescribed as text-books which try to bring the various communities nearer to one another and which bring into prominence the points of concord among the various communities. The next point which I should like to touch is with regard to our denominational institutions. One cannot deny that these institutions have been serviceable in imparting literacy to the people of this province. But there is no gainsaying the fact that they are the centres where communal hatred and communal ill-will are engendered in the minds of young boys. With regard to these institutions it is not possible to nationalise them by one stroke of the pen ; nor is it possible to do away with them. But I should like to make two or three suggestions in regard to such institutions. The first is that in future those institutions which show an appreciable number of students of other communities on their rolls should be chosen for special consideration. The second is that in those institutions some percentage of management and some percentage of the staff may be conceded to other communities. So far as the recruitment of staff is concerned it should be made a rule that the recruitment should be made on non-communal basis and with the previous approval of the Education Department. Before I finish with the Education Department I should like to say one word, and that is with regard to our future nation builders, the teachers. These teachers are now being recruited by the Department on a new scale of pay as they call it. It is expected that we should be able to get hold of decent men to take up this nation building work on forty-five chips per mensem. That is really scandalous.

Minister for Education : I rise on a point of order. Is the salary of the teacher under discussion now ?

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member is not speaking to the motion.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : I believe that this is the most important point. Unless we have a proper staff to train our young boys, we cannot hope for salvation in this country. I submit that proper staff should be recruited and that proper material on the offered conditions and salaries will not be available.

The next thing which I wish to submit in this connection is that this communal trouble is intimately connected with the economic trouble. It is the duty of the Government to see that unemployment in this country is removed as soon as possible. (Hear, hear). All recruits to these subversive activities, all recruits to these communal disturbances are found from the ranks of the unemployed. When the question of bread is settled, I feel sure that communal wrangles in this province will cease to a considerable extent.

There are other and minor considerations which deserve notice by the Government. These are more or less of a temporary character. They are not deep-rooted, for instance, music before mosques or the question of routes of processions and so on and so forth. But these questions are not at all the root cause of communal troubles in the province. If there is communal harmony and peace, these music and processions will never cause any trouble.

The resolution which I have moved consists of two parts. The first part is with regard to the action to be taken immediately to stamp out the evil which is already existing. The second part deals with the preventive action which should be taken in the matter. I may point out in this connection that as many as four communal riots have taken place in the province within a period of four months. It was pointed out by the Premier some days ago that these communal riots were deep-seated and that there were persons who were responsible for fomenting trouble and he promised to take strong action against those persons, but no action has so far been taken. The reason is not far to seek. The reason, if I may venture to say it, is that if action is taken against Muslims there are communally-minded Muslims, who will come up and say that in order to placate the Hindus and Sikhs the Government of Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan is trying to bring the Muhammadan community to grief.

Premier : Let me assure my honourable friend that that consideration will not deter me from taking any action.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : I am very glad that such considerations are not going to deter the Honourable Premier from taking any action. But I may, also point out, that so far no action worth the name has been taken. At Panipat the riot occurred about four months back. In connection with that riot certain details were brought to the notice of Government which deserved immediate consideration and we were promised that if action is taken in the matter all the details would be laid before the House. But unfortunately no details so far are forthcoming or at any rate the House has not been taken into confidence by the Government as to what it has done in the matter, and what is going on there.

Premier : Lala Deshbandhu Gupta will tell you as to what is going on there.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : He, too, has not taken us into his confidence. The other part of the resolution is with regard to the action to be taken by way of legislative enactments or otherwise to make recrudescence of communal disturbances in the future impossible. With regard to that the Premier has just now made a statement that he does not need any further legislation on the subject. The present law on the subject is contained in sections 153-A and 505 of the Indian Penal Code and it provides two years' punishment or fine or both in the case of offenders of this type.

I believe that this national Government is not making use of those enactments. The Premier is probably referring to Criminal Law Amendment Act. We should not make use of that enactment which is worse than the evil which is proposed to be eradicated by means of the resolution. The present law, as it stands and as has been conceded by the Honourable Premier, is enough to meet any eventualities. Consequently there is no need to make any further suggestion on the subject. All I wish to say is to appeal to all sections of this House to support this resolution. It is clear that if communal wrangle and communal mischief is permitted to go on like this in the province, it will be most harmful to us in every sphere of life and I will, therefore, make a fervent appeal to all my friends on this side as well as my friends on the other side to give their support to this resolution. (Cheers).

Mr. Speaker : The resolution moved is —

This Assembly recommends to the Government to adopt effective measures for the stamping out of communalism from this province and take immediate action by means of legislative enactments or otherwise to make the recrudescence of communal disturbances impossible.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar : In view of the statement of the Honourable the Premier and in view of the observations of the honourable mover of the resolution himself with respect to the words that occur in the resolution, will he now be good enough to agree to the deletion of the following words from the resolution—“take immediate action by means of legislative enactments”?

Mian Abdul Aziz : That will be after the discussion.

Premier : I was going to suggest that instead of the words “legislative enactments” the words “legal action” be put in.

Khan Bahadur Mian Ahmad Yar Khan Daulatana (Mailsi, Muhamadan, Rural) : I think I will be unjust to the resolution that has been moved by my honourable friend and the great speech that he has made while moving it if I make a long speech and try to make a case in favour of this resolution about the subject matter of which there should be no two opinions in this House. I am not going to take more than five minutes of this House as I understand there are many of my friends who wish to express their views on this subject. I feel when a man has no design but to speak plain truth he may say a great deal in a very narrow compass. The province owes a debt of gratitude to my friends, who have given notice of the resolutions that are to be discussed by us to-day and before I say a word or two about this matter, I must sincerely congratulate our Honourable Premier and his colleagues who have launched an anti-communalism campaign in this province (hear, hear). That is a campaign which, I am sure, will be approved by many of us and all of us would like it to be as effective as possible. There was a time when the representatives of the people were rightly reluctant to place special powers in the hands of the Government or to ask them to make full and free use of such powers. It was the time when law and order was in the hands of those who were not amenable to the influence of public opinion and some of us also said that they were more interested in their special point of view than in the general welfare of the province as desired by the people. But now law and order is administered by a popular Minister who derives authority from us and through us from the people of this province (hear, hear). He can only remain in office if he enjoys the confidence of this House. Therefore, there should be no fear of any abuse of power on his part. Some of us have been accusing in the past the so-called third party which in their opinion was greatly responsible for our communal troubles but now that party has almost retired from the field of administration. (Voices: It is still there.) The task of preventing communal troubles has become our own responsibility. The question is, are we going to hesitate in using the powers, of course judiciously, that are open to us in combating this great evil? We can no longer hide our own failures behind the theory of a third party. If we want, and I am sure all of us want, that communal troubles and riots should be a thing of the past, then let us strengthen the hands of our representatives in the Cabinet so that they may be able to establish a very effective control on all the fomentors of communal hatred.

Sir, a few days ago I wrote an article in the Press in which I invited the opinion of the public regarding the desirability of our nationalising a festival and I have received several letters in that connection and many writers of those letters have discussed the question at length. With your permission, I may quote one extract from a letter that I have received from a friend of mine who is a great well-wisher of our province but whose name I am unable to disclose at the present moment. He says—

“Intolerance in the citizens of a country which fortunately or unfortunately is inhabited by people belonging to different faiths and creeds is nothing short of a disease that has possibility of developing into an infectious epidemic and a deadly contagion and therefore those who show symptoms of this disease must be segregated at any cost and at any sacrifice with the pious, almost religious object of keeping the healthy individuals free from the plague. I would go to the extent of suggesting that a sanatorium or a kind of a health resort may be established somewhere in the wilderness of a distant island in the British Empire where all those who indulge in fanning the fire of communalism and class hatred should be despatched without any further delay so that they may be able to settle the affair between themselves either by killing each other or by rationally understanding each other's point of view so that we may be saved this pestilence which like a cancer has eaten up the very core of our political life.”

I felt really flattered when the honourable mover of the resolution suggested some means for driving out the communal demon from our province as I had suggested to this honourable House a few days ago while speaking on the University grant and I had a mind to explain the nourishment that the tree of our communalism received but now I think it is absolutely useless—

حریفان یاده ما بحر درد ورناند
 نهی نمکانه ما کردند ورناند

Others who came before us, had their bouts in the wayside inn, and sped fast;

And lo! when we came we found the tavern empty and the goblets dried and broken.

[K. B. Mian Ahmad Yar Khan Daulatana,]

The function of the Opposition in a parliament is generally understood to be to oppose. But there are certain very important common interests which should be regarded as above party-politics. I venture to say that the prevention of blood-shed during communal riots and disturbances is the most important of such interests for the Punjab. I, therefore, appeal to all parties in this House to support the present resolution. If we in this notoriously communalism ridden province want to turn a new leaf in our history we should agree to regard those who excite inter-communal hatred as the greatest offenders against society and we should give our Government to whatever party it may belong a mandate to give no quarter to such arch criminals. True freedom is a commodity for which we must pay the price of strict self-discipline. The time has gone when discipline had to be imposed upon us by others. We have now the great privilege of being able to impose discipline on ourselves. Let us shed slave's mentality, which fights shy of discipline, because discipline is imposed on him by others. Let us show the mentality of the free-man, who is capable of imposing discipline on himself. Before I sit down I will recite one or two verses from my poem that I recited the other day in a mushaira. I wrote a poem last week on the present politics of this country and I am only going to recite those verses that are relevant to this issue—

یہی سپر گاہ ہے صید گاہ اور اسی میں دھم دھم ! الہوس

Mr. Speaker : The honourable Mir Maqbool Mahmood may now speak to the resolution but not move his own.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood (Amritsar, Muhammadan, Rural) : Mr. Speaker, I am happy to feel that on the resolution that we have before the House there is neither the Treasury bench side nor the Opposition side. We are happily discussing a subject on which the House is united, and I hope I am not trespassing beyond my rights when I say that my honourable friend the mover of the resolution did not do so because of any motion on the part of Government to deal with communal situation. In fact we are all united, whatever may be our differences on other matters of policy that so far as communal disturbances are concerned the Government have done their best in difficult circumstances. More than that, Sir, as has been indicated, the giving of emergency powers to deal with such situations would not be entrusted to braver, sterner and cleaner hands than those of the Honourable the Premier. (Hear, hear).

Then, Sir, it may be asked, what is the necessity of this resolution? I will try to answer this question. I have partly been anticipated by the Chief Secretary of the Unionist Party, my honourable friend Nawab Ahmad Yar Khan Daulatana. It is an open secret that when in the past the sad spectacle of communal riots came about to our shame, we used to find relief in the thought that this was due to the engineering of a third hand. That may be justified or not justified, but the fact is there that every time the claim of India's rising to its full stature of liberty was resisted by foreigners and our own countrymen. In the provincial sphere we have got the national government but the riots are still there and they have not gone away and only recently we have had a serious eruption in the communal volcano. It is therefore but natural and timely that the best elements of the country, the patriotic members on both sides of the House should join their hands and hearts and see that the communal disturbances do not besmear the face of this province and that we evolve an atmosphere in which the communal malady does not become a pathological affair. If it should need a major operation, let it be performed. What does the resolution seek to do? It says, in the words of the honourable mover, stamp out communalism. What communalism do we mean? Not the healthy communalism which means the service of your own communities consistently with the respect for the legitimate rights of others and the bigger interests of the country (hear, hear), nor the fearless pursuit of our own religions with due regard to the susceptibilities of others. This is not the communalism which this resolution seeks to stamp out. But there is another type of communalism, the communalism that in the name of religion permits and instigates attacks, unprovoked attacks on the lives and properties of innocent citizens, the communalism, the godless communalism that refuses to bend its arrogant head and its evil hand and keep away from the hearts and bodies of mothers and daughters and sisters of other religions, the communalism that allows in the name of God and religion the shedding of free blood of people of other religions. I am sure that this is the type of communalism which all true patriots and all members of this House wish to see eradicated. That is what my honourable friend the mover of the resolution seeks to get rid of in this province. But, the question is how to do it. The resolution suggests that effective steps be taken to do so. I will go a step further and say that summarily, courageously and ruthlessly, if I might borrow one word from the honourable mover of the resolution, people, high or low, pressmen or people on the platforms, officials and non-officials, Hindus, Muslims or Sikhs whoever contributes to the communal disturbances should be dealt with ruthlessly, because they are not only enemies of their own country and India, they are the enemies of God Himself. Remember what the great sage of Arabia said—

“Those who in the name of religion do injustice and mischief to other religions are like the meatless bone of a dog in the hands of a leopard.”

Lala Duni Chand : Will appeals to religion and God bring about a solution of communalism?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : If appeal to God can bring about softness to the hearts of the honourable member opposite, it will do. (Hear, hear). God has chosen man as his vehicle to bring about his results and it is prayers that move the heart of man and I hope that the honourable friend who has just interrupted me will co-operate with us in the same spirit.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : In the right spirit.

Mr. Speaker : Please do not interrupt.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : It may be asked, what is the trouble with the communalism ble that we wish to see eradicated? I have tried to indicate the various symptoms and the various causes. It may be asked what are the reasons for which we fight. I submit, I do not want to take the time of the House in detailing these things, but it may be said that services are the cause of this communalism. But remember services employ only two out of every thousand of the Punjabis, 998 still remain whose problem has to be solved. It may be said that it is the Communal Award. Remember it is easier to replace it by goodwill and common adjustment than by fighting it out. It has been said that it is percentage of representation on local bodies. Remember that one good Muhammadan, Hindu or Sikh added cannot solve the problems of local bodies. They can be settled amicably by common agreement. Then reference has been made to music before mosque or the type of meat that we eat or we do not eat. I submit these are not subjects which can warrant the butchering of innocent human beings. I claim with all the enthusiasm at my disposal that these issues are capable of adjustment by our sitting together as brethren. I claim that they are petty in comparison to those big interests which are common to us all and which can only be solved by national efforts. Reference has been made by my honourable friend the mover of the resolution to the question of unemployment. I would add the question of poverty. Average income of the majority of our countrymen is not above the average expenditure on feeding and clothing a Punjabi Prisoner. You cannot solve these problems, you cannot help the people so long as communalism is rampant. Talking of unemployment, our graduates are to-day striving hard and cannot earn the income of even a constable of police. We have seen, as has been repeatedly remarked in this House that promising young graduates in desperation have laid their heads under a running engine. We will be failing in our duty if we do not apply ourselves to these questions.

Lala Duni Chand : Government is responsible.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : Government is responsible to this extent that the Ministers were brought to these benches earlier than 1937.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Is it not a fact that the Honourable Premier was a member of the Government for many years ?

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : He was a wheel in the Government machinery springs of which were in the hands of somebody else, but as everyone knows his contribution has always been patriotic and constructive. (Hear, hear). How then, it may be asked, do I propose to eradicate communal riots and communal troubles in the country? Read history. Follow the lessons of history writ large on the pages of nations. What do we find? In the making of nations, everywhere, the first creative power has been thought. Before anything happens, before Italy was united, before Germany became one, before Canada was a nation, the new thought movement started that we shall be united and a sentiment came that whatever stands in the way of nationalism should be demolished. That I submit is the need of to-day. Let us realise as united Punjabis in this House that we mean to set up a new thought and new traditions. But remember that in such cases the lead must come from this House and I submit with all the earnestness that I can command that we should set up a self-imposed ordinance or evolve a general agreement that we shall not for one year to begin with—and I hope it will be extended later—put any question or move any motions which are likely to stir up any bitterness (hear, hear) and I assure my honourable friends that we on these benches will carry out solemnly this promise and I expect my honourable friends on the other benches will do the same.

[Mir Maqbool Mahmood.]

Lala Duni Chand : We have not put any communal questions.

Mir Maqbool Mahmood : I hope that he will do the same thing in the future, but if there are any legitimate and genuine communal grievances, let them not be referred to the House but to the Inter-communal Goodwill Committee which the Honourable Premier will soon set up. Let them deal with these questions in the manner best possible. More than that, merely, not asking questions will not do. Each one of us will have to take a pledge that publicly and privately in our constituency or elsewhere we will do nothing to stir up communal bitterness and that we will do all we can to encourage goodwill in the country. That would be a step in the right direction and I would not exclude the Government which has started so well in this direction and I appeal to them to make it clear to its officers that a new tradition has been set up in the country and that the officials will discourage all high or low from in any way raising any communal bitterness. I would further suggest that the Government should set apart a certain portion of their patronage such as jagirs, inams, titles and other distinctions for those who have done really good work in the matter of communal goodwill. Various suggestions have been made on the floor of this House by the honourable mover and others to eradicate communal feelings and bring round communal harmony. These suggestions can be detailed but this is not the occasion and I would submit that all these suggestions and various others that can be made by other members should be tabulated and forwarded to the Honourable Premier so that they may be placed at the right time and in the right atmosphere before the Unity Conference.

One word more and I have done. It has been said that communalism is rampant in the country and that there are riots and that this is the wrong time to start these things. That may be so. But I am an optimist and I have faith in the plan of the Cosmos, I have faith in the destiny of my province, and I have faith in the sincerity both of the Government and the Opposition. That being so I have every hope that, God willing, these communal riots will only prove the final flickering of the flame and the Punjab will prove to be the brightest jewel of Bharat Mata. But in order to prove it, we must not talk of unity but we must live united (hear, hear).

At this stage the Assembly adjourned for lunch.

The Assembly re-assembled at 2 P.M., of the clock. Mr. Speaker in the chair.

Lala Bhim Sen Sachar (North Western Towns, General, Urban) :
 Sir, we have been hearing very refreshing speeches since this morning. I perfectly agree with my predecessor that to-day's is one of the subjects on which there is no difference of opinion between this side and the other side of the House. I am sure there is none present in this House who is not as keen as the keenest in this province that this spirit of communalism should go. We are all agreed that communalism is our curse and that sooner it is exterminated the better for the province and for every community in the province.

It is, as I have said, very refreshing to hear speaker after speaker choosing the best possible words and couching the highest sentiments in that language, with the one object of improving the very deplorable state of things, which prevails in the province. If unanimity of opinion could eradicate communalism, I am sure, after this sight of absolute unanimity in the House, as it prevails to-day, not a sign of communalism should be seen in the province from this very moment. If mere expression of sentiments and good wishes were enough to remove communalism, I am sure, before it is the next day, communalism would have come to an end in the province. But it will be agreed, and readily conceded, that something more than mere expression of views and desires is required to remedy this very very rotten state of affairs in the province. I do not undervalue the expression of views, I do not undervalue the expression of wishes and desires, because, after all, unless you have a certain desire, unless you have a certain wish, you have nothing you can act upon. Therefore, it is necessary, rather only natural, that our actions should be preceded by desires.

I do not want to make a long speech, because there is limited time at my disposal. Therefore, I would straight-away like to discuss the causes which have brought about communalism in the province? Before we adopt certain measures and pursue a certain remedy we must know the causes which have led to the spread of this plague of communalism in the province. I do not know if I shall be well-advised in taking a historical view of the cause of communalism. Communalism thrives on separate tendencies. Communalism comes in when communities feel that they are distinct and separate from one another. Communalism appears when instead of love hatred comes into play. There is hatred, there is suspicion, there is misunderstanding; and it must be admitted, as a historical fact, that for communalism we shall have to go back many centuries. This cannot be denied that when Musalmans came to India as foreign invaders, the Hindus were the inhabitants of this country. The Hindus could not but look down upon the invaders. It was only natural that the inhabitants of this country should have distrusted them and should not have put faith in the foreigners, because that was the only way of preserving their own individuality and their own personality. At that time, it was absolutely necessary for the preservation of the people of this country that they should have nothing to do with those foreign invaders. But the question remains whether that state of things, which justified suspicion, mistrust, and treating of each other as enemies now continues and whether there is any justification for treating the matter from the old point of view. There was a time when Muslims were foreigners, but now it cannot be said that Musslamans in India are foreigners; it cannot be said that a Muslim is not the son of this soil. A large number of Muslims dare not say that they are not descendants of the ancient ancestors of the Hindus.

Therefore, it is very necessary that we should change our outlook. It is very necessary that we understand our position. It is very necessary that we modify our attitude and cease to think that there are some aliens here and some people who have nothing in common with the rest. My submission is that we shall have to take very drastic action. We have got to take special measures for educating ourselves into the view that whether one is a Hindu or a Muslim, he is the son of the soil (hear, hear) and has interests which to a very large extent are common with others who also belong to this country. That is very necessary. Unfortunately it will have to be said that most of us are guilty of having fanned the fire of communalism. We cannot possibly escape the blame for having been a party to creating a state of things in the country, which is now sapping our very life, is sitting like spectre on our breasts and is not allowing us to proceed a step onwards. In a separated state when we were suspicious of one another there came in another foreign power. It has been said by my friend on my left, he is not there just at present, that we have been laying the blame at the door of a third party. However anxious we may be to exonerate the third party from this blame, we cannot but lay the blame at the door of the third party. But should we blame the third party only? It is my view that any foreigner who is a ruler in a foreign country would adopt measures exactly similar to the measures that have been adopted by the foreigner in India. He cannot be blamed. It is for us to see and realise that we do not allow ourselves to be exploited and used and be made a cat's paw of by the foreigner who happens to control our destiny. Therefore, we have to make very great efforts to break away from a sorry past, to visualise the reality and see ourselves in a proper perspective. The separatist tendency which is now there is being utilised by the foreigner who rules here; and, to our shame, it will have to be admitted that most of us are willing allies of that foreigner in perpetuating that division between communities and communities. Every one who has directly or indirectly contributed to the solidarity of the foreigner here is really responsible for creating this state of things. But how are we going to remedy it? We must really cultivate that spirit which will see that there is no difference between man and man, which will see that there is common fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. After all what is the difference between a Hindu and a Muslim on the score of which blood should be shed in this province and on the basis of which a man should cut the throat of another man, and women and children should be massacred? Wherein is the difference? Does the difference lie in this that a Muslim follows a certain manner and method of prayer and a Hindu follows another? Both of them agree in this that the goal they have in view is common. If that is so I really fail to understand why the formalities of religions should separate one from the other. Take the cases of music before mosque or separate seats in educational institutions and so on. Although, in the first place, they are the effects of communalism but in their turn they become causes of communalism and go to consolidate the spirit of communalism that prevails in the country. Therefore my submission is that unless we go about our task with the purity of heart and strength of mind that are essential, unless there is change in the angle of our vision and unless there is a refusal to play to the tune of a power whose natural desire it is that we should remain separate for all times, there cannot be any solution of this problem. This being so I shall make a very respectful appeal to all members of this House that we do go about our task giving unmistakable proof of that change in the angle of our visions without which nothing can be achieved.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava (Lahore City, General, Urban) : Mr. Speaker, I had an intention and in fact I had given notice of moving an amendment, but as advised by my friends on this side, I do not intend to move that amendment. But, I rise to make a few observations on the resolution before the House. I wish, that I were able to express my feelings on this question in my own language to-day at least because I am full of sentiments on this question. It is not reason alone that makes the man, it is sentiment also that makes the man what he is and therefore I wish I would express my feelings in my language. But I know I cannot do it. Therefore I shall have to remain satisfied with the way in which I can express them to-day. I know, that my knowledge of the English language is very poor and therefore I cannot express my feelings so well in it as I can do otherwise.

I feel that no enactment of law or any executive measure can eradicate communalism from this province, unless we try to reach the root cause of this evil. (Hear, hear). Many years ago, about a century ago, we never heard of any communal bickering or communal riot or communal disturbance. It is of recent growth and now we resort to this evil method taking our stand on religion. In my opinion religion and communalism are two separate things because I believe that there is no religion in the world which would encourage or which would even give sanction for the murder of a man simply because there is difference of opinion. All religions preach brotherhood of mankind and therefore it is not religion on which people should fight or do fight, but it is something else which has led to this evil of communalism. It was the third party which acted on the policy of divide and rule and brought this evil thing in our midst. They in order to rule over us and to keep down the whole of the Indian nation as slaves divided us and it was only by dividing us that they could rule. Therefore the best method which they found of ruling us was giving power through communalism and therefore this communalism has spread here. I shall give one reason for this. The members of the Treasury Benches most if not all of them, were a part of the Government a few months back. They had the same feelings then but they were not able to bring in a measure of this kind or take any step to eradicate this evil. Why? Because they had not then power and the third party which divided us was there. Therefore the responsibility of all this communal feelings lies on the head of the third party. Now, when we find that that third party, at least on the paper, is out, we should try to see that their absence becomes practical that they are no more amongst us to divide us. That we can only do if we begin to feel that though we come here on communal and separate electorates we are not here to serve any particular community or members of one community residing in a constituency. We are here as servants of the whole province of the Punjab. Unless we have got that feeling, unless we make an effort to improve the condition of the poorest Punjabi whatever faith he may belong to, we shall not be able to eradicate this evil. It was said that communalism which meant serving one's own community while respecting the susceptibilities of the other should be permitted. I am one of those who believe that in service no question of community or religion should arise. It can only be called service if it is done from the point of view of service and not for any desire of reward. If I begin to believe that I should serve my own community only and that I should not serve another human being simply because he belongs to another community, I would submit that it is not service : it is not the right sort of service. We should serve the whole humanity and not one community or the other. Every human being, every living being, should be honoured and should be respected and we should make an effort to serve every one and expect no reward for our service. If we serve the people and then go out and tell them that we have served them and therefore we deserve their votes, I think it is not service : it is a selfish act. Therefore I believe that nothing under the name of communalism or action for one community should be permitted. If we allow the present state of things to continue I think this communalism would not be eradicated : it would come back even if we are able to remove it temporarily.

Again, it was suggested as a method of removing communalism that titles and jagirs should be given to those who act in a non-communal way (Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : Jagirs and not titles)—titles, jagirs or medals of which we had a demonstration yesterday, should be given only to those who act in a non-communal way. My submission is that as long as these institutions, whether they are government or any other institutions, have got the power of patronage we should not expect that justice will ever be meted out to any person. Therefore if I have the power I would enact that no man in the country should be given a title, medal or jagir. My submission is that the only way to eradicate communalism is to beget confidence. One community should beget confidence in the other. Nowhere in the world can a minority claim the privileges of a majority. The minority can only survive at the will of the majority. But unless the majority also acts in such a way as to inspire the confidence of the minority it cannot rule, in this country or in this province. In other countries also the evil of communalism existed and even now exists in Ireland. Ireland was divided because the Protestants lived in Ulster and those who lived in Ulster did not unite with the other people of Ireland, but when nationalism spread there communalism disappeared. Therefore we must inspire confidence and act in a national way and should think in a national way. If the members of the government want to eradicate communalism from this province they should take courage in both hands and should be prepared to make sacrifices for their convictions even to the extent of resigning their posts. So far as this part of the House is concerned, there is no question of simply resigning one seat or all seats, but even if a greater sacrifice—sacrifice of our lives—is needed, this side of the House shall not lag behind in offering it to eradicate this evil of communalism from our province.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew (Amritsar City, Muhammadan, Urban) : Allow me to say a few words about my personal feelings regarding the subject now before the House. Let me assure my honourable friends on all sides of this House, that so far as this subject is concerned, the subject of how to bring about harmony, good will and unity between community and community in this province, I am at one wholeheartedly with all those gentlemen, to whatever party they may belong. I may also assure them that my services are always at their disposal in this noble cause.

There is hardly time at my disposal to go into the history or origin of this Hindu-Muslim disunity. My honourable friend on my right, the Leader of the Opposition has made a remark as to the origin of this disunity. I entirely agree with him. I can quote chapter and verse, I can quote well-known writers and great authorities in support of the view that since the advent of the British Government into this country this disunity between man and man, between community and community was part of the policy of the Government in order to run on the administration of the country. Divide et impera was naturally the policy of a handful of men who were destined to be here as rulers of this country. I do not blame them for it.

Attempts have been made in this country for a large number of years in the shape of unity conferences on an all-India basis to bring about unity among the various communities. Great men have tried their best to bring about communal good will and harmony between the Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs and others. But it is not an easy matter. It requires considerable amount of thinking. It is a very delicate matter and requires very careful handling. Therefore when I came to know that some resolution was coming up before the House I really began to tremble. I may take the House into my confidence and tell honourable members that only recently there was a committee formed up at Simla with a view to solve this vexed question of communal unity. I may also say this much that so far as I am personally concerned, I am here in this House as a member of this Assembly not because I feel that I can get much out of this constitution for my province or country. Let me frankly tell you that I have no faith in this Assembly. But why I came to this House is this, I felt that on this important subject there might be a situation, an opportunity might arise when my services would be required and I may be able to do something in this matter of bringing about harmony and good will and unity among the various communities. (Hear, hear and cheers). I am very happy and glad indeed that my honourable friend, the Premier, has taken a lead in this matter. I shall give him credit for it. (Hear, hear). I am also happy to tell you from the talks that I had with Sir Sundar Singh Majithia, how anxious he is to bring about this harmony and good will. (Cheers). Let me also say that I am very glad to inform my honourable friends that the old gentleman with white beard opposite, I mean Raja Narendra Nath, when he heard about this he seemed to have vigour and youth infused in him. I am sure he feels now young and active. (Hear, hear). I feel the situation very hopeful now. I have been telling my friends both inside this Chamber and outside that if they work with a fixed determination, with faith in their convictions and put their heads together they will be able to find a solution to this communal discord and this communal disorder will soon disappear from this province. Let me assure the House that efforts are being made. Signs are very hopeful. When I heard of this resolution coming up on the floor of the House I feared lest any gentleman should drop a brick here or there in an unthinking manner and should spoil all our efforts at communal unity. But I am happy indeed that not a single word has been used by any honourable member against the interests which is so dear to every honourable member. But I want to make one appeal and that is this. We ought to know that we cannot move an inch in the field of progress without having solid unity behind us, not merely imaginary unity, but real unity in effect. I am afraid that somehow or other so far as the three chief communities of this province are concerned, we have not much in common. We cannot intermarry. Unfortunately we cannot even dine together. There are so many hindrances in our way. However, I hope that a time will soon come when our difficulties will be removed. Let us have a practical programme and let us work together in the field of action. I have got a good many things to say, but I do not want to tell them because the time at my disposal is very short. Let us get rid of suspicion and doubt and let us work like men. The average man in the street, in the cities or villages is sick of this kind of life that is being led in this province and in this country. Every one of them wants unity. Economic forces are crushing him down every moment of his life, he wants some sort of solution. He does not really care what religion preaches. If you will permit me to say so, I submit that true religion does not exist in this country. I hear a lot of talk about religion by the Hindus, Sikhs and Muslims. But that is not really religion that is preached. It is sheer bigotted narrow minded religiosity which is mistaken for religion. (Hear, hear and cheers). No religion worth the name preaches that we should look down upon our fellow human beings. No religion in the world worth the name can teach for a single moment the kind of things that are being said and the kind of things that are being done in this country.

I have got a great deal more to say on the subject but the time at my disposal will not permit me to do so. I will therefore content myself with an appeal to all honourable members to give practical shape to the ideas that have been expressed on the floor of this House. We failed several times in our attempts in the past to bring about unity. But we should not be discouraged thereby. Circumstances are now favourable and I see signs around me when we can put our heads together and bring about a practical formula on which all of us together can work. (Hear, hear and cheers).

Diwan Chaman Lall (East Punjab, Non-Union Labour) : This, Mr. Speaker, is a solemn occasion. We are agreed that it is a solemn occasion and it is for that reason, more than for any other, that I regret one speech—a part of that speech—which has been made by my honourable friend opposite. My friends opposite must realise that on great national questions like this question which we are debating to-day, they must not take advantage of the situation to beat their own drums in season and out of season (Hear, hear). My honourable friend turned to my friend Lala Duni Chand on this side of the House. He said, "Co-operate with us and we will solve the problem". My honourable friend must have been in swaddling clothes at the time when Lala Duni Chand was sacrificing his liberty for the sake of nationalism in this country. (Hear, hear and loud applause). Therefore, it is essential that we must bring to bear our minds on this problem not from the point of view of any party advantage that my friends opposite might derive, not for the purpose of singing the praise of any particular individual no matter whether he is a Prime Minister of this province, but for the purpose of finding a solution—a solution which is eminently desirable in the interest of peace and order of this province (Hear, hear). But at the same time I regret very much that this occasion has been taken to raise this particular matter when other graver matters are agitating the minds of Punjabees: Communalism is not such a great problem either in this province or in India as compared with the problem of hunger and poverty. (Hear, hear). My learned friends shake their heads and I am going to convince them that it is the economic problem that is the basis of communal troubles in this province. It is the capitalist attitude which seeks to divide people in order to keep their minds from smashing the system which enslaves them economically and politically. My learned friends did not speak with the book. If they had only looked back into the Report which they themselves submitted before the Statutory Commission, they would have been convinced of the statement that I am making on the floor of this House to-day. Up to the fifty years ending with the year 1898 there were nine disturbances in all throughout India and the Report which my honourable friends over there prepared for the benefit of the Statutory Commission stated that there were only eight towns which were affected during those disturbances. It stated further that between 1922 and 1927 they were not quite sure how far the reforms, which had been introduced in the year 1920, were really responsible for raising this problem into prominence into this province. They said even between 1922 and 1927 the eight disturbances that took place—important ones—were in big towns and they further said that even then the countryside was not affected and they further go on to state that the police reports show that between 1922 and 1927, whereas there were up to a maximum of nine hundred riots—ordinary riots—in any one particular year, there were barely two to four riots in any one year which could be attributed to communalism. They go on to state that where there were seven hundred murders ordinarily committed, the significance of communal crime was not of any importance much as they deplored it. These are the very words that were used by my honourable friends opposite when they made this report to the Statutory Commission. I want to draw their attention now to the fact that during the first period of fifty years which I have mentioned, communalism arose because of the economic distress, because during that period you had the Afghan War, you had the Burmese War, you had a Viceroy who had been insisting upon increased income tax in this country against the wishes of the people. There was general famine throughout the country—rather a series of general famine throughout the country during that period. This is the extent of the problem. So let us not be misguided into thinking that this is the all inclusive problem to which my learned friends over there direct their efforts and thus are forgetting the real problem of the country—the problem of poverty and hunger as I have stated already. If my learned friends desire to put an end to communalism in this province, there are certain factors that they must look into. It has been said that the third party is no longer here. I take it that formerly we had what I may be permitted to call unity. To-day we have a trinity. We have the father and the son and holy ghost and the holy ghost in Barnes Court.

Mr. Speaker : As the honourable members's remark is liable to be misunderstood, he should withdraw it.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I bow to your ruling, Mr. Speaker. May I draw my learned friend's attention to the fact that we are not worried any more about third parties. We are going to settle this problem ourselves.

[Diwan Chaman Lall.]

But let them remember that whenever nationalism has been at a discount in this province, it is only then that communalism has raised its head. My learned friends need not take my word for it. I see that they are rather doubtful about this statement. I will give them their own words in their own phraseology which they employed before the Statutory Commission and this is what they said :—

“Communal dissensions begin to develop as soon as large national problems recede to the back-ground, but there is a general tendency to place national problems above communal dissensions.”

They again go on to state—

“in political development we may find the sovereign cure for communal ailments.”

Let my learned friend stand up and take a national view of the problem and they say, yes we want the independence of our country and not this hybrid federation. A very famous constitutional lawyer yesterday called it a bastard federation. Time will come—that will be a blessed occasion—when we can turn round and say that we shall kill this demon of communalism in our province (hear, hear). Mr. Speaker, It was stated again by my learned friends as follows :—

“National demands are asserting their supremacy and are bound to drive out communal misunderstanding which stand in the way of progress. We firmly believe that communal dissensions are a passing phase in the political evolution of India ; that the devolution of power and responsibility will lead to a clear realisation of the needs of the situation, leading up to a just and fair adjustment of all communal claims, including those based on religious sentiments and gradually building up of a common culture. The leaders of political opinion recognise the need of unity, and what the leaders think to-day the masses will think to-morrow.”

This is the opinion of my learned friends and I corroborate every word of that opinion (hear, hear). Let them remember that not by raising any foolish issue will they be able to settle these matters, they will be able to settle this matter only by facing it frankly and openly like men. I am not suggesting that you should call a unity conference in order to settle this problem and then suddenly send a report to the newspapers to the effect that although a unity conference has been called, it will not discuss the main important problems that have been agitating the minds of the public. That is not the way to settle the communal problem. I asked the Premier the other day whether that statement had been made on the authority of the Government. I have not had a reply yet. I hope that the statement is not made on the authority of the Government, namely that the unity conference will be held for the discussion of certain minor problems but that it will not discuss the major problems.

Premier : There is nothing beyond what my honourable friend's resolution contains.

Diwan Chaman Lall : My resolution adopted by the unity conference was comprehensive enough. But surely my honourable friend has seen the report in the Civil and Military Gazette purporting to be an interview with him. I am glad to get his assurance that that is not so.

Premier : That is because certain matters purporting to be the terms of reference settled by the conference appeared without authority and without any basis.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Do I take it that there are no resolutions regarding the discussion? If that is so I am glad the Premier has cleared the position. May I draw the attention of my honourable friends to the basic reasons underlying this problem in this province as we view it. Do the honourable members opposite realise that the main problem hinges over the question of jobs and posts? Do they also realise that only decimal eight per cent. of the population of this province is engaged in administrative posts? The remaining 99.2 per cent. of the population is not affected by the cry of communalism in this province. Communalism is the creation of my friends opposite, some of them. It is the sort of the leadership which is pariah leadership, it is a leadership which cries loudest when the night is the darkest, that is when nationalism is at a discount. It is the leaders of this description—I am not pointing out to any gentlemen on the opposite benches—but it is such leaders, the communal leaders who live upon the graves of national desires and national hopes (Cries of shame, shame).

Mr. Speaker : The word 'shame' is unparliamentary. So, I would request the honourable members of this House never to use it.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, my learned friends over there must learn to face facts. Facts are very difficult to face. They are harsh facts, hard facts, unpalatable facts, but I want them to realise them and not to hide their heads in the sand like the ostrich but to face the facts of life. About 67 per cent. of the population is engaged in agriculture. May I ask my honourable friend opposite, the doyen of this House, Raja Narendra Nath, what, during the period of his existence,—it has been a long and valuable existence—what, during that period, has he ever done to bring solace to the working masses of this province? What comfort has his communalism brought to them?

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member should not be personal.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker in politics there is no question of being personal (laughter). I am not considering his charming personality. I am merely considering—

Mr. Speaker : But impersonality is one of the fundamental principles of debate.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I am considering his personality politically, I am not concerned with his personality otherwise—it does not interest me (laughter). His personality politically is what I want to talk about. I want to ask my friend Raja Narendra Nath what he has done. Is it not a fact that the average producer in the province, if he is a Hindu does not get one anna more a day for his labour than the Muslim does? Is it not a fact that the Muslim producer of wheat in our province does not get four annas more per maund in the price of wheat than the Hindu? Is it not a fact that 99 per cent. of the affairs of life are common to the Hindus, Muslims and the Sikhs? (cheers) If that is a fact, how is it that my learned friends over there can go to the electorate and say, you shall vote for me because I am a Hindu and you shall not vote for that Hindu because he is not such a good Hindu as I am.

Mr. Speaker, in the past in the name of religion many murders have been committed and many crimes have been committed against humanity. When in medieval times one set of noblemen—in modern times one set of job-hunters—wanted to crush or oust another set, they made the common man fight against the common man and drew the advantage to themselves. It was stated by my friend, Dr. Kitchlew, that that is not religion, it is religiosity. I have a better name for that and I shall presently give it. I give it now. It is chicanery. When the Turks and Moors stopped the trade route between India and Europe, the Christian powers went on a crusade against them in the name of religion and butchered hundreds and thousands of them. Similarly the Muslims butchered the Christians in thousands in the name of Allah. It was all done in the name of religion. In the Great War the Allies did the same thing. They preached and prayed in the churches for the destruction of the enemy. So did the Germans to their God for the destruction of the Allies. It was religion every time, that was in action—and all this for the sake of self-aggrandisement. This is not religion. This is the negation of religion, the negation of truth, the negation of humanity.

In my opinion there are two kinds of religion. One is the modern, the civilised, the cultured kind. The other is the savage and uncultured and uncultivated kind. When a savage or a cannibal gets hold of a missionary and kills him and boils him and eats him, his hymn-book, boots, umbrellas, and all, then every bite that he takes of the missionary he does believing that he is coming nearer to his ancestral gods (laughter). The modern scientific religion is the service of humanity. In the eyes of the modern the cannibal, the communalist and the missionary are an obstacle in the race of the progress of mankind.

I ask, Mr. Speaker, whether it is not a fact that in all this controversy we have had in our province and throughout India, that this main factor, the economic factor, has not been lost sight of, and whether it is not time now to concentrate upon that factor in order to bring peace to our province, and I submit that apart from the economic factor the problems that have been at the root of this matter are the question of separate electorates and the question of reservation of seats and the question of jobs—all ultimately governed by the economic factor. These problems can be settled in good time, if the honourable members have the will to settle these problems (hear, hear). It is the masses which suffer every time when these riots take place. You will notice how they arise out of inconsequential matters. You will notice when these riots take place, it is the agent provocateur who is at the root of the trouble, and I can assure my honourable friends that during the last Lahore riots it was the agents provocateurs who were responsible for them. I did not see the leaders of the great Hindu Mahasabha going into the streets where murders were being committed. I marched through the streets where some of the leaders of communal organisations in the city of Lahore came to me and asked me to protect them against police harassment because the police was wanting to force them to give false evidence. These were types of individuals who were at the back of these communal troubles in Lahore and other cities. Each man sitting on these benches is prepared to go out into every town and village of the province and assure the Premier that the province would have joint electorates and assure him that the people of the province will accept joint electorates (hear, hear). If my learned friend has any reservation, we are prepared to get him an overwhelming vote for adult franchise, if my honourable friends opposite are prepared to accept that. I and my friends are prepared to guarantee national sanction for this. My learned friend is doubtful about it (laughter). May I tell the honourable friend that I came into this Assembly by means of a joint electorate.

Premier : So did I.

Diwan Chaman Lall : My learned friend's constituency consists of millionaires, my voters were the masses, people earning two annas, four annas and six annas a day. My learned friend's voters are those who drive in Rolls Royce and big Buick cars and are big landlords of the province. I submit that my constituency consists of a majority of Muhammadans and it was a Muhammadan candidate against me, supported unfortunately by some of the supporters of my honourable friends on this side, the Ahrar Party, supported by my honourable friends opposite, supported by the Unionist Party and although there was a Hindu candidate, I still managed to poll a huge vote. How did it happen? In a joint electorate an economic programme covered the day. I submit that the people of the province are sick to death of communalism and they want to get on to-days when there will be peace and prosperity in the province and the common man will come into his own (cheers).

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani (Muzaffargarh North, Muhammadan, Rural) (Urdu): Mr. Speaker, it is gratifying to note that there is a common desire amongst all sections of the House to eradicate the evil of communalism from the province. All of us agree that as long as communalism prevails there can be no real progress or advancement in the country. Our political, economic and social liberty and progress are being jeopardised by this evil. We must put our heads together to get rid of communalism from our country as without doing so no national progress is possible. Sir, it is argued that communalism is an outcome of religious fanaticism and it has become the fashion to accuse religion for every evil deed. I am, however, not in agreement with this view. I hold just the opposite view. My own opinion is that our ignorance of religion and lack of religious and general education are responsible for narrow-mindedness and intolerance as no religion teaches ill-will, bigotry or persecution of one's fellow-beings. Our ancestors who were more religious-minded than ourselves used to live in peace and harmony and entertained brotherly feelings for each other. While we who are less religious than our ancestors and take religion light-heartedly exhibit feelings of hatred and intolerance against each other. We do not find in the past history of India any mention about a communal clash over Ram Lila and Muharram processions, arti-namaz disputes, music before mosques, Jhatka and Halal, cow sacrifice and similar other religious and quasi-religious controversies. All these controversies are the developments of recent times and if closely examined will show no or little bearing on religion. If we look into the past history of our forefathers we find signal examples of communal and religious toleration and goodwill. All the great leaders of different faiths laid great stress on this point. History tells that a Muslim saint, Mian Mir Sahib, peace be on him, laid the foundation stone of the great Sikh shrine Darbar Sahib at Amritsar in the presence of the great Sikh Guru. We find in many cities mosques and temples standing side by side where Hindus and Muslims used to worship without any interference from each other. This spirit did not exist only among the religious heads but was shared even by the rulers and the common people. Muslim kings and rulers granted jagirs to non-Muslim shrines and religious institutions while examples are not lacking where Sikh and Hindu rulers exhibited similar generosity towards Muslim religious institutions. I have seen with my own eyes such sanads for muafis and jagirs granted by our past rulers to the custodians of religious shrines and institutions. Non-Muslim rulers used to celebrate Muslim festivals and Muslim kings celebrated Hindu festivals with great pomp and show and shared the reverence and respect for each other's faith. We also find that eminent Hindus enjoyed full confidence of Muslim rulers and were entrusted with important duties of State, while the Musalmans held the highest positions under Hindu and Sikh rulers. Our worthy friend Hakim Ahmad Shuja is a descendant of that great family whose illustrious members guided the destiny of this province during the reign of Maharaja Ranjit Singh. In those days efficiency and ability and statesmanship counted above every other consideration. But what do we see in our times? We hear of brutal attacks and murderous assaults being made by members of one community over the members of other communities and petty squabbles and conflicts between different sections of the population. New causes of disputes and fresh points of differences crop up every day and mar our national progress and liberty. It is not infrequent that we hear of Muslims burning Hindu temples and Hindus and Sikhs dismantling Muslim mosques. British soldiers are called in to restore peace and order and the outside world mocks at our foolish doings and narrow-mindedness. Our problems and points of difference are in fact economic, though unhappily this fact is not generally realised. Our present day communal leaders, representing the upper classes of all groups exploit the ignorant masses in the name of religion in order to retain their power and to keep in tact their vested interests they try to give a tinge of religion to every political and economic question. The atmosphere of distrust and animosity created by the so-called leaders is responsible for creating new causes of disputes which were unheard of before. Our prolonged subjection to foreign rule and want of clear ideals and objectives also help the spread of communalism. Narrow communal demands put forward by a handful of reactionaries and communal exploiters have absolutely nothing to do with the masses, but they often create barriers in the way of national unity and progress. Religious passion is hitched on to them in order to hide their barrenness. By adopting such tactics these political reactionaries have succeeded in capturing the political field in the guise of communal leaders. In order to save the masses from such exploitation, the government should take serious steps against these exploiters and mischief-mongers. It should be made quite clear that the Government will tolerate no nonsense in future and will take serious steps against this class of people, who misguide and exploit the innocent masses for their own ends. The House should assure the Government of their full support and co-operation in this direction. I was sorry to hear the remarks made by my honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lall, about our worthy and honourable friend, Raja Narendra Nath. Let me tell him that Raja Sahib has set up a healthy convention and valuable example for others to follow, by co-operating with the Unionist Party. He has exhibited great strength of character by taking a bold step in joining a non-communal political party. Raja Sahib and his party have joined the Unionist Party as partners and not as subordinates to work a common programme for the uplift and progress of the people of the Punjab. Raja Sahib can safeguard the interests of his community much better by co-operating with the majority party than by remaining hostile towards it. It is surprising that my honourable friend, Diwan Chaman Lall, should have the audacity to question Raja Sahib as to why he was sitting next to the Premier while he himself is sitting under the shadow of a rock which broke into pieces the ship of communal settlement a few years ago.

[K. B. Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani.]

Mr. Speaker : Will the honourable member please speak to the motion ?

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : Sir, I must reply to the remarks made by my honourable friend. It has been further argued that the communal award and separate electorates are mainly responsible for communalism in this country. Here, again, I have a different view. Communal electorate or communal award is a consequence and not the cause of communalism. Let me tell my honourable friends who feel so bitter over the communal award that باد صبا این همه آزرده نیست. This present was brought to India from England by our great leader Mahatma Gandhi who admitted before the British Premier that he was unable to bring about communal settlement and that the Premier should take it upon himself to give an award on this question. It was at the express request of Mahatma Gandhi that the British Premier hesitatingly agreed to give a communal award. How then do our Congress friends dare to criticise the award ? If the Congress which claims to be the largest representative political organization in the country had inspired confidence amongst the minorities and assured them that the interests of minorities would be safe in the hands of the majority, the contingency of communal award or separate electorates would never have arisen. But the attitude of the Congress as explained in the Nehru Report and later declarations of the Congress made the minorities nervous and they demanded statutory safeguards for the protection of their legitimate rights. I wish to tell my friends sitting on those benches that if they want to do away with communal electorates, they should try to inspire confidence amongst the minorities by following the lead given by the Unionist Party in the Punjab. Let the minorities feel that their interests will be adequately safe in their hands and they will voluntarily give up the safeguards. You should change your mentality first to bring about a change in the minds of the minorities. Unless you change your mentality you cannot expect the minorities to trust you.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : The honourable member should address the Chair.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : I want my honourable friends to change their mentality. These remarks are not meant for the Chair.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : Can the honourable member use objectionable words ? He said that these words were not intended for the Speaker but for the members on our side.

Mr. Speaker : I would request the honourable member not to be personal. Besides he should address the Chair.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : On a point of order, Sir.

Mr. Speaker : What is the point of order ?

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : The honourable member has uttered certain words which are—

Mr. Speaker : For the information of the honourable members of this House I may point out what a point of order means ? When any rule of business or practice is not observed by any honourable member and the Chair does not catch the point, any honourable member may stand and draw the attention of the Chair to it.

Chaudhri Kartar Singh : The honourable member used objectionable words.

Mr. Speaker : If that is so, the honourable member must have drawn my attention and I would have asked the honourable member to withdraw his words.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : Sir, I know my honourable friends are losing patience and becoming nervous by my statement of facts. I know that truth is sometimes a bitter pill to swallow. I would, however, leave this point here and proceed to my next point. We the Punjab Muslims have no right to compromise the position of our co-religionists in other provinces where they are in a minority. We should not forget that it is the privilege of minorities to stick to this safeguard or to give it up voluntarily, if they are satisfied that their rights will receive due and adequate protection at the hands of the minority community. We are, however, prepared to help in creating an atmosphere of goodwill and communal harmony and assure our friends of the minority community, of our whole-hearted co-operation and assistance in this direction. Unless we can bring about feelings of toleration and goodwill and create a healthy atmosphere it will not be possible to solve this highly controversial problem. It is no use making bold utterances here. We should frankly and boldly try to develop public opinion on this point and the majority community should even be prepared to give concessions to the minorities in order to gain their confidence. I am sorry to remark that the Congress majorities have not acted on this principle. They have included persons in their cabinets who do not enjoy the confidence of their communities and have no representative character. In Orissa they refused the Muslim minority any representation in the cabinet. They would have been better advised to include those people in the cabinets who enjoyed the confidence of their own communities. In this manner the government of those provinces could not claim to be the representative of all sections of the population. When minorities are assured that their interests are safe in the hands of the majority community they will not, for a moment, wish to remain under foreign protection. The Congress and the majority community should not force their will on the minorities and should not take up the attitude for which they have been accusing the British. If the Congress follows the lead given by the Unionist Party the whole question will be solved before long. They should extend the same treatment to the minorities and give them same concessions as we have done in the Punjab.

Dr. Saif-ud-Din Kitchlew : What concessions has the Unionist Party given to the minorities ?

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : We have given them more than their due share in the administration and we have undertaken to protect their legitimate rights and privileges.

Minister for Education : Also adequate representation in the Cabinet.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : There is a saying that 'confidence begets confidence' and we should try to act up to this principle. During the past decade attempts have been made to settle the communal problems by mutual talks and discussions. Unity conferences were held at various places. There were many earnest and well-meaning people in these conferences, and they tried to come to an agreement. Some pious and good resolutions were passed but the basic problem remained unsolved. Extremists of various groups advanced solutions which aimed at complete submission of all others to their own views or interests. We should try to tackle this problem with renewed vigour and fresh outlook in the spirit of give and take. Let this House set up a healthy convention by refraining from asking questions of a communal nature and moving resolutions or making utterances which injure the feelings of others. I was sorry to note that a short notice question was asked only this morning by an honourable member of the Congress Party which was of a communal nature. Such things must be stopped in future.

Lala Deshbandhu Gupta : On a personal explanation. I would like the honourable member to name the member and also describe the subject matter of the short notice question.

Khan Bahadur Mian Mushtaq Ahmad Gurmani : Was that question from you ? If this is so, you ought to know the subject matter of the question. It is alleged that the previous government followed the principle of 'divide and rule.' Let me declare that the motto of the Unionist Party is "Unity is Strength" and that our watchword and guiding principle is "Unity," and we mean to stick to it. I congratulate the Honourable the Premier for his salutary move to bring about communal harmony in this province and I wish to assure him of our whole-hearted co-operation and assistance in achieving this object. I would appeal to him to take the strongest measures against communal mischief-mongers and exploiters irrespective of their position or status. Communalism and spreading hatred between different communities and classes should be considered the gravest crime against the State and the offenders should be given exemplary punishments. I want to say a few words with regard to our Press.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member's time is up.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath (East Punjab Landholders) : Sir, I did not intend to make any speech on this resolution because the resolution before us is worded in a manner which is indisputable. No one can question the importance of communal harmony, no one can question the importance of communal concord and, therefore, I thought it was unnecessary to say anything on the resolution itself. But as my honourable friend Diwan Chaman Lall has made special reference to me pointedly, I am compelled to say a few words. Of course, every one has full independence to hold whatever opinion he likes, but I accuse my honourable friend of having misread the history of my public activities, of having misread the human character. I am here accusing him of what he has done. My public activities, of course, can bear that interpretation which my honourable friend has chosen to put upon them. I say that I have really fought for the cause of nationalism. I have really been fighting for dispelling communalism from the province and discriminative policy from the politics and the system of governments that have existed. I do not under-value the importance of economic problems. I do not deny that our people are suffering from appalling poverty. But I say that economic solution is impossible without economic independence, and economic independence is impossible without political independence, and political independence is impossible without homogeneity and homogeneity is impossible if you allow discrimination to take place in your political system and this discrimination will continue so long as you do not minimise differences. These are the points of conflict between the communities. My honourable friend does not know what history teaches us. I say my honourable friends opposite are putting the cart before the horse. They are asking for economic solution and for economic independence without cultivating this change.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Where has this teaching of history landed my honourable friend ?

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : I say that everyone is fully entitled to hold any opinion that he likes. The way in which I read history is this.

Mr. Speaker : The honourable member should proceed with his speech without answering the honourable Diwan Chaman Lall's question.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : I think that too much importance is attached to the economic solution of our province. It is a very important question. But what my friend is trying to establish is this, that the whole world is going to unite on the economic question. That problem has not been solved and that experiment has not yet been tried. I speak on the authority of Professor Leslie himself who says that an attempt to unite the whole world on the economic question is an impossibility, that experiment has not yet been tried and it is too much to expect the result aimed at. Of course so far as the economic problems go, the different castes and the different classes will be united among themselves. For instance, if it is a case of the rights of tenants the tenants of all classes will unite. If it is a case of landlords, the landlords of all classes will unite. But that is not the homogeneity which is necessary to make up a nation. A nation is united on all questions of offence and defence and that process ought to be preceded by a very long process of evolution which I have been aiming at. So my friend has misunderstood and misread the history of our activities and I venture to say that he has misread human nature and misread political history. (Hear, hear). I find that my other friends want to speak and, therefore, I will not be long. There are many things which I have not been able to do. I have not gone to jail certainly. If that is the sole qualification required in a public man, I lack it. I confess this. If the sole qualification is that one ought to go to the villages and lecture to the masses, I have not done it, to the extent that some of my friends have. But I have sometimes done it and explained to agricultural classes and to ignorant people my points of view. I have explained to them what political advancement means. I have not been quite out of touch with them. But probably I have not been as frequently in contact with them as my friends have been. One does not feel able to do everything that another does. The sole question is whether my activities are liable to objection and I have given my defence. With these words I resume my seat. (Applause).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang (West Lahore Division, General, Rural): Sir, I would not have spoken on this motion because the motion is self-evident and there cannot be any difference of opinion on this point. Moreover I have not been well for the last 4 or 5 days and I would have preferred not to strain myself. But it has become necessary to say a few words. I have listened to all the speeches with great interest and I must say with a certain amount of amusement also. I would not indulge in platitudes because the time at my disposal is very short. But I would at once come to brass-tacks. I have got certain facts before me and I want to place those facts before this House. When the Honourable Premier who is now the Leader of the Unionist party and another unionist leader, Chaudhri Sir Chhotu Ram, and another unionist leader, Chaudhri Zafrullah Khan (An honourable member: And another)—I will not mention others. There are three important leaders of the Unionist party who are now, I am very glad, anxious to bring about peace and harmony in this province. My speech will mostly be questioned. They were all members of a committee appointed by the Council which preceded this legislature, to prepare a sort of memorandum to be presented to the Simon Commission. That memorandum is embodied in this report which was published in 1929. I may also mention that Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath and I were also members of that committee, so to say, to represent the Hindus. We felt that there could not be lasting unity in this country unless joint electorates were introduced and in our note this is what we said. On page 76 of the report, after giving our reasons in favour of joint electorates:

Separate electorates in the Punjab will simply perpetuate separation and maintain the present communal tension.

No one can deny that our prophecy has proved true. On another page we stated:

The proper course for our Muslim fellow countrymen is to consent to an electoral system, in which they should be able to influence the election of the representatives of other communities, and give the same opportunity to other communities to influence the representatives of the Muslim community.

What did these gentlemen who are now very anxious to bring about peace and harmony in the province say—Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan, Sir Chaudhri Chhotu Ram and Sir Zafrullah Khan? In one word they said that the time had not come for joint electorates and separate electorates were essential for the Muslims. If you want to read their words, you may read them at pages 18 and 19 of the report. I would just read out a few lines:

The premature introduction of a system which depends on mutual good-will and confidence for its successful and equitable working, instead of bringing the communities closer, may result in a set-back which may take a considerable time to make up.

[Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang.]

Then, Sir, this matter was discussed in the Council and in the Council also I supported the view which I had expressed in this report. I said, if I may be permitted to quote myself, following the precedent of an honourable member here who is very fond of quoting verses and his own speeches :

Then we come to the constitution which has been recommended by the majority of the committee of this province (headed by Sir Sikandar Hyat-Khan). The fundamental point there is that of the electorates, because that is the first step towards the constitution. What is the recommendation that they have made. They have expressed pious thoughts here and there. Like the memoranada of the Government they have also indicated that separate electorates are not desirable things, yet they have recommended them; because they find that in the present state of evolution of this province, according to them joint electorates cannot be introduced in this province. They may have separate electorates, they may elect their own members with their own votes. They are quite welcome to do so. But let them not say that the Punjab is thereby going to have representative government.

These are their recommendations when the constitution under which this Assembly has been formed and under which we are sitting here was under discussion and I told them that a government which they would have with separate electorates would not be a representative government. Notwithstanding the reiterated assertions of Mir Maqbool Mahmood that this is a national government, I do not believe it is a national government. I went on to say—

The matter has been discussed over and over again in the press and on scores and hundreds of platforms and to a certain extent in this House also and I need not go into the various aspects of this question. But I would ask honourable members to try and visualise the frame-work of the government which would be evolved if the recommendations of the majority are carried out, there being three Punjab, the Sikh Punjab, the Muslim Punjab and the non-Muslim Punjab.

And I do not know what to call this (Congress Party) Punjab. It is probably the national Punjab. Then another honourable member of the Unionist party made a speech and he said—his speech may be read in Volume XIV of the Punjab debates—he has now got a very high position under the government and a position which is really immune from attack—I would not, therefore, even mention his name because he adorns a judicial bench—

Joint electorates are permissible only if there is one nation. But if there are more than one nation, different nationalities welded together artificially, then separate electorates are absolutely necessary.

we care to examine whether we are one nation or not, we shall find to our disappointment that we are not. We have different histories, different religions, different descent, different interests and different languages. How can we be one nation under these circumstances?

This was the precious utterance made on the floor of the last Council. Then he went on in the same strain and I need not take up the time of the House. I would like to quote just one passage from my speech.

Sardar Hari Singh : Was it a 'cup of poison' speech? (Laughter).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : It is not that speech. I said—

So long as communal representation continues, no community should be placed in a position of absolute majority. Why? Because it is inconsistent with the democratic principles which my learned friend so much loves. I make this recommendation because I believe that communal majority at its best is but a form of tyranny and in any case. (A voice: Will it apply to all provinces?) Yes. I remember your yesterday's interruption. Do not be impatient. I would say at once that in no province the majority community of which is not prepared to abandon communal electorates and communal representation, political advance should be made. That is my ideal. I do not want that any community in any province whatsoever, whether Bihar, Madras or the United Provinces where the Hindus preponderate should be in a majority as Hindus. In no province in India should the Muhammadans be in a majority as such (hear, hear). Let them come as Punjabis, let them come as Indians and let them occupy 99 per cent. of seats and I for one shall not raise my little finger against them (hear, hear). I welcome that because if I am crushed I shall be crushed by my own countrymen and not by foreigners.

I am prepared to suffer if the suffering is caused by my own brethren. That is my ideal. I am not for having Hindu majority as such in one province and asking the Muslims not to ask for a majority in another province. That would be absurd on the face of it and foolish and unfair and unjust and I shall not be guilty of that unfairness or injustice or such folly.

Mr. Speaker : Will the honourable member please resume his speech. The honourable member is reading from a speech which he delivered long ago.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I am going to put this question to my honourable friends : do they stick to those views or have they by a stroke of good fortune revised or changed those views ? If they have I congratulate them and I would welcome that change. I would like to ask my friend whether he has or has not changed his views. Is Sir Sikander of the Reform Committee Report the same as he was in 1929, or does he, benefiting by his experience, think that time has come for the introduction of joint electorate ?

The next question I want to put is this—I do not mean any disrespect to any gentleman, I ask it without making any personal reference. I regretfully believe that communal tension in the Punjab came in 1921 or 1922. I am not quite clear. It came in when a discriminatory rule was issued by the government, and when Raja Narendra Nath in his zeal—I should say a most regrettable zeal in the light of experience—got up and proposed a vote of censure against the Minister then in power who was responsible for that discriminatory rule. I can demonstrate from history, Sir, that up till then the Hindus and Muslims in the Punjab were like brothers. They had been drinking from the same cup—I remember after this the first communal meeting was held in the Barkat Ali Muhammadan Hall to condemn Raja Narendra Nath's action and it was from this that the communal troubles in the province began. What is at the root ? Is that root to be uprooted or is that root to be allowed to blossom into a plant and a tree ? The other day somebody asked the question when the Education demand was under discussion—

“Are you going to remove that circular which lays down that a certain percentage of members of each community would be admitted to a certain institution?”

And my friend Mir Maqbool Mahmood got up and said—

“That was for the protection of the backward community.”

Are you still backward ? Sometimes you say you are not backward. Why should you rule if you are backward ? Apart from this my submission is, are these gentlemen now prepared to say that it is their desire—a very laudable desire—that there should be peace, concord and tranquillity in the province ? Do they realise that there cannot be any peace as long as there are separate electorates in this province and as long as there are discriminatory laws and rules. I do not know with what face Raja Narendra Nath can support the party which believes in discriminatory rules and laws. He shall have to give an explanation to the public. I would not have addressed my remarks to him but he just now said with pride that he spent the whole of his life in declaiming against these discriminatory rules and laws. Will he now use his power and influence with the authorities in whose support he is sitting to do away with these discriminatory laws and rules? I ask the Premier to pay attention. A young man who has passed in the first class is shut out from appointment or is not admitted for further education simply because he belongs to a certain community, and a member of another community is taken even though he has taken third class. Do you think that youngman will go away with blessings for the authorities? There would be murder in his heart. If he abstains from committing murder it is because of the fear of law. Can there be peace in the province so long as these iniquitous laws are in existence? It is all platitudes to say we want peace. Who does not want peace? But are you prepared to do something to bring about peace? A gentleman got up and said let us have confidence. But how can the people have confidence in those who believe in discriminatory rules and laws? Until you do away with these discriminatory laws there cannot be confidence. Yesterday somebody asked why these resolutions had been brought forward. I had myself been thinking about it. He was thinking that there must be some sinister motive behind this. I do not accuse the people who have brought forward this resolution. They may be innocent victims I do not know.

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : The honourable member is casting aspersions.

Dr. Sir Gokal Chand Narang : I make you an exception and I withdraw that word. I do not want to injure the feelings of anybody. I told him that these gentlemen have got power and they know that they will be able to do whatever they like. They will look after one community and shut the mouths of the other communities (Voices from Treasury benches : No, no.)

Mr. Speaker : I would ask the honourable member not to dwell further on this point.

Dr. Sir Gokal Chand Narang : The question has been discussed for the last 17 years and if you will go into the question you will find—

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : On a point of order. I just want to point out that the learned honourable member is not speaking to the motion which is before the House. He is speaking on an entirely different subject.

Dr. Sir Gokal Chand Narang : I shall just close. These are unpalatable things. I hate platitudes. I want to speak the truth and speak it out on the floor of the House. Otherwise people will blame me for not having spoken the truth. When Mir Maqbool Mahmood said that questions ought not to be put on communal matters I smelt something wrong, because it exactly coincided with the apprehension which was expressed yesterday, namely, that so far as the Unionist Party was concerned communal questions would become unnecessary, because they have got the power and they can do whatever they like and that it would be only the poor Hindus and Sikhs and the depressed communities who would have any grievances and would have to put questions. I do not approve of the statement made by the Premier the other day that no communal questions should be put and that he would not answer communal questions. In fact he did not actually answer some of the questions the other day. I do not mean to say that communal questions of a frivolous nature should be allowed to be put, but when the minority community thinks that injustice has been done, their mouth should not be shut, they should not be gagged. If their mouths are shut, they cannot have confidence in the Government and consequently there cannot be peace. That is all I wanted to say.

Mr. Speaker : The question is—

That the question be now put.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Speaker : Does the honourable mover wish to exercise his right of reply ?

Khawaja Ghulam Hussain : I must express my gratefulness to the House for supporting my resolution. I am also grateful to Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang for the fiery speech he has made, not on the motion before the House, but on a matter which is rather different from the motion which I have moved.

Premier (The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan) : I welcome the cordiality with which my suggestion made at the Unity Conference has been received by all sections of this House not withstanding the provocative speech made by my light-weight friend opposite, who in his juvenile impertinence forgot himself by making a gratuitous attack on Raja Sahib. According to that Persian saying—he has thought fit to have a fling at the "father" of the House which provoked a crushing retort from my heavy-weight friend from Muzaffargarh. Nevertheless, I thank all sections of the House for the cordiality with which they have supported this motion and I congratulate the honourable mover and my other honourable friends who had given notice of similar motions, for the public-spirited motive which actuated them to bring these resolutions before the House to-day.

Before I get on to the merits of the motion before the House I should like to refer very briefly to the somewhat jarring note struck in his speech by my honourable friend and ex-colleague, Sir Gokul Chand Narang. When he got up to speak and started quoting from the Report of the Punjab Reforms Committee and from the dissenting minute which was signed by him and by my honourable friend the Raja Sahib and when he waxed eloquent and attempted to depict us as anti-national and went on to applaud his own nationalism, it reminded me of another Persian saying—

چه داور است نزد که کف جواع دارد

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : That applies to the Premier and his Chief Secretary.

Diwan Bahadur Raja Narendra Nath : Not to me in any way ?

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Not to you.

Mr. Speaker : No interruption, please.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Unless the remarks on the other side are provocative.

Premier : My honourable friend's remarks were meant to provoke not only an individual member, but a majority of this House and yet, we on this side did not interrupt him except my friend, the Raja Sahib, who wanted to correct him on a question of fact. The honourable member opposite referred to the 1928-29 Report of the Punjab Reforms Committee. It was my privilege to be the Chairman of that Committee. I may remind my honourable friend who was my colleague of that Committee that I worked day and night, not for a month, not for two months, but for several months to bring round my honourable friend and other members so that we might be able to produce a unanimous report which would have done credit not only to the Punjab, but to the true spirit of nationalism in which at least we on this side of the House believe. In spite of the platitudinous remarks and the note of dissent appended by him, he knows perfectly well, and my honourable friend the Raja Sahib and I know perfectly well what was the real reason which did not allow us to arrive at a unanimous decision with regard to the electorates. He is also aware of my views on the question of electorates. It is not a view which I have professed only to-day, or expressed in 1929, but I have stood by it for the last 25 years or more (applause).

The eventual emancipation of this country lies in our sinking all communal differences and thus creating an atmosphere which would make it possible by mutual agreement to introduce joint electorates, which must be based not on any communal considerations, but broad-based on foundations of nationalism, patriotism and service to the country. That, Sir, has always been the ideal before me ; but since my honourable friend opposite has appealed to us that we must face facts, let me remind him that we had also to face facts in the year 1929, and it were these 'uncomfortable facts'—I might say disquieting facts—of which my honourable friend has given us a glimpse again to-day, which stood in the way of our arriving at an agreed decision or conclusion with regard to the form of electorates. Unfortunately those hard facts still face us to-day. My honourable friend has said so, and I endorse his view that we cannot ignore them. But it is with a view to remove these very obstacles from our way that we must strive with a single-mindedness ; and I trust the House will to-day unanimously endorse the resolution which my honourable friend from Lyallpur has brought forward with a view to bring about communal harmony in the province. Let us go a little deeper not only into the Report of the Punjab Reforms Committee, but also into the history of the communal formula which came at a much later stage but before the Communal Award, which had to be superimposed much to our shame and disgrace because of our failure to compose our differences. You will remember that our revered leader and friend, the late Sir

Fazl-i-Husain, who was a Congressite before he took office, and remained a nationalist throughout his life, was also faced with these very hard facts and on that account favoured communal electorates, for the transitional period, merely to keep the communities from coming to loggerheads. He was called an arch-communalist just as my veteran friend on my right has been dubbed an arch-communalist by my juvenile friend opposite.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I wish my honourable friend were a little more original.

Premier : My honourable friend wants me to be a little more original. We are considering serious matters of great import and this is not the occasion for frivolous repartees. Sir Fazl-i-Husain, for reasons which need not be repeated, believed in separate electorates, but merely as a temporary device and not as a permanent measure; before the Communal Award came he was in favour of separate electorates for the Muslims. But you are aware, Sir, and I believe several honourable members in this House are aware that he was later converted. It took me eighteen months to prepare elaborate statistical statements to bring him round. The new Census Report had not been published then and, it took me several months to collect and tabulate statistics for every district and tahsil and every community in the province. I prepared a detailed statement with a view to convince him that joint electorates would do no harm to Muslims or any other community in this province; and you are aware, Sir, and I address you now not as Speaker, but as Sir Shahab-ud-Din, that eventually I succeeded in persuading Sir Fazl-i-Husain to accept the principle of joint electorates. He, however, gave his agreement subject to one important condition. He stipulated that so long as we did not attain universal adult suffrage, the population of each community should be reflected in its voting strength. This was the condition on which Sir Fazl-i-Husain eventually, after critically examining the statements which I had prepared, agreed to joint electorates. We were at the time holding a session of the Punjab Council in this very building in Simla and an agreed formula on the basis of joint electorates was drafted and signed by all the Muslim and Hindu members and more than half the Sikh members. Those documents are still carefully preserved by my honourable friend on my right. My honourable friend, the Raja Sahib, who has been described an arch-communalist by my friend opposite, also signed that document as also every single member of his party. He has still got those papers carefully preserved with those signatures. Several of my Sikh friends also signed the document. It was decided that that resolution should be ratified the next day in the Council. But unfortunately it was torpedoed over night. But who torpedoed it? I would not mention any names or details but my honourable friend who preceded me in this debate could probably do so if he cared to lift the veil from that mystery. It may not be a mystery to me and some other gentlemen, but it is still a mystery so far as the public is concerned. So, as I said before, that resolution was torpedoed the night before.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Not by me.

Premier : When I prepared the formula, I frankly explained its implications to all concerned and placed all the cards on the table. I knew that the arrangement whether with or without reservation of seats would not in the long run benefit my Sikh friends for the simple reason that throughout the whole of the Punjab we could demarcate only three constituencies in which Sikhs would have a clear and absolute majority. In all other constituencies the Sikhs will have to depend on the vote of the other communities to get their nominees returned. I felt that it would be unfair to my Sikh brethren to ask them to accept a formula based on joint electorates without explaining to them the implications of the formula and it was for that reason that I had all the information tabulated in the form of charts and statements. Several Sikh members of the Council at first agreed but later backed out and the agreement was wrecked. I would not like to mention any names but I might explain that according to my information there were others who wanted to back out and cleverly used Sikhs to draw the chestnuts for them. My honourable friend opposite might be able to unravel the secret for you.

[Premier.]

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : If the insinuation is against me, I say that it is absolutely false.

Premier : If that formula had been ratified in the Council, we would not be hanging our heads in shame to-day or wasting our time and breath in criticising the Communal Award. But the fact remains that the agreement was torpedoed and my labour was wasted. If the Punjab had ratified that agreed solution the rest of India would have followed suit. There is not the slightest doubt that but for that unfortunate last minute backing out on the part of those pseudo-nationalists who are loudest to-day in denouncing the Communal Award—it would not have been necessary for the third party to superimpose it. It must be admitted to our disgrace and shame, that we are ourselves responsible for this humiliation. If you will allow me, I will read out an extract from Mahatma Gandhi's speech at the Round Table Conference in which he expressed his regret at the failure of negotiations in London.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Two of your colleagues are responsible for it.

Premier : Exactly, your colleagues and mine, but it is no use crying over it now. Mahatma Gandhi said—

“ Prime Minister and friends. It is with deep sorrow and deeper humiliation that I have to announce utter failure on my part to secure an agreed solution of the communal question through informal conversations among and with the representatives of different groups. I apologise to you, Mr. Prime Minister and the other colleagues, for the waste of a precious week. My only consolation lies in the fact that when I accepted the burden of carrying on these talks I knew that there was not much hope of success and still more in the fact that I am not aware of having spared any effort to reach a solution.”

I do not think that there is a single patriotic Indian, who does not hang his head in shame realizing that it was our own
 4 P.M. fault, and our misfortune that we could not come to an agreement over this vexed question and a decision had to be superimposed upon us. It is no use crying over spilt milk. Let us try to make good now. I suggest that we should pass this resolution not in the spirit in which mere formal resolutions are passed and forgotten but in the spirit that once we have endorsed it we shall act up to. One of my honourable friends has suggested that the words in the resolution relating to legislation should be deleted. Let me assure my friend that I do not at present require for my purpose the aid of any fresh legislation. All I want is your support and goodwill. I have ample weapons to deal with the arch-communalists, but if I were to accept the suggestion, which was made by at least one member from the opposite benches that I should not use the weapons provided by the existing law I would be failing in my duty to the province, and in that case it would be no use passing this resolution. If these same weapons can be used against persons who transgress the law through a misguided sense of patriotism why should we not use them against those arch-enemies of nationalism who exploit credulous masses in the name of religion? It would be unfair not to use these weapons against those arch-communalists who go about spreading trouble and bitterness with impunity.

You are aware that in places of worship—in mandirs, gurdwaras and masjids—and outside, these enemies of the country go about preaching a sermon of hatred and bitterness against their own brethren. I cannot conceive of a greater sacrilege than that the house of God should be used for this nefarious purpose. One cannot conceive of a more ungodly act, and yet these people are allowed to go about unhampered preaching hatred and spreading poison from mosque to mosque, from mandir to mandir and from gurdwara to gurdwara. It is these unscrupulous people whom we must catch first. Unless we gag them it would be impossible for us to make any progress in this province or elsewhere in this country—whether it be in the economic field, political field or the social sphere. We must all join together in trying to stamp out these arch-communalists and rescue not only the poor ignorant masses, but if I may say so, also a section of the intelligentsia, from the hold and influence of these adventurers. I can assure my friends opposite that whenever it is necessary to utilise the remedies provided in the various existing enactments, we shall apply them unhesitatingly in the case of every rabid communalist irrespective of his position and status in life. These people should no longer be allowed to roam about and create trouble in the province.

Mian Abdul Aziz : Provided the honourable members do not ask for their release (laughter).

Premier : I might once again appeal through you and through my honourable friends opposite and on this side of the House to that section of the Press which is mainly responsible for disseminating the deadly poison of communalism. It is this section of the Press which for sordid mercenary motives, for the sake of increasing circulation, tries to sow the seed of dissension and discord. It is this section of the Press which we must try to mend or end. Let me in this House state that unless they mend their ways we will not give them any quarter; if they do not take heed of the warning which I am now giving to this section of the Press and to those arch-communalists who go about from place to place preaching hatred and stirring up trouble we will not spare them.

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : What about Government officials?

Premier : My friend wants to know about Government officials. I am not here to defend erring Government officials, but my honourable friend will, I trust, concede that all the Government officials are not communalists. There may be, and I dare say there are, some black sheep among them. With such we will deal equally sternly, and I need your help equally for weeding out the black sheep from the services. I would also include them in the category of those who need to be warned that unless they mend their ways and henceforward act impartially, they would deserve and share the same fate as the communal section of the Press and the communal mischief-mongers (cheers).

Dr. Gopi Chand Bhargava : What is your reply to the charge regarding the recruitment of services ?

Premier : I am glad my honourable friend has mentioned it. It is an important question, and my honourable friend Dr. Gokul Chand Narang also laid stress on it. I have been a member of the Punjab Government ever since 1929 with a short break when I went to the Reserve Bank, and I can with a clear conscience testify before God and man that throughout my official career there has not been a single occasion on which I may not have kept the balance even between the communities. I laid down a rule in the beginning of 1932 that 50 per cent. posts should go to Muslims and the other 50 per cent. should be divided equitably among the Sikhs, Hindus and others. That formula was strictly adhered to in the departments, which were under my control. But what did my friend opposite (Dr. Gokul Chand Narang) do ? Can he also with a clear conscience make a similar declaration ? A perusal of the consolidated statements issued annually will show the state of affairs in his departments. In the Electricity Department, you will find that the Muslim percentage did not increase even by 4 per cent. (Cries of shame, shame).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : They will not increase even now unless he gets absolutely unqualified men.

Premier : My honourable friend particularly and forcibly referred to the question of appointments and has thus forced me to make this observation in reply to his remark. It is not communalists like me—he is welcome to call me a communalist ; and if everybody was a communalist like myself I think there would be no communalism left in the Province (hear, hear)—but it is those enemies of the country who disturb the communal position surreptitiously and who carry on subterranean communalism who do harm. The consolidated statements are there and my friends can easily look up the figures. He was in office when the last statement was published and my honourable friends can study it and see for themselves what he has done during the last three or four years of his office and they can also see what I have done.

My honourable friend may rest assured that I have not stopped communal questions with any sinister motive. I have requested honourable members to refrain from putting such questions merely because they create bitterness, and I can assure you, that so far as my colleagues and I are concerned it is our faith—and we have declared this several times not only on the floor of this House but outside and in the very first statement issued on behalf of the Cabinet when we assumed office, that we will not only see that justice is done to one's own community but that we would safeguard the legitimate interests of other communities even more jealously than our own.

That, Sir, has always been our position and that principle will continue to guide our actions in future. We look forward to the day when my Hindu friends would put questions when they find that injustice has been done to Muslims and my Muslim brethren will take up cudgels when injustice is done to non-Muslims. That is the ideal that we have set before us. I am afraid the speech made by my honourable friend to-day is not likely to help in creating the atmosphere which we all desire to bring about. I know you are in a hurry, Sir, for you are leaving to-day (laughier). I want only a minute more and if my honourable friend, Dr. Sir Gokul Chand, had not unnecessarily provoked me, I had no intention of speaking for more than a few minutes. Let me before I conclude very briefly touch on that complex and delicate subject of food-stuffs. Attempts have been made to make a great deal of capital out of certain answers given by me to a question about Jhatka. Let me assure my honourable colleagues and particularly my Sikh friends that so far as I am concerned I have not the slightest objection to their using Jhatka, if they want to. No Muslim would object. I can speak on behalf of all the Muslim members here and, perhaps those outside, that they will not have the slightest objection to the use of Jhatka by the Sikhs. But they must remember that there are others and allied questions one of which is slaughter of kine. A Muslim does not object to pork because of any sanctity attached to this animal. He merely objects because he is prohibited from eating this filthy and vile animal. On the other hand where cow is concerned, the position is different, as it is held sacred by my Hindu brethren. It was for these reasons that I suggested that these matters should be taken up and considered in the Unity Conference, and we should try to come to some sort of amicable settlement with regard to the various outstanding matters. No one would be happier than myself if we can arrive at a satisfactory settlement there about foodstuffs also. As you are aware when we took office we gave an undertaking that until and unless there was a settlement by mutual agreement between the communities in regard to religious and quasi-religious matters we would not make departure from the status quo. In conclusion I would request all my friends on both sides of the House that when we go out of this House to-day, let us feel that we are going out as Punjabis and not as Muslims, Hindus or Sikhs and let us once for all make up our minds indomitably that we will remain Punjabis whatever provocation or opposition we may receive and from any quarter whatever (hear, hear). I am confident that if we have the courage of our convictions we will within a few months solve the problem. If we in the Punjab can solve the communal question to-day, or within the next six months or even within the next five years, we will have done a service not only to our respective communities and to our province, but we will have done the greatest service to our motherland (hear, hear).

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I want a minute for personal explanation.

Mr. Speaker : After the motion is put.

Question is—

“This Assembly recommends to the Government to adopt effective measures for the stamping out of communalism from this province and take immediate action by means of legislative enactments or otherwise to make the recrudescence of communal disturbances impossible.”

The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Speaker : As I am leaving Simla as soon as I can, the Deputy Speaker will take the Chair in my absence.

Premier : Before you leave the Chair, you will please, allow me to say a few words. To-day is the last day of the present session and I am afraid there have been occasions when we may have overtaxed your patience. But let me assure you, and I am sure I am speaking on behalf of the whole House, that throughout our sentiment has been one of respect and esteem for the Chair. All that some of us desired was to defend the rights and privileges of the House and the individual members whether belonging to the Opposition or this side of the House. And before you leave, let me, through you, thank my honourable friend the Leader of the Opposition for the courtesy and co-operation which I have received from him throughout the session (hear, hear) in trying to set up healthy conventions and a high level of debate and practice in this House. I thank you and my colleagues of the Assembly (cheers).

Mr. Speaker : I have no time, but must say a few words in reply. I am grateful to the honourable members for the parliamentary way in which they have behaved during the session. There was some misunderstanding during the first few days, but it soon disappeared and decency and decorum took its place. I need hardly assure the honourable members that I may have been guilty of errors of judgment, but so far as my intentions go, I always tried to hold the balance even between the various parties (hear, hear).

(At this stage the Chair was occupied by the Deputy Speaker.)

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I want to say a few words by way of personal explanation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : Order, order.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Am I or am I not entitled to a personal explanation? (Voices : Order, order.)

Mr. Deputy Speaker : That occasion is over.

Diwan Chaman Lall : On a point of order. Perhaps you did not hear the words uttered by the Speaker before he left. My honourable friend here asked for an occasion for a personal explanation to be given to him and the Speaker said that after he had put the motion there would be time enough for him to offer the explanation, and in view of that I submit that it is within his rights to do so. I do not know what explanation he wishes to offer, but I certainly think he is within his rights to offer that explanation.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : Opinions of the Speaker are not binding on me.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : A great aspersion has been cast upon me by a most responsible man which is false, false, false. I challenge him to prove one case.

(Cries of order, order.)

Diwan Chaman Lall : May I ask your ruling regarding this? If an honourable member desires to rise to a point of personal explanation, is it the right of a member to be able to do so any time or not?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : That time is over now.

Diwan Chaman Lall : According to which rule? Will you quote any rule or standing order? Will you be kind enough to inform the House according to which rule or standing order the time is over for it?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : According to parliamentary practice.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Your ruling is absurd.

Minister for Education : May I draw your attention to the remark that Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang has made? Will you kindly ask him to withdraw the remark? (Voices : Name him.)

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Speaker, may I draw your attention to rule 28 on page 15?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The honourable member is not correct in discussing the ruling of the Chair.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I draw your attention to rule 28.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The honourable member should resume his seat. If he wants to address the Chair he should do so in a respectful manner (hear, hear).

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not think that any word uttered by me has been disrespectful. I have certainly been expressing my opinion in a loud voice.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The tone of the honourable member was certainly disrespectful.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I think, Mr. Deputy Speaker, you have misunderstood the tone. In view of the noise created by my honourable friends opposite, it was necessary for me to shout but it was not for the purpose of intimidating you. I assure you of that. May I now draw your attention to rule 28?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The honourable member is insisting on using the same sort of language.

Diwan Chaman Lall : Mr. Deputy Speaker it is possible that my knowledge of English is different from your knowledge of English. I am drawing your attention to rule 28.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : That is nothing short of discussing my ruling.

Diwan Chaman Lall : I do not intend to discuss your ruling, but I am asking you to give your ruling. I may draw your attention to standing order 26. It says—

When, for the purposes of explanation during discussion or for any other sufficient reason, any member has occasion to ask a question of another member on any matter then under the consideration of the Assembly, he shall ask the question through the Speaker.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : Not after the discussion.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I rose during the discussion and the Honourable Speaker promised me that he would give me an opportunity later to offer my personal explanation, of which you are depriving me now.

Premier : I should like my honourable friend opposite to withdraw his words which he used against the Chair.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : I withdraw (cheers).

Lala Duni Chand : I rise on a point of order, Sir. In the course of the debate the Honourable Speaker promised to give an opportunity to Sir Gokul Chand Narang to offer his explanation. Is not the Honourable Deputy Speaker expected to respect the promise of the Honourable Speaker ?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : I have already given the ruling that the casual remarks made by the Honourable Speaker are not binding on me and constitutionally those remarks have no meaning.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : It was not a casual remark. Premier's statement about me was false, false, false.

NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY ADVISORY COMMITTEE ELECTIONS.

Mr. Deputy Speaker : The House will now proceed to elect the members to the North Western Railway Advisory Committee. In regard to rural interest, only one gentleman has been proposed, namely, Sayed Mubarak Ali Shah. He is, therefore, declared duly elected. (Cheers.)

The following 3 gentlemen have been proposed for election to represent the urban public—

- (1) Khawaja Ghulam Hussain,
- (2) Sardar Sahib Sardar Gurbachan Singh, and
- (3) Lala Sita Ram.

These names are printed in alphabetical order in the voting paper which will be distributed to the honourable members¹.

Lala Sita Ram : In view of my party's decision I beg to withdraw my name.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : On a point of order, Sir. You were pleased to say that the Honourable Speaker's casual remarks had no meaning. Was that in order ? Were you in order in making that remark ?

Mr. Deputy Speaker : That discussion is closed.

Dr. Sir Gokul Chand Narang : Will you please, at least, withdraw these words ?

After the voting was over, the Assembly adjourned sine die.

CASES UNDER SECTION 498, INDIAN PENAL CODE.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan: (a) A statement is enclosed showing the number of cases for the period mentioned. There is no provision of law requiring or allowing the Courts to pass orders for the return of abducted women to their husbands, and no information is available as to the number so returned.

(b) The records of such cases are destroyed three years after the date of the final order, and it would therefore be impossible to give information for the years 1933-34. As regards the later years the required information could not be collected without examining all the separate files entailing an expenditure of time and labour out of all proportion to the result.

(c) No action is contemplated.

LOAD CARRIED BY LORRIES TO SRINAGAR.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes.

(b) This is believed to be so. The Punjab Government are at present in correspondence with the Governments of Kashmir and the North-West Frontier Province with a view to securing uniformity.

(c) Public dual-purpose vehicles of the size which the honourable member appears to have in mind are permitted in the Punjab to carry nineteen passengers or thirty-eight maunds of goods. This applies to mail-carrying vehicles as well as others. Inquiries are being made as to the position in regard to vehicles retained by the army authorities for use on mobilisation. Prima facie there appears no reason why these vehicles, if they are used to carry passengers or goods on hire, should be treated differently from other public vehicles.

(d) As explained above, correspondence is proceeding with the Government of Kashmir and the Government of North-West Frontier Province with a view to securing uniformity. In the meantime, in order that Punjab vehicles may not be at a disadvantage in the Kashmir trade, Government have given temporary permission for dual-purpose vehicles on the Rawalpindi-Kohala road to carry forty-two maunds.

SUPPLY OF WATER TO HISSAR CATTLE FARM.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sunder Singh Majithia : (a) The amount of water given to the Hissar Cattle Farm in 1900 cannot be traced, but in 1920 it was 32·4 cusecs and in 1935, 42·0 cusecs.

(b) There are no areas in Rohtak Division where the canal water does not reach. Supply at the tail of Hissar Major Distributary is inadequate but arrangements have been made to feed the tail by continuous tailing of outlets. At the same time, the remodelling of the distributary is in hand.

EDUCATIONAL AND OTHER FACILITIES FOR GURCHANI AND KAISBANI ILLAQAS.

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haya : There are five vernacular schools in the tribal areas under the political control of the Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan district. Two of the schools are in Leghari, two in Buzdar and one in Qaisrani Tumans. These facilities were provided in response to the demand made by the Chiefs of these tribes as an experimental measure which has proved a success. The Deputy Commissioner is now considering the question of opening a school in the Gurchani tribal area.

IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS AND PASSAGES IN THE VILLAGES.

The Honourable Major Nawabzada Malik Khizar Hayat Khan Tiwana: The Public Health Department is taking necessary action in this direction. The following improvements based on public subscriptions in cash, material and labour, have been made in respect of paving of village lanes and construction of pucca drains in the Punjab during the last two years:—

| | 1935. | 1936. |
|---|----------------------|----------------------|
| Total length of pucca drains constructed. | 372,117 feet | 264,120 feet. |
| Total area of streets paved | 826,593 square feet. | 824,640 square feet. |

It transpires that a few District Boards also paid small amounts for these improvements as grants-in-aid.

(b) Two statements "A" and "B" are attached giving the required information.

(c) A statement is annexed "C".

(d) The appellate courts have doubtless had to point out minor defects, but there do not appear to have been any cases in which criticisms were made amounting to strictures on the subordinate judge's work.

(e) No statistics are maintained regarding such objections, and it would not be possible to collect the information without an expenditure of time and labour out of proportion to the result.

(i) An examination of the court register of original suits shows that 44 suits were filed on the basis of simple mortgages. It has not been found practicable to collect figures showing in how many of these cases the deed was a registered one. The answer to the last phrase in this part of the question is in the affirmative: at least three cases of this kind were dismissed in toto.

(j) Mangu v. Fatta (decided 27th February 1937).

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) The total amount of land revenue, abiana and rent for temporary cultivation realized during the year 1935-36 after the due date for their payment was :—

| | Rs. |

| (ii) Abiana | 74,75,581 |
| (iii) Rent for temporary cultivation .. | 2,37,408 |

DIFFICULTIES OF PEOPLE OF BEIT ILAQA, LUDHIANA.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Yes.

(b) Government is already aware of the needs of the people of the Beit ilaqa in the Ludhiana district. So far as agriculture is concerned, the conditions of this ilaqa are in no way different from those of other districts. In 1934-35 joint tours were, however, made in the ilaqa by Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and Agricultural Department officers and special attention was directed to it. The areas under improved wheats and sugarcane have increased largely and are still increasing and recently the Agricultural Department itself bore the cost of transporting much of the sugarcane seeds. Important varieties of rice have been introduced and so have such fodder crops as Berseem and Cowpeas and the progress made has been satisfactory. As regards education, schools of all types which serve almost every part of the ilaqa in question have been opened, but full advantage is not being taken of them by the public. Steps are now being taken to encourage education in this ilaqa. A special assistant district inspector of schools has now been appointed for this backward ilaqa. The District Board, Ludhiana, has agreed to give a free supply of slates and takhties to poor students in the ilaqa. So far as the public health is concerned, the only particular need of the ilaqa is to deal with malaria. A sum of Rs. 1,28,000 has already been spent by Government to improve the condition of Buddha Nullah as a result of which considerable portion of the land which was previously lying waste has been brought under cultivation and the incidence of malaria has shown a tendency towards decrease during recent years. An additional sum of Rs. 50,000 has also been sanctioned to train Budha Nullah further. As regards the provision of medical aid in rural areas, it is one of the functions of the District Board, Ludhiana, which has already opened dispensaries at certain places in the ilaqa. The question of giving a grant-in-aid to this district board for the opening of one more dispensary in the ilaqa is under the consideration of Government.

(d) No such representation has been received either by the Deputy Commissioner or the Financial Commissioner, Punjab (Revenue), nor has there been, so far as Government can ascertain, any evasion of the Act, seeing that the alienations to non-agriculturists have all been effected in due course of law with the sanction of the Deputy Commissioner.

1. Bhattis of Thatha Bhattian (Police Station Gu-gera) (2)
2. Kathias of Chaḳ Bandi Nathu Amir (Police Station Harapa) (3)

The figures in brackets indicate the number of persons in each tribe or gang who have been sentenced to imprisonment. It would make this reply unduly long to give particulars of all these hundreds of cases.

(b) Total 2,950. Out of these 930 are restricted under section 11 of the Act, the area of restriction being either the village or the police station. In speaking of the number of persons "granted passes" the honourable member is probably referring to persons de-registered under rule 24. The number of these is 1,787.

(d) The honourable member is asked to read rules 3 and 4 of the rules framed by the Punjab Government under the Act, from which he will see that minors are comparatively seldom registered and also rule 24, regarding the de-registration of those criminal tribesmen whose records are found satisfactory.

(Question No. *700, page 1816 ante.)

ORDERS OF ARRESTS BY SUB-JUDGE OF JHAJJAR.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan : (a) Thirteen.

(b) This information could not be collected without an examination of all the cases decided by the Subordinate Judge during the period, no separate record being kept of rejected applications. To carry out such a search would entail an expenditure of time and labour out of all proportion to the results to be secured.

(c) The references to the Code of Criminal Procedure and Punjab Debtors Protection Act, 1936, are not understood ; but it is not correct that warrants are issued on the bare statements of decree-holders. The provisions on section 34 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, 1934, are observed in all cases.

(Question No. *708, page 1819 ante.)

NUR MAHARRAM AQUALA HAYATA CRIMINAL TRIBES, IN JHANG DISTRICT.

The Honourable Mr. Manohar Lal : (a) The Biloches of Jhok Nur Mahram and Akla Hayat were given land on the same scale as the other indigenous tribes when the Jhang Bar was colonised, namely, half a square for each male child ; and their criminal propensities, which have long been notorious, are by no means entirely the result of economic difficulties.

(b) and (c). Efforts are constantly being made by the Department to secure work for the members of the tribe in Government departments and with private employers, and a number of them have made good progress in such appointments. Much has also been done, since the Department took over control of these villages in 1934, to reduce indebtedness by the establishment of co-operative credit societies and conciliation boards, and by the introduction of improved methods of husbandry.

SUB-JUDGES AND DEBT CONCILIATION BOARDS.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikander Hyat-Khan: (a) A statement is enclosed giving the required information.

(b) First Clause.—Yes, except in the case of Garhshankar.

Second Clause.—It has not been found possible to reduce the number of subordinate judges at the other places for the following reasons:—

1. Panipat.—The subordinate judge posted at Panipat is now required to go to Sonapat for ten days each month, as the work at Sonapat has assumed abnormal proportions.
2. Garhshankar.—The institutions at Garhshankar have not shown any appreciable decrease and the work arising from this Tahsil continues to be more than enough for one officer. Indeed, a subordinate judge from district headquarters has to visit Garhshankar for a few days each month to assist the judge permanently posted there.
3. Amritsar.—The District Judge, Amritsar, reports that the decrease is entirely in money suits, and that if these had come into the courts they would have been compromised or otherwise easily settled. The contentious cases are still coming to the subordinate judges, whose work has not been appreciably lightened by the establishment of the Conciliation Board.
4. Jhang.—The district Judge, Jhang, has made a report in somewhat similar terms. He mentions also that one of the subordinate judges has lately been directed to devote himself primarily to insolvency and guardianship work.
5. Kahuta.—There is no subordinate judge at all at Kahuta.

REDEMPTION OF MORTGAGED LANDS.

The Honourable Major Sir Sikandar Hyat-Khan: The required information is contained in the attached statement.

Regarding the seventy cases in the Garhshankar Tahsil it is understood that the settlements involved the freeing of a small portion of the mortgaged area only, the entire mortgage money being made a charge on the rest of the mortgaged land.

GOVERNMENT HIGH SCHOOL, RUPAR.

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye: (a) A copy of a resolution on the subject passed by the Committee in December, 1930, is laid on the table. No other resolution is said to be "traceable in the records of the said local body."

(b) The available municipal records do not show that a copy of this resolution was ever sent to Government by the Committee for consideration.

Copy of resolution No. 22-B passed by the Municipal Committee, Rupar, in its ordinary meeting held on the 14th December, 1930.

No. 22-B.

Proposal.—Proposal from Pandit Ganga Ram Sharma, dated the 26th of November, 1930, the Honourable Minister for Education, Local Government, may be requested:—

A.—The high school with its building and furniture was handed over to the Government by the Committee. At present there is no need of this school as the different Anjumans' schools such as Hindu Public High School, Islamia School and Khalsa High schools are good enough for the educational purposes. The Government high school is being run on a heavy deficit, which is not warranted in the presence of the work of other local schools.

B.—It is reasonable and necessary that the Government should not bear such a heavy monthly loss. The secondary department be discontinued and the ninth and tenth classes be retained. From 1931 the school may be converted into an Intermediate college. The expenses of the college can be met by the amount of loss sustained at present.

C.—The college maintained by Rai Bahadur Lala Benarsi Das at Ambala has been closed. The proposal of the committee for the opening of the college was dropped by the Government. And a scheme for the starting of a private college was not granted by the authorities concerned. Under the circumstances and taking into consideration the number of students available for the college, situation of the town for the health of the students and the moderation of expenses here, it is most reasonable that a Government College may be opened here.

D.—If it is not possible to carry on the proposal, mentioned in paragraphs A, B and C above, the school may be transferred to and run at Morinda, a central place of the Ilaqa.

E.—If none of the proposals, proposed above are acceptable to the Government the committee most respectfully request to the Government that with the beginning of the next year the present high school be converted into a Girls High School with a Boarding house. It is reasonably expected that a considerable number of girl students from the surrounding Ilaqa will join the institution.

Resolution.—Proposal adopted unanimously. It is further requested that in case the Government agrees to the proposal the committee is prepared to maintain a girls high school; provided the present building with the furniture and appliances, etc., is handed over to the committee and substantial educational grant is granted by the Government.

Lala Shadi Ram did not vote.

ELEMENTARY AIDED SCHOOLS.

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye: (a) A statement showing the required information is laid on the table.

(b) The decrease in grant in the Ambala Division is chiefly due to the fact that the grant for 1936-37 was calculated on the primary school basis while the same was calculated on the elementary school basis in 1935-36.

BUILDINGS OWNED AND RENTED BY THE MUNICIPALITIES OF THE PROVINCE FOR PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

The Honourable Mian Abdul Haye :

(b) In 1936 Director of Public Instruction issued a circular that when a new school applied for recognition a report from the Health Officer concerned should be obtained in respect of its building. Accordingly schools are not granted recognition until the Health Officer concerned certifies that the buildings are suitable.

Prior to 1936 Health Officers were generally not asked to report on the buildings. The inspecting officers of the Education Department, however, used to comment on the suitability of the buildings, adequacy of accommodation, cleanliness, sanitation, etc., in their annual inspection reports, and the school authorities were asked to remedy the defects.

The officers of the Health Department in the course of their tours occasionally visit the educational institutions and send up copies of their inspection reports to the Divisional Inspector concerned, who calls upon the school authorities to remedy the defects.

(c) During the last financial year some educational institutions were inspected by the officers of the Health Department and some of them received adverse reports. The municipalities concerned were addressed on the subject, and while action has been taken in a majority of cases, no action had so far been taken in a few cases. In the latter case the excuse generally is that no better buildings are available.

The main problem is in the case of big municipalities like Lahore, Amritsar and Multan, where some of the existing school buildings are very unhealthy and insanitary. But when these institutions are adversely reported upon, the Municipal Committees generally express their inability to do anything as they cannot find any suitable buildings in the town. In my opinion the committees would be well advised to prepare a five year or ten year building programme so that in course of time it may be possible for them to provide suitable buildings for their schools and also release them from the payment of rent which at present forms such a large item of expenditure.

The Honourable Dr. Sir Sundar Singh Majithia : (a) Yes, except in the Multan District, where Wadh Wattar cultivation is assessed to land revenue at canal land revenue rate sanctioned for the Circle concerned.

(b) Yes, except gram. The reason for charging khush Haisiyati on Wadh Wattar is that the cultivators often give excessive irrigation to kharif crops merely in order to utilize the moisture in the land for sowing rabi crops.
